INTRODUCTION

Dear Netflix, Love the Grishaverse is a project by the campaign to Save Shadow and Bone and Six of Crows Spinoff.

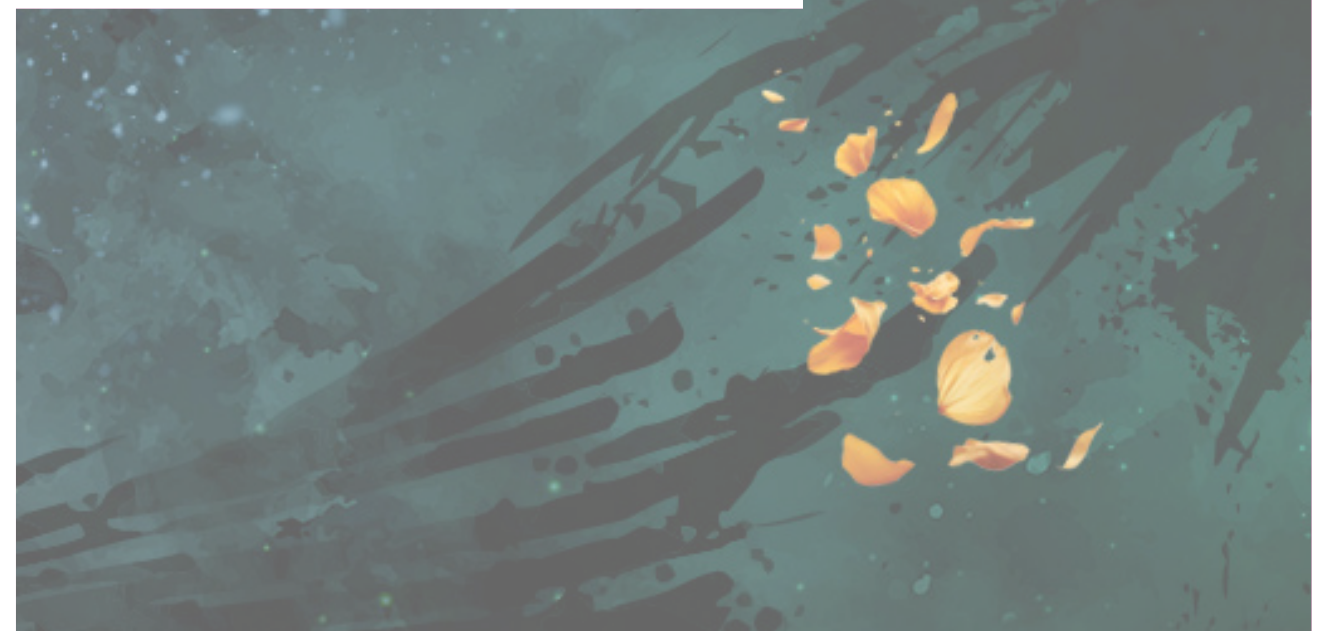

The project took place across social media (X, formerly known as Twitter; Instagram; Facebook; Tumblr); via a Google Form; on our campaign Discord server; and Thankbox.

The book you are holding contains quotes gathered from fans of Shadow and Bone during a ten-day period in January 2024.

We hoped to grab a snapshot on behalf of the fandom to show you how important this show is not just to us, as people but to the future of TV in general, and why renewing the show and going ahead with the Six of Crows spinoff will be a positive move for Netflix.

The first section of the book, on pages 7 to 139, contains excerpts from fan contributions. These have been grouped together to highlight specific reasons why the show is a success and should be renewed, along with greenlighting the Six of Crows spinoff.

SUCCESS OF THE SHOW

Shadow and Bone is a hugely successful franchise for Netflix and could grow even bigger over time. Leigh Bardugo's best selling Grishaverse novels still have so many stories left to tell on screen and would open up further, exciting adventures for all of the characters whose arcs were set up in Shadow and Bone Season 2. Scripts for a Six of Crows spinoff are already written and ready to go. The magic of novels King of Scars and Rule of Wolves is ripe for television.

The success of the show can be seen via viewing figures, engagement and awards.

Shadow & Bone's Cancellation After Season 2 Seems Much Worse When Looking At Netflix's Data

A new engagement report released by Netflix reveals that Shadow and Bone was massively prevalent, making its cancellation after season 2 even worse.

∞ 26TH MOST VIEWED NETFLIX SHOW OUT OF MORE THAN 18,000 TITLES

FAN FAVORITE TV SERIES 2023

By the end of the first day of voting in the Fan Favorite TV Series category, it was clear what show was going to win. Shadow and Bone leapt out in front of the competition from the very start and never relinquished its lead, finishing the poll with an incredible 54% of the vote. Just to drive the point home even further, the remaining four shows in the top five all earned just 4% of the vote, and they were all separated by a mere 54 votes. This is what it looks like when a fandom shows up to participate, and the results speak for themselves.

In the top 10 most googled shows of the year, high ranking in Netflix's own statistics, a incredibly passionate fanbase, daily trending Twitter or "X" #'s since cancellation and all throughout geekweek and in 8 months we waited only for it to be cancelled, a pre-written script, amazing diversity, and now it's been cancelled and billboards are going up there's only gonna be more and more publicity, more people wanting to watch just to see what we're so passionate about, it's free advertisement to bring it back, petition quickly approaching 200,000 people, stayed in the top 10, 1st, watched show on Netflix in so so many countries for weeks after its release.

There isn't one good reason to not to continue the grishaverse on Netflix, especially six of crows with its lower budget, they could always do shadow and bone after it to see if it really pays off.

Which of course it will ❤️

Lilly, from Europe

The crew has done such an incredible job with costumes and the effects. Their work received a well deserved Emmy nomination.

Millie, from North America

It was Emmy nominated for a reason. 😞

dirty_.birdy via Instagram

It is so unfair to cancel this show when it has received so many views and streams. And the amount of people who love the show so much.

Hailey via Thankbox

The series, adapted from Leigh Bardugo's Grishaverse novels, was culled alongside Agent Elvis, Captain Fall, Glamorous and Farzar, despite racking up 193 million views.

These ratings were enough to put Shadow and Bone in the top 30 out of more than 18,000 titles, which makes it the most successful show on the list to be cancelled. In fact, every series above it has avoided the axe, meaning the service appeared to draw the line with Shadow and Bone.

LOOK AT THE NUMBERS

The watch hours, the statistics, and the overwhelming support should be proof that canceling the show is a poor choice. This is bittersweet. Thank you, Netflix, for giving us a show to love. But why, why take it away?

Netflix Canceled Shadow And Bone Despite Hitting Most-Watched Record

By Charlene Badasie | Published 1 month ago

Debuting on March 16, the second season of Shadow and Bone quickly became a sensation, captivating audiences with its story.

However, the joy of becoming the most-watched English-language scripted series from January to June of 2023 was short-lived, as the show was axed despite earning a staggering 192.9 million hours viewed and ranking at number 26.

DEN OF GEEK

Shadow and Bone's Perplexing Cancellation

Given the fact that Shadow and Bone was canceled after its second season, you'd think that the series would be pretty far down in this report. However, season 2 of the series ranks 26th on this list with 192,900,000 hours viewed.

Shadow and Bone was incredible, there was such a diverse and talented cast that were bringing these characters to life. It was 24th on all streaming services for 2023. What made that decision to cut it off... If the company makes any reversal of the cancelled shows, it's clear the movement to bring Shadow and Bone back is so huge that it's impossible to say nobody wants it.

THREE REPRESENTATIVE QUOTES FROM SIX CONTINENTS

AFRICA

I love the Crows and was really looking forward to see more of them.

Allie, Africa

Shadow and Bone is a thrilling fun fantasy with great settings, adventures, clothes and amazing characters that the actors brought to life beautifully. It's a story that means a lot to people and a lot to me specifically as a young queer poc, seeing diverse characters at the center of a mainstream story. Besides, Shadow and Bone and the grishaverse is a world and a story with so much potential to explore and it leaves room for so much creative freedom! We miss original stories, we're sick of reboots and remakes, we're sick of our favourite shows getting canceled, we're tired of boring, empty, superficial and stupid stories that get renewed. Netflix clearly doesn't care about their shows and movies and is only obsessed with money, but cinema is an art and it deserves to flourish.

Yasmine, Africa

Shadow and Bone is one of those rare shows where everything and everyone is represented to perfection. I love how we got to experience every character's history and live it with them and cancelling the show resulted in those beautiful stories being cut short. The cast and crew did an AMAZING job while developing the show and it would be a waste of so much if it was to not be saved.

Lorie Deborah, Africa

AMERICA (NORTH)

This was the first adaptation in a long time I was excited to see keep going because of how good it was and the cast was absolute perfection! Please bring the show back!

Nicole, North America

Dear Netflix, I found the books through the first series and thus began my love affair with Leigh Bardugo's novels! I wouldn't have discovered this joy, if not for S1. Love, The Grishaverse.

Wolf Moon, North America

Not only that, but the care given to the decors, the costumes and the music deserve to be recognized for what it is: Art.

Anonymous, Canada

AMERICA (SOUTH)

Shadow & Bone is the perfect example of a great book adaptation. It translates to the screen wonderfully, thanks to amazing writers and actors who respect and understand the complex characters we book fans adore. Diverse characters that give us representation, and we love seeing evolve in different storylines parallel to the books. It is such a shame that we won't be seeing the continuation of those storylines if the cancellation remains, especially since so much of the Six of Crows spinoff was already written. Get Matthias out of jail please!

Fernanda, South America

Amazing story, most perfect cast ever, magical background scenery, creative storytelling, beautiful soundtrack. Spot on humor, got me to read the books, absolutely my favorite series!

Esther, South America

The found families within the show validate our own journey to find our own! It promotes healthy relationships! It's full of badass women that empower us!

Shadow And Bone is a unique concept with great and unique characters. Everyone who watches the show will have a character to understand and relate to. We have different countries and ethnicities inspired by real countries and we get to explore the diverse culture through the story and characters. Grishaverse has a lot of story to tell and we have barely scratched the surface.

Renuka, Asia

Although a fantasy world, yet the faces represent seemingly the whole world. Not only they entertain but also enable us to heal, to view, to feel others bringing up a better human understanding of things. A vision of harmony after chaos.

Arti, Asia

I would very much like to see a tv adaptation of my favourite books six of crows and crooked kingdom and I think no other cast will be perfect doing this again. I have fallen in love with this cast and this show like many others.. Please, bring back the crows. The cast was perfect and please don't ruin the potential 🥺🥺

Devika, Asia

Shadow and Bone have the potential to be so much more, if only you'd listen to us. And you know it. -kiss from France, and remember no mourners, no funerals!

Arty, France

Shadow and Bone was something I had been looking forward to since it was announced. It is the best book adaptation I have ever seen and the actors were spot on. I recommended it to all my friends and watched it with my family more than twice. I made fanart too. And it was filmed in my country. After each season I started to visit the filming locations and it was just so magical every time. It was something I wanted to continue for years. And I wanted to be part of this magic as an extra. I can not let this series go and am still hoping for it to be continued.

Daniella, Europe

I read the books and then found the series on Netflix. They managed to show the whole world and the characters as they live in my imagination. In fact, maybe even better! I'm very disappointed that there is no third season, but I haven't lost hope yet! ♥

Diána Szőke, Europe

Dear Netflix, I loved shadow and bone because it was a lil escape from reality and the editing was just 🍷 Love The Grishaverse.

Kaiya, Australia

Shadow and bone was such a good watch and I loved bonding over it with friends and family. I'd be sad to see it go it brought so many good memories and another season would just bring more

Anonymous, Australia

I have only recently been introduced to the Grisha universe and it has been a beautiful journey. I proudly hold both the books and the series dearly to my heart. The actors perfectly captured each character's charm and personalities. Therefore I believe that not only do the loving fans deserve to have this very successful show renewed, so do the actors.

INCLUSIVE FANTASY

One of the reasons the Grishaverse is so important is that it shows positive representation and diversity of ethnicity, sexuality and disability without any of these factors being used as a weakness or a trope—this is unusual in fantasy. Putting representation on television, with a diverse cast, is a great achievement by Netflix, one that has affected your viewers deeply.

Wylan
Arany Studio

Shadow and Bone has been my comfort TV show from the start, I instantly fell in love with all the diversity the show has to offer no matter if in heritage, sexual preference, disability, victims of violence or addiction! I feel seen and belonging with this show and fandom and I am sure a lot of others do too which is very rare these days.

Marisa, from Europe

This show has meant so much to so many people, including me. The show highlights strong female characters, and beautifully-written LGBTQ characters.

Serena, from North America

The reason Shadow and Bone matters to me is the representation it has, LGBTQ+, trauma, POC and Neurodiversity and how casual all of it is, and how it isn't (always) the biggest part of the characters personality. Shows like S&B really shine light to these communities and the representation means a lot to people.

Syd, from Europe

Dear Netflix,
I love the Grishaverse because of how much representation is present. It makes everyone feel included and accepted. As the world strives towards diversity and equality, representation in the media is key. Shadow and Bone offers this. I also love all the characters and how much I see myself in them.

Anonymous, from North America

Shadow and Bone means so much to me. It has representation of people of color and LGBTQ people. It's exciting and interesting and I can't bear to lose it.

Marianne M, from North America

DARA, FROM NORTH AMERICA”

Kaz cane · Kara

The diversity and representation reaches to a huge audience, including me. I've never related to a character like I do to Wylan, and it's lovely to see someone like me on screen. I know thousands of other fans feel the same.

Anonymous, from North America

I grew up reading Leigh Bardugo's grishaverse books and fell in love with the story and characters. I found myself represented as a south Asian girl in Inej, one of the main characters of Six of Crows.

Nuur, from North America

Inej · Kara

For me it's the representation, I haven't felt this close to characters before nor have I ever related to them so much before, especially the crows. I feel represented by them in so many ways that I haven't really had before in other characters. For example Kaz, I have a leg condition and having a character like Kaz who doesn't let his bad leg define him really inspires me.

Abigail, from North America

It was great seeing strong women taking the lead, and having storylines independent of romance, but still having good romance, including Kaz and Inej's touch-phobic one. I loved seeing Kaz dealing with disability but not being overcome by it, having many characters of color and of different backgrounds.

Becky, from North America

It's one of the few fantasy series with LGBTQ+ rep that's not a plot point but simply fits into the world, and there's so much potential for that to expand in future seasons.

Anna, from Europe

Shadow and Bone is a brilliantly cast, acted, and written show. After watching the first season, I immediately bought the Six of Crows Duology and absolutely devoured them while I waited impatiently for season 2 to come out. As a person with chronic pain who walks with a cane, who is also a survivor of sexual abuse, Kaz and Inej in particular are characters who mean a lot to me. As a bisexual person, seeing Nina and Jesper easily living their truth in the midst of dramatic circumstances that don't revolve around their sexualities is so refreshing and important to see. This show brings so much joy into my life and I can only hope that minds and hearts will open to reconsider the choice of not going forward with these stories. Thanks!

SHADOW AND BONE, AS WELL AS SIX OF CROWS, MEAN THE WORLD TO ME. THE BOOKS ALLOW SO MANY PEOPLE TO FEEL SEEN, BECAUSE OF HOW INCLUSIVE AND DIVERSE THE CAST IS.

MAGGIE VIA THANKBOX”

To Netflix, Shadow and Bone matters to me because of the representation that it carries throughout the books and especially in the show. We don't see a lot of tv shows that show this many different representations whether it LGBTQ+, Interracial relationships, Dealing with Trauma, etc. There is so much to this show that I would love to see more of!

Lynn, from Europe

My disabled friend got incredibly excited when they realised there was a character with issues walking like them in the show, who wasn't portrayed as weak and pitied but as a strong and even deadly character. I've seen countless posts on how Nina's confidence and love for herself/her body inspired them to love themselves more too. We've got the importance of how Genya, Alina, and Zoya moved on from the man in their life who manipulated them, even if it wasn't always obvious. I myself deeply related to Jesper and his struggles with (Implied) ADHD. Wylan helped me realise that I didn't owe my biological father anything, especially since he hurt me so much.

Lily, from North America

As a disabled fan, I had never seen disabled characters who were involved in the fights, I felt a lot of shame, I felt useless. Then Kaz and Wylan came along, two disabled characters who were as active in fights as their able-bodied counterparts. And they looked cool doing it! They taught me, "You're not weak because you're disabled, you're weak because you're afraid of people seeing your weakness."

Charley, from Europe

The way queer characters can exist and love freely without being punished for it is so refreshing.

Elin via Thankbox

As someone who is south asian and bisexual, it is very hard to find media which represents who I am but with a show like shadow and bone, I am able to. Characters like Jesper and Inej have allowed me to find myself in them. I adore the cast endlessly and have never seen a cast which cares about their characters like the shadow and bone cast does. I was truly heartbroken hearing the news of the cancellation as this show provided great comfort to me and allowed me to find characters I saw myself in.

Anonymous, from North America

Kaz deserves to heal. Inej deserves her freedom. Jesper deserves to grow. Wylan deserves to be truly happy. Nina deserves to fight her battle. Matthias deserves to find himself. Kuwei deserves to be seen. These stories are so much more than just words and deserve more than this. These characters and their stories have helped so many people find themselves. They have given people hope when they thought there was none. They make us feel seen and represented no matter our background, race, gender, sexuality, beliefs, strengths, weaknesses, disabilities, abilities, dreams, and everything we have yet to discover. Every convict, sharpshooter, runaway, spy, Heartrender, and thief has a place here. We are Crows. And we never stop fighting. "If you can't beat the odds, change the game." No mourners.

Wylan Van Sunshine via Thankbox

The representation is so important and the characters mean so much to me and so many other people.

micah / potatomustaches, from North America, via Instagram Story

This rag-tag team of orphans has brought people together since they were created, and the way Leigh wrote about them, including the queer community, the POC community, those who are disabled or have fought home lives or struggle with addiction felt so natural that it's no wonder so many of us fell hook line and sinker for these characters. She, and the crows, made many grishaverse fans feel seen and heard, and helped us feel as though we weren't alone.

art_ofcrows via Instagram

As a neurodivergent queer person, I really found myself seen through the portrayal of LGBTQ and ND characters, in both the show and books. It has become such a comfort to me, and I would absolutely love to see these topics explored more in the Six of Crows spinoff, which I have no doubt could have been - and still could be - an outstanding piece of media. It is a special world full of much needed representation, and a stellar cast who care so deeply for their beloved characters.

scarlet.klauss via Instagram

Dear Netflix,
Shadow and Bone is perfect to teach people what's Emotional Intelligence and Resilience is all about. Innocence & Experience, Enabling & Disabling, Childhood & Adulthood, Love & Manipulation, Losing & Finding, Ordinary & Extraordinary and it goes on. Without conclusions that's incomplete.

PAIGE.AALEXANDRA VIA INSTAGRAM ”

Rainbow crows · Joya

It also has tons of race and queer representation, which, in my opinion, is very important for young people today and since Netflix has a lot of influence, you should use it for good.

moonys.sweater via Instagram

Dear Netflix, what I love about Shadow and Bone, especially the Crows characters, is that it makes me feel seen. The characters provide such great representation of different people that allow the viewers to be able to connect with the show on a deeper level. Having flawed but human characters means everything to me, and even just the intricate writing and depth of the characters makes it stand out from any other fantasy series.

alex.strahan via Instagram

Another thing that immediately won me over was the great amount of diversity about the characters from dynamic and healthy female leads and secondaries, to numerous LGBT+ characters and one of the very few portrayals of a dyslexic character ever shown on TV (as a dyslexic person myself it really meant a lot to me to see it).

marantidou_anna via Instagram

Dear Netflix, 2023 has not been an easy year for me, and I was able to escape the hard times through the original universe the Shadow and Bone tv show authors, cast and crew weaved for us. Also, I feel like myself and a lot of other people feel represented through many of the characters; be it for their ethnicity, sexual identity or disability. This show is compelling because the creators believe in it. I wish you would too.

plantae_studiosus via Instagram

Dear Netflix, this is one of the few fantasy shows that features main characters who are queer and disabled. It makes me and so many others feel seen. Characters who are diverse without that being their whole personality. They're capable and strong and complex.

booksandrubberducks via Instagram

The Netflix show Shadow & Bone introduced me to a disabled character just when I had become disabled. It gave me the confidence to buy myself a cane when I realized I needed one...My life was greatly improved by Netflix's show on a physical, mental, emotional, and career level. I have told so many people about the show and the books, leading to new viewers.

jacksonsbooksandmusic via Instagram

Dear Netflix,

I love the Grishaverse and Shadow and Bone because of how it is a found family of all types of people, people who represent all different communities, different types of relationships and lots of diversity. It makes me feel at home and accepted, as well as millions of other people.

evie.ryan via Instagram

Dear netflix, I have loved this series for years. It is the thing that got me through some of the darkest times in my life, and even now, it helps. But this isn't about just me. The characters in that story are not just something of profit for you to exploit. They have shape and depth, and over half of said characters represent people and situations that big media doesn't cover. If you truly cancel this show, you will silence the people who are talking about the things that need fixing and visibility.

Shadow And Bone introduces us to a unique world of diverse cultures inspired by real life and an intrigue magic system. It has characters of various backgrounds with different experiences coming together to form a family. Every person will find a character to love and relate to. There are POC characters, Queer characters and disabled characters, all who have a story of their own and have their own struggles, goals and dreams. Shadow And Bone truly provides something for everyone

This show meant so much to me. It was such a beautifully created adventure, and especially as an Asian American, I loved seeing the diverse representation on screen and people of color being heroes in this fantasy world. I really want more of it!!

Anonymous, from North America

It's a show where not only mental trauma is discussed, but also physical trauma. For me, as an epileptic, this is so important. Of course, the mental and physical impairments are something else. In addition, many topics that are important today are taken up and dealt with. Sexual assault and rape and how those affected defend themselves and learn to live with their experiences. That gives so many people courage

Sophia, from Europe

Shadow and bone matters a lot to everyone. One, because of its diversity. Jesper is a bisexual boy with implied ADHD and an addiction to gambling. Wylan is a gay boy with dyslexia. Nina is a fat girl recovering from addiction. Matthias is a boy raised in a toxic environment and is learning to better himself. Inej is a girl of color who had PTSD and was sexually abused. Kaz is a disabled boy with PTSD and has touch aversion. This show speaks to everyone, and makes everybody a much happier person. Bring shadow and bone back. NO MOURNERS NO FUNERALS!

Lilit, from North America

Not only is it entertaining, but it's also astonishingly diverse, allowing more people to see themselves in fantasy stories, a genre which is unfortunately often not a great source of representation. It would be in Netflix's best interest to consider renewing this series, the fanbase is truly alive and kicking and desperate for more.

thaliak4te via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I had never had a show where I had seen myself on screen. Wylan means everything to me, he has my same disability, we're both queer, AND he's still a science loving badass. I hope you regret taking that representation away.

bee._hugs via Instagram

Rarely has a show had such wonderful representation, allowing people to find themselves in highly entertaining, complicated, and always compelling characters. Whether a Grisha, a Crow, or anything in between, there is someone for everyone in this show.

seryblack via Instagram

I love shadow and bone because it makes me feel seen. I can finally see myself represented in media in a show that isn't about the holocaust. Please don't take away that representation. No mourners, No Funerals.

Shadow & Bone completely changed my life for the better. It's a show with diverse perspectives and as a queer disabled person it means everything for me to see people like me represented onscreen in my favourite genre—fantasy. The grishaverse includes queer characters so naturally and the show is a place that I go to for comfort and joy on a daily basis. Furthermore I cannot name any other series that showcases disabled rep as well as this show. Kaz, Wylan, Inej, Adrik, and Genya to name a few give me such hope and on my hardest days they, and especially Wylan, give me the strength and hope to keep fighting for the life I and so many other marginalised people deserve.

Dear Netflix, the grishaverse is the book that made me come to love myself for the first time. To show strong South Asian Characters, who are fighters, when the media has always portrayed as the smart/nerdy one for years. It made me love my body because a plus sized character embraced her curves and beauty when the media has always shown them as insecure. It's something that brought people together and allow people to bond over. The diversity, the representation it means something to everyone. It shows us that love doesn't have to be physical and that women have their own agency and can rise up against their difficulties. Queer characters portrayed in such a beautiful manner, that love really has no gender and no bounds. We do not only want it back to see our favorite characters brought to life. We want it back to have these messages shown in modern media, where diversity and representation is still lacking.

vee.draftss via Instagram

Shadow and Bone is genuinely the most diverse, inclusive fantasy series out there. Our wonderful cast of queer characters- Nina, Hanne, Wylan, Jesper, Ivan, Fedya, Nadia, Tamar. The disability and trauma representation in Wylan and Kaz. The fact that it's not just a cast of identical white people with Alina, Tamar, Tolya, Zoya, Nadia. There are SO MANY characters for everyone, myself included, to see themselves in and it couldn't feel further than a 'diversity checklist'. Please don't take this away from every single person that this show matters to.

Aly, from North America

Dear Netflix, Please bring back the show with not just a cast so diverse, but characters as well. Characters that literally anyone can relate to. As someone who's dealt with chronic pain it's refreshing to see that representation. There's so much story left to tell, rich story!

ChaosCrows via X, formerly known as Twitter

Netflix please bring this show back!! We rarely see diversity done so well while staying true to the escapism aspect of the story!

I.am.mary.amm via Instagram

Dear Netflix, it isn't very often that we get to see a universe that is so healing to so many people. In a way, we're all outcasts and we all feel alone in this world. The Grishaverse shows us that that's more than okay, it's normal. Shadow and Bone and Six of Crows validates our experiences, our feelings, and our stories because they show us that we are not worse for them, we're better and more complete. We need season 3 of Shadow and Bone and the Six of Crows spin-off.

rescatedelgrishaverse via Instagram

This show has such a diverse representation including LGBTQ+, racial, neurodivergency, and disability. It tackles racial and religious prejudice and each character demonstrates positive & progressive growth which is both inspiring and necessary to have in media. Shadow and Bone has given me and so many others a beautiful world to escape into as well as learn from. I felt seen, understood and accepted to see characters like me on screen.

we.neverstopfighting.nmnf via Instagram

Shadow and Bone is a series that doesn't shy away from diversity but embraces it, resulting in it representing a variety of diverse people from all parts of the world. In my opinion, the film industry has a significant influence on how people who are „different“ are perceived by society. Therefore, you are also responsible for showing that „Different Isn't Bad; It's Just Not The Same.“ - (Anne Shirley Cuthbert- another series that was canceled too soon).

Alena Karsay, from Austria, via Thankbox

Dear Netflix, the Grishaverse offered me a representation I didn't even know I needed, but was essential to my life and well-being. I think it's the most beautiful thing a piece of art can do, and this universe being adapted to a show format helps spreading its values that are so important to so many people. This is why I love the Grishaverse and I love this show and I think it deserves more. And I'm not even mentioning the brilliant casting, or all the other things that make this show an incredible adaptation!

patte_cendree via Instagram

Dear Netflix,

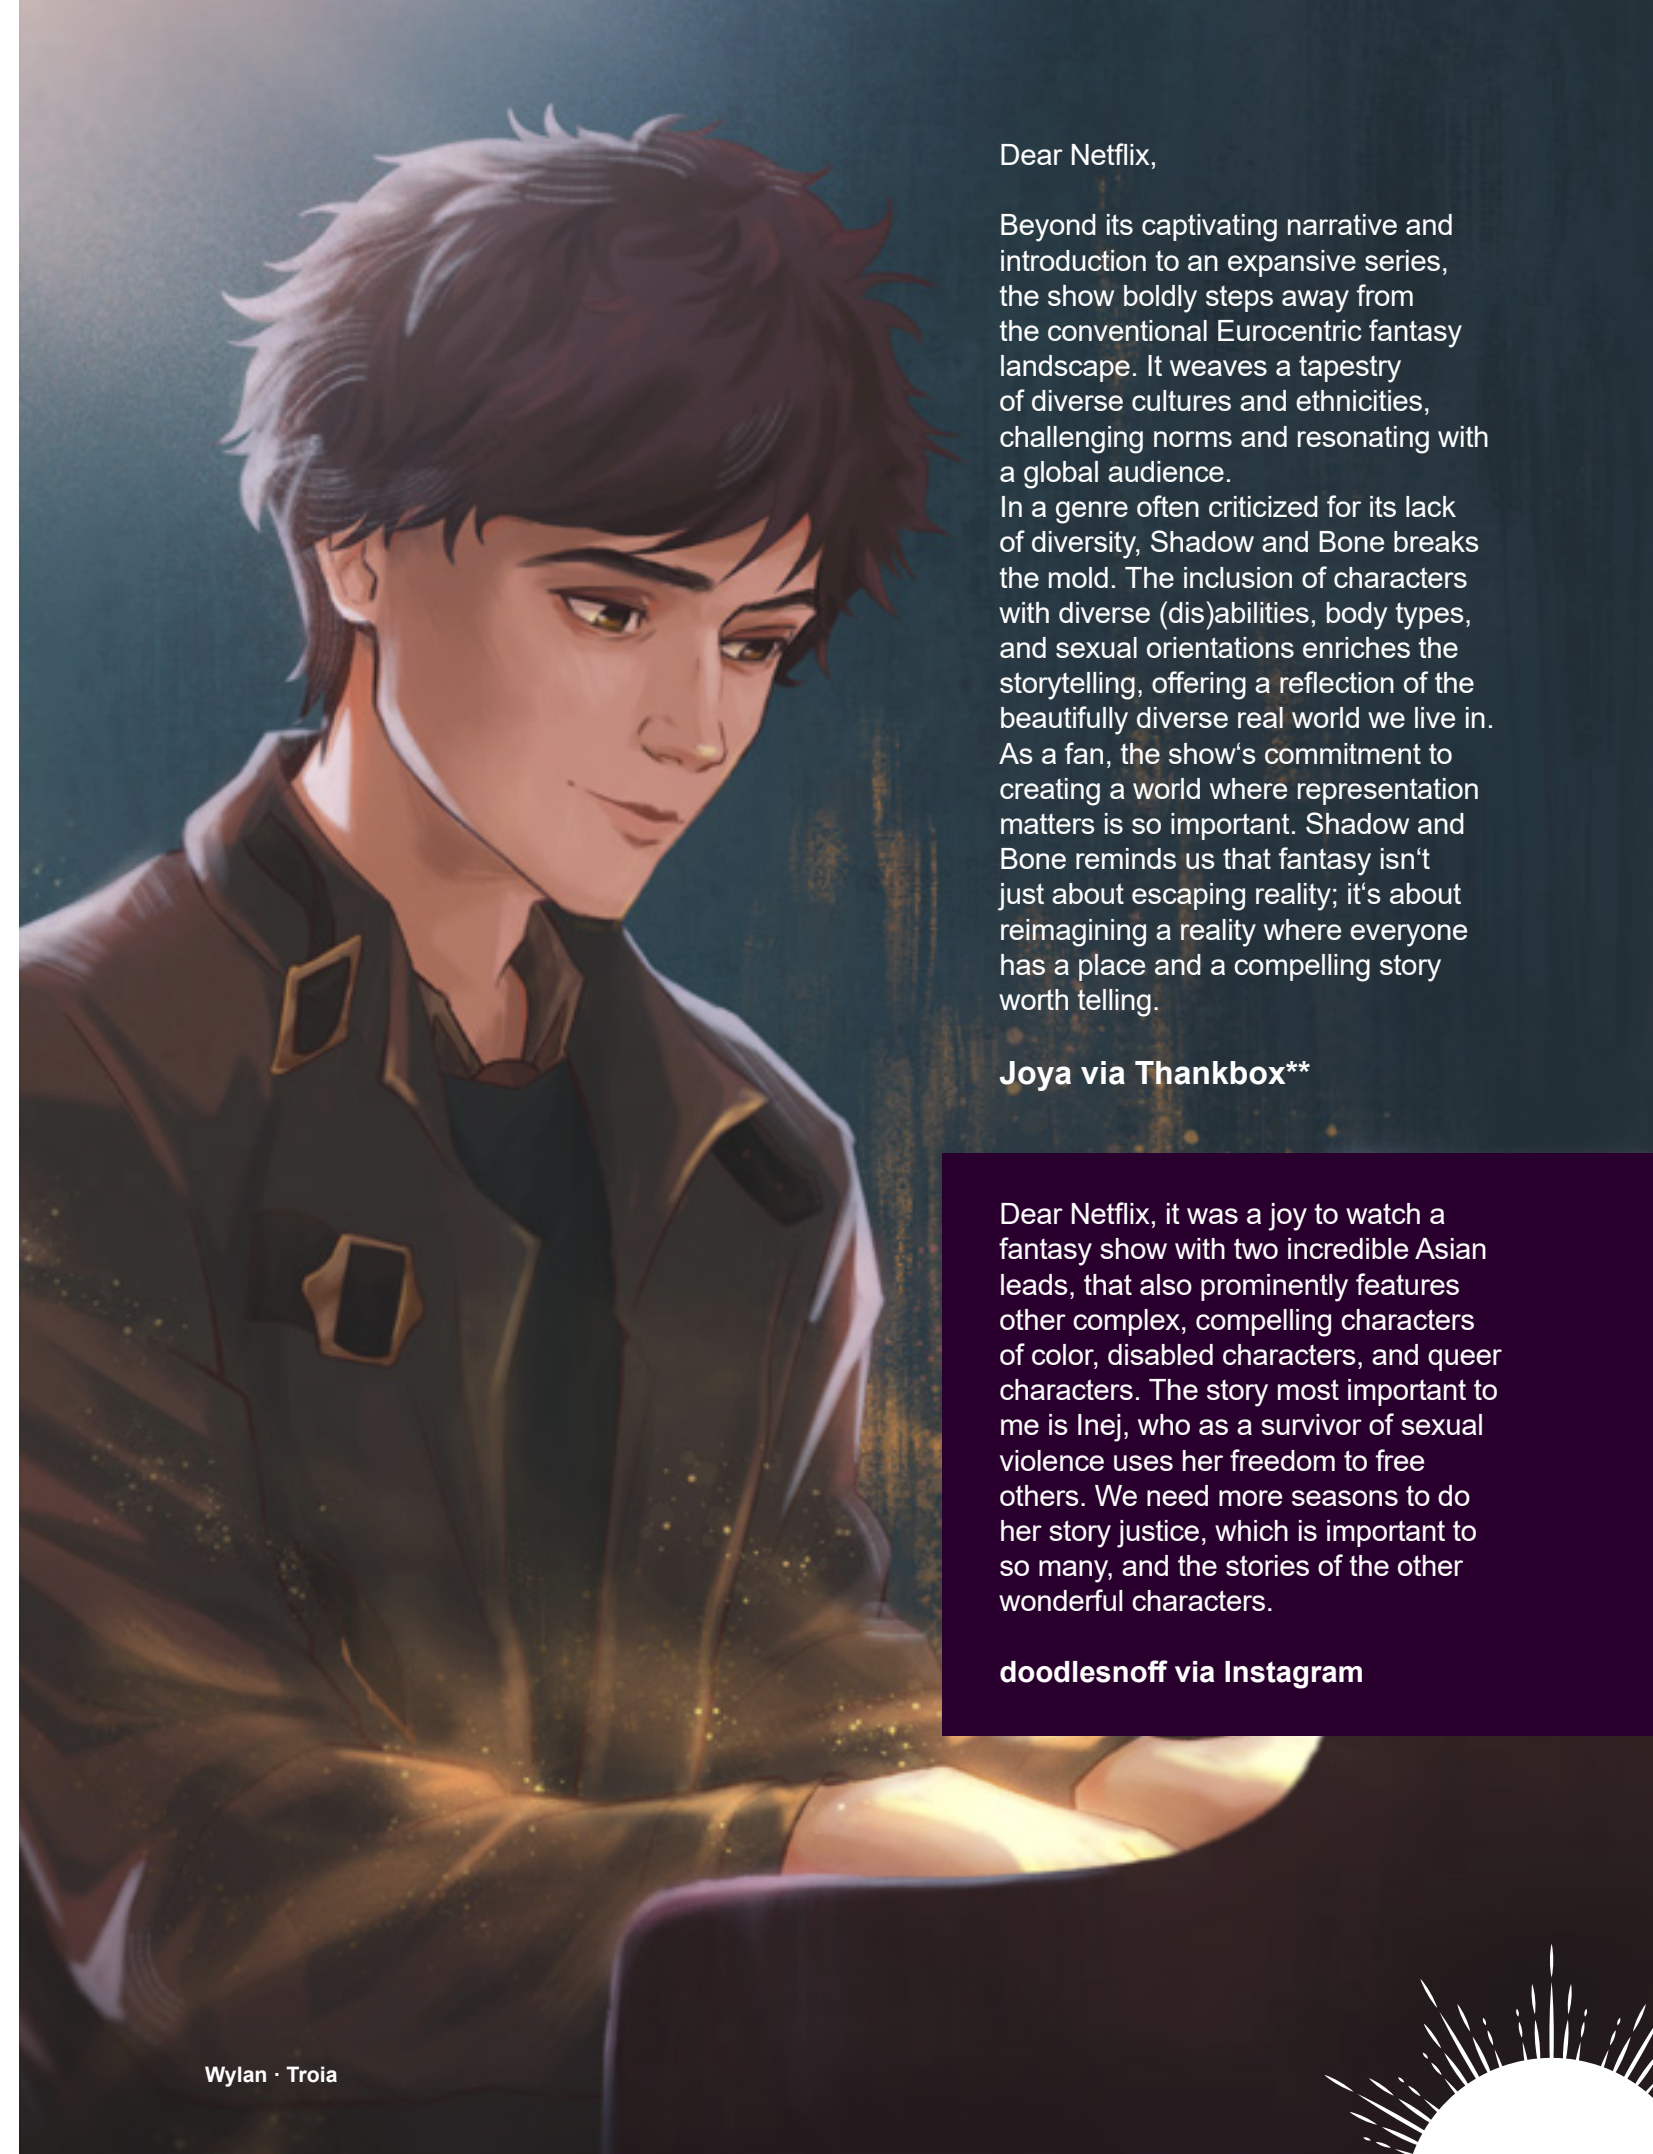

Beyond its captivating narrative and introduction to an expansive series, the show boldly steps away from the conventional Eurocentric fantasy landscape. It weaves a tapestry of diverse cultures and ethnicities, challenging norms and resonating with a global audience.

In a genre often criticized for its lack of diversity, Shadow and Bone breaks the mold. The inclusion of characters with diverse (dis)abilities, body types, and sexual orientations enriches the storytelling, offering a reflection of the beautifully diverse real world we live in. As a fan, the show's commitment to creating a world where representation matters is so important. Shadow and Bone reminds us that fantasy isn't just about escaping reality; it's about reimagining a reality where everyone has a place and a compelling story worth telling.

Joya via Thankbox

Dear Netflix, it was a joy to watch a fantasy show with two incredible Asian leads, that also prominently features other complex, compelling characters of color, disabled characters, and queer characters. The story most important to me is Inej, who as a survivor of sexual violence uses her freedom to free others. We need more seasons to do her story justice, which is important to so many, and the stories of the other wonderful characters.

You have a fantastic cast. Each actor accurately represents their character the way we, as a book fandom, imagined them. Freddy's portrayal of Kaz's cleverness and cunning was unmatched. Amita's portrayal of Inej's devotion to her saints brought us near tears. Kit's portrayal of Jesper's humor and wit had us laughing with him. Ben's portrayal of our morally grey darkling had us feeling for him. Jessie's portrayal of Alina's self actualization and struggle showed us the sun summoner we all needed and wanted. Archie's portrayal of Mal's bravery and loyalty had us finding our own true north. To take that away from us after two phenomenal seasons is unjust.

Dear Netflix, this was one of the rarest cases on earth where the casting was absolutely sublime and perfect, and that is almost a wonder when it comes to book adaptations. The show and the books are endlessly loved, and the potential this cast holds is sheer unimaginable. Do something with it, it's rare to come across on a scale like this.

Dear Netflix, what made this show adaptation so special is how perfect the casting was. Thank you for taking the time and care to cast appropriately. You didn't just nail the casting. Dear Netflix, My favorite thing about the Shadow and Bone TV show was the casting. I was so impressed with how the cast really embodied their characters. It's very rare that a cast so perfectly brings to life a book character, but in this case, so many were just chef's kiss. It was incredible.

The wardrobe for this show is something else I love about Shadow and Bone; each outfit was carefully selected based on what they were trying to tell us about the characters, and all of them are gorgeous. It really does feel like with all the other special details - props, music, scenery, etc. - we have been plunged into a magical world quite different from our own, but with characters that have personalities so real that they almost feel like looking at a represented part of us.

Dear Netflix, One thing I love most about Shadow and Bone is the care that so many people put in this amazing world. The beauty in the costumes, the effort made to create all these different cultures, complete with their own languages, the thoughts behind each character and the way in which all of those are portrayed give Shadow and Bone something that many Fantasy worlds start to lose: careful worldbuilding and love in each and every single detail. To see how this series is loved by the people making it automatically makes you love the show itself and that is something that Shadow and Bone has mastered wonderfully.

Hi Netflix! I would like to express my opinion on how I enjoyed Shadow and Bone. Shadow and Bone and Six of Crows are some of my favorite book series, and I was thrilled when I heard there was a show. When I watched the show, I thought it was amazing. No flaws, just perfection. The animations, camera, editing was all amazing as well as the sound effects. However, what I truly loved most about the show was how well the cast was casted and the scriptwriting, and its effect of bringing the books to life. Shadow and Bone means a lot to me because it shows a world where you can use your magic and actually become stronger, not weaker as you use it. I haven't seen a story with such an angle. It portrays the idea that being different is something special and it makes you beautiful, strong and lets you shine. Also the characters are relatable and you experience their pain, love and fears. It also conveys the idea that even people who seem "ordinary" at first sight are the key for everything. I love the strong female-lead and how she's the sun summoner - the counterbalance to the darkling.

Vlad, from Europe

Seeing strong female leads, especially those like Genya, who have had traumatic experiences similar to mine, inspire me to keep going and be strong.

Alisa, from Europe

Inej was especially an important character for me, seeing as how she struggled with balancing her religious beliefs while trying to come to the terms with the fact that she had done bad things in her life, yet believing wholeheartedly that she wasn't beyond redemption and she deserved good things, too. It was such a realistic representation of the world and real problems that we deal with in life, such as how to acknowledge and accept the flaws in the things we love, how to balance faith and actions, and more.

Anonymous, from North America

I don't know why you decided to not continue it, I truly can't understand it. But if you need a reason to change your mind, here's one - please do it for Amita Suman, our perfect Inej. Dear Netflix, I discovered Shadow and Bone thanks to the show as I hadn't read the books beforehand. I watched the first season while I was in bed with long Covid, not sure if I would ever make it out of the Fold that was my illness. It gave me a lot of strength and comfort to find some light in the darkness. Fast forward to 2023, I was excited to watch season 2 but I have to admit I never expected how much this season would actually change my life forever.

First, seeing Wylan on screen was a moment of enlightenment for me as, for the first time, I was seeing someone shy and anxious be a badass and be loved simply for who he is.

Second, the Wesper relationship, even though it was different from the book, was one of the best, if not the best depictions of what a healthy relationship should be like. It is so rare, both in fiction and in real life, that I fell for these two really hard and I feel like they healed my heart and helped me make decisions in my private life that I might not have had the courage to make before.

Third, I've been a cinema buff for 20 years and I've been hanging around movie sets and red carpets for 12 years but I have genuinely never seen such a pure and inspiring energy as the one present within the cast and crew of the show. Moreover, the people I have discovered in the fandom have also changed my life forever. The characters and the stories of Shadow and Bone allow everyone, and especially those of us who have always felt like misfits, to find ourselves and to be validated, comforted and inspired to go on, no matter what hardships we encounter.

This isn't just a show, it's a community and it's a long-term involvement for many of us. It is not just fiction; it has tremendous repercussions on the real lives of thousands of people. Please consider the impact you have had by bringing this show to life and don't take it away from us before its conclusion.

I learned about Shadow and Bone through a Kaz and Inej TikTok, a TikTok with their last scene in season two had appeared to me more than once, I had bad luck with other series that's why I resisted, but when more than one appeared to me maybe I took it as a sign. I saw the series and I loved it, especially the crows, I didn't know it yet but my life was about to change. After I learned about Leigh Bardugo's books, for personal pleasure I read the duology of Six of Crows and my charm head-on. I was at a point in my life that felt like a void inside me, I was missing nothing, I didn't think I needed anything, but I felt so empty, so stagnant, as if I were a spectator of my life sucked into everyday life, like If only one existed but did not live, the simple fact of existing means nothing if one does not feel alive. When I finished Six of Crows it felt like finding a home in these characters and their stories, they are survivors, and if you think about it, we've all been survivors of something in some way, or maybe still are. They gave me inspiration to get up and start feeling alive, play sports, read more, regain a sense of purpose, as if it will help me reconnect with myself. Their stories were the boost I needed, hope, courage, after all hope will never be the servant of any coward. What kind of person do you want to become? If you have the opportunity to show such stories and characters, their value and contribution, why not do it? They are not just other stories, they are not just other characters, they are the crudest way of understanding that hope can be born from tragedy and in a society like this, isn't that what we need more of? Hope.

Dear Netflix, The grishaverse literally changed my LIFE. Like not only did i binge the show and the books religiously, but like the characters and their stories saved me. When I read six of crows, I was going through a really hard time. Their heists gave me an escape. And I repeated quotes from them in my head to channel strength. I gained self confidence through Kaz and perseverance from Inej. They taught me to not be ashamed of who I was or what I do and to generally give zero fcks about what people thought of me. Zoya is also so important to me in all this. Her quote, "You are strong enough to survive the fall." helped me ease my anxieties that if I were to fall, I'd be strong enough to get back up again. She gave me courage and hope. So Netflix, it's not just about some tv show or just another book series. Watching shadow and bone introduced me to a world that genuinely saved my life—I don't know that I'd be here today if it wasn't for these characters. Shadow and Bone is more than a show. It's a lifeline. It's changed so many lives and could do so much more if given the chance. Please give us a season three. Please give us the Six of Crows spin off. These characters still have many more stories to tell and many more lives to impact. The cast, crew, and fandom are dedicated to making this happen. So please, don't take away our lifeline. The Grishaverse books have truly been a gateway for me back into reading as an adult. I get so hyperfocused on school and work that I often forget to take time for myself... but these books, and by extension the show, help me stop and take a break. The show, and all the wonderful content (like bloopers and cast videos) that come alongside it is such a light in my day-to-day that brings me so much joy! I know that I am not alone in this, and that so many others feel similarly. By bringing back this show, know that you will be bringing life and light to so many around the globe!

Liesl, from North America

Dear Netflix, I loved shadow and bone so much because it was beside me in one of the most beautiful periods of my life, magical and full of joy and possibilities. when I think back to the show I think back to that period and vice versa. But that's not all: it's a story full of magic, with complex characters, compelling plots and well-structured places. It's a story with great potential and it's a shame to cancel it. he can still give a lot. the characters in the story give people hope because, especially in sad times like these, they are people who don't give up, who fight, who always get back up despite the difficulties. I am an example. they are pieces of our soul... shadow and bone was one of the highest quality products on the platform not only in terms of plot but also as a world (very original) and in depth... I hope you can retrace your steps because this show he gave me so much...

Dear Netflix , after hearing news of a shadow and bone show, I jumped to read the books and finished them before then finishing the show. The show brought so much love and the cast were absolutely incredible, pulling off everything the books offered and showing me a new found family. The show was intense with complex love and incredible action scenes with their own diverse culture. There is still so much to tell, so much potential to create and bring back our new found family and home.

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone saved my life. It is simple as that. It means more to me than I can say. It is a place for everyone, no matter what. It saved my life and I think others too. I hope you understand

Dear Netflix, The Grishaverse and it's characters mean so much to me. I see myself in Alina as well as many other characters. Six of crows is also my favorite book ever. Their characters mean so much to me, having their story be continued would mean so much to myself and many others around the world. It feels unfair to me to take away what I and many others find so important. It makes many in the world feel seen and loved. The Grishaverse is my light. Don't take it away from me.

Dear Netflix, this show made me feel creative again. It made me feel inspiration and wonder in a way I felt I had lost since Covid had started. It helped me see something i would come to truly love and adore, the casting, the effects, and the wonderful world and characters mean the world to me now and I'm crushed in thinking I won't ever get to see this universe expand on the screen. Please give us back Shadow & Bone!

Dear Netflix, I only read the books because I heard of the show and thought it sounded cool. I never thought that it would be something I would turn to time and time again when I was in a hard place. This series and the characters have become a comfort and an escape. I have battled depression and anxiety, but I could always go back to Jesper's quips and jokes. I could always find a little strength in Alina's. I could always find faith in Mattias. If you have ever been a fan of anything, you understand the pain of it ending. This series has meant so much to me and many others. If there is any hope at all (which I believe there is because as Nikolai says, 'when people say impossible, they usually mean improbable'), try one more season. See the 200,000 signatures on the petitions. See how much this series has meant to people. I will watch it a million more times if it means seeing these beloved characters come to life on screen again.

Dear Netflix, I love Shadow and Bone because it explores some heavy but important themes through the storylines and characters. The impact of loneliness, the havoc betrayal wreaks on a soul, the strength in choosing love and mercy. It's a beautiful story that is yet unfinished. The cast is EXCELLENT and really brought the characters from the books to life. The writing is PHENOMENAL and as a fan of the books, seeing how the stories are woven and spliced together has been so fun and interesting to see. Really, a work of art. That has reflected back parts of my own life and my own soul. It's a beautiful world full of love and life and death and anger. And it means a lot to me.

Like so many others, yes I too started watching because of Ben Barnes. But I was in a real bad place back then and the show helped me sort out a lot of difficulties I had. The characters soon captivated my heart and the whole Grishaverse, show and books, became a second home to me, which it will always remain.

Dear Netflix, I love Shadow&Bone with all my heart. Because the books they're based on are perfect. Because the showrunners put so much effort and love into bringing those characters to life and doing them justice. Because the cast is so wonderful, both on and off screen. Because we saw characters we love so much on the pages breathe and talk and fight for what they love. The series brought our favorite realm to life. It became a comfort show (and Saints do we need comfort these days), a safe space (even with volcra and Kirigan there. That says a lot) to emerge ourselves in when the world is too cruel or just too much. It's a show about hope, never giving up, and fighting for what you believe in, whether that's a happy end or a best friend. There are so many stories from the Grishaverse that yet have to be told and we would love to see our found family on screen again. Thanks for reading this. Please bring our people back ♥ NMNF

Dear Netflix, To quote Inej Ghafa, „She knew how she sounded—stern, fussy, like an old crone making dire pronouncements from her porch. She didn't like it, but she also knew she was right. Besides, old women must know something, or they wouldn't live to gather wrinkles and yell from their front stoops.“ I discovered the Grishaverse as a 50-something. I loved the world, its people, its messages. Then an amazing thing happened, this deeply engaging book world was adapted to the screen. I, who previously disdained streaming channels, saw the Fold onscreen, better than my own imagination, and watched S&B obsessively. The casting, the costumes, the differences from the books, had this great creative collaborative energy I'd not seen anywhere else. And then, incomprehensibly, came the cancellation. The jackbooted crushing stomp to the wild magic of the Grishaverse on screen. Please lift your boot. Please let the magic continue. In my best Ravkan/Kerch/Kaelish/Shu accents, thank you in advance for your consideration ~

Shadow and Bone & the Grishaverse have been huge parts of my life for the past year, and I hope they remain that way for a very long time. With that hope comes the happiness that Shadow and Bone's given me, to see my favourite characters on-screen even if the show isn't a replica of the books because it's amazing, and the deep sadness of the cancellation of both the show and spin-off. But, as the Grishaverse has taught many of us, we never stop fighting (and if you can't beat the odds, you change the game)

*Sofia via Thankbox

Shadow And Bone has created a safe space for me through the fandom and cast. The casting is incredible, so is the writing. There are very few shows out there that have casts as endearing as this one. Life at home isn't exactly always easy but to cheer myself up, I could always go onto Netflix and watch the show. I've seen every episode more than 10 times each. This show means the world to all of us. Whenever I'd watch the show, I'd feel like I was immersed in another world, away from my problems. I don't want to see that get taken away.

Shadow and Bone is a show that has really helped me through a tough time. It gave me comfort at a time where all I felt was loneliness. The characters and the cast mean so much to me and to so many other people. Even after the cancellation I could not fathom never seeing the actors or characters again so I am holding out hope that it will be saved. Please save Shadow and Bone, it is a show that has a massive fanbase that love and support the universe. We want to see more so please give us more!

Dear Netflix. I was devastated when I heard that Shadow & Bone has been cancelled. It was the tv show for me that could never fail to cheer me up, and its characters still inspire me every day. As someone who had read the books, I found that the casting was absolutely perfect, which is incredibly rare. It would be a waste to let this show be forgotten, and I don't think we, the fans will let that. I also want to find out how the writers would continue the story. Please hear our voices and do something!

it's amazing to see a fantasy show with two Asian leads, Jessie Mei Li and Archie Rene-aux. The show also prominently features other diverse main characters, including disabled, Black, South Asian, /and/ queer characters. In particular it means a lot to see Jesper and Inej onscreen, Jesper because I can relate to his struggles with ADHD and addiction, and Inej for having one of the most powerful stories in fantasy I've read: a survivor of trafficking who will ultimately use her freedom to free others. I really would like to see this arc realized in the show with the incredible actors who've brought this to life.

Dear Netflix, The first time I read Shadow and Bone and Six of Crows was the start of year 11. I was obsessed with the books (particularly six of crows) and even later in the year used it for my English essay. When the tv show announcement came out when I was in year 12 I was so ecstatic and remember how excited I was being in class and seeing the cast revealed for the first time and how perfect it was! I've had such high hopes for this show for years and as a long time book fan I wasn't disappointed in the slightest. Everything about this show was perfect from the casting and how they interact with each other to how they adapted the plot. It's my all time favourite tv show and ever since I've watched shows/movies that are adapted from books with such high expectations hoping that it may possibly be almost as good as this one. However, each time I've been dismally disappointed. I've got so many memories of this show and these books. These characters are a part of me and I have so many personal memories that are so nostalgic to look back on. I want to keep reliving the high this show gives and to continue making memories that this show and these books have given me over the past years. Please bring it back and continue making the magic!

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone came into my life when I was at my lowest and when I struggled with a lot of things. I heard about this new TV show and after watching the trailer, I started reading the books and finished „Shadow and Bone“ in one day. I immediately fell in love with the characters (mostly Genya, David, Fedyor and Ivan) and they gave me a new sense of hope. After the first season came out, and me falling in love all over again, I was brave enough to come out as bisexual. Not everyone accepted me for being my truest self but thanks to Fedyor and Ivan, I didn't really care. These two saved my life in so many ways that I got a tattoo to honour them. It really broke my heart when I found out they won't be in season two but I had hope of them returning in season three, just as they were promised to. But I will never get to see them. Please, give them another season and an ending they deserve. - Mona (fivansrealm)

Dear Netflix, Shadow and bone was the opportunity I had to see my favorite characters on screen. Six teenagers struggling through life in an unreal situation have helped me in a way you could never understand. The storyline is not simple or full of happiness. But going back and watching the show brings me - and so many people - comfort. The shadow and bone trilogy, Six of crows, Crooked Kingdom, King of Scars and all the books Leigh has written, they mean more than views on these episodes. The script, the lines being brought to life, the amazing cast. It wasn't nothing. We learned with these characters that hope can be dangerous, we also learned that light can be found, and that we never stop fighting. We don't even know if all we've been doing will be something enough to cause a reconsideration. But we're trying, because the show deserves to be seen.

Never before had I felt seen by a book or a show. When I became ill, Genya taught me resilience and showed me that I was stronger than I thought, assured me that I was still worthy of love, inspired me to be the best version of myself, comforted me through sad days and somehow understood how I was feeling even when I found myself wordless to describe it. And then the show aired and seeing it all on screen... It sparked immense joy. There they were, these amazing characters, my literary BFFs, brought to life by this wonderful and brilliant and talented cast that deeply knows and cares for their characters, all of them working to convey this important message that love and friendship will always be the Light that shatters Darkness, and it really made my heart so happy and so proud of them all. This universe, this show, makes me so very happy and comforted. It's cosy and it feels like a nice blanket or a warm hug. It really is a found family to so many of us. The Grishaverse and it's characters truly saved my mind and my soul, and for that I'll be forever grateful. Please consider how important this show and all that it represents is to so many of us, how safe and welcome we feel in that universe, and like it's totally fine to be who you really are, no matter whether you're ill or disabled or silly or shy or somehow different. Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone means alot to me. Not only is it an incredible show, with an amazing cast and great representation but it has also been a safe space and an escape. Through Shadow and Bone I have been able to find a strength within myself to get through difficult times. I think the reason for that is because of the messages and characters the show brings to the screen and audiences. Cancelling this show takes away a world that for many is a place they are seen and heard in a reality where they often arnt. For example my friend cried to see someone like herself represented in Inej, it meant the whole world to her. Shows like this mean the world to people and Shadow and Bone means the world to me. Besides being filled with things that brought me joy and made me happy, it taught me lessons and characters always seemed to speak to whatever I needed most. When I was overthinking, Jesper said „It is better to act without thinking than it is to think without acting.“ When I felt like I needed to hide who I was to protect myself, Jesper’s mother told him how much value his authentic self held, and that fear of being hurt did not justify not allowing yourself to experience life. The stories that these characters tell are so so important to me and I really hope you’ll reconsider your decision.

Shadow and Bone is a beautiful show that brought my friends and I together, and we’re not the only ones who feel that way as the story was proven to help a lot of people struggling with both identity and familial issues. It always was an important part of some many’s lives and i’m not even over exaggerating it. Please do consider to bring it back, if not for us, for the money at the very least. The show is popular so you have a lot to win too.

Arty, from Europe

The Grishaverse series is one of the best book series I’ve ever read. I found it after the first season of Netflix’s Shadow and Bone came out in 2021. During that time, I was learning virtually due to covid and my family members being immunocompromised. It was probably the hardest time in my life. I was depressed and I felt alone. During my lunch break that I got in between my morning and afternoon classes, I would make myself lunch and put on an episode of Shadow and Bone. The first season was so good that it inspired me to read the entire Grishaverse series. I finished all 7 books in a span of a couple months. My favorites were the Six of Crows and King of Scars duologies. Those stories helped pull me through a really rough time.

Parker, from North America

I’m not sure if this would reach the eyes of Netflix staff, but: I would just like to say that as a very avid reader, one of my favourite book series is the Six of Crows Duology. The characters, the plot, everything just feels like home to me. I connect so much to the characters, and I talk about it nonstop with my friends, and even encouraged them to read it (which they did, and they loved it of course). I fell in love with the book at first read, and it was among one of the first books which brought me back into a sort of „reading renaissance“. I have always read a lot as a kid, but Six of Crows especially revived my love for reading. When I found out that the Shadow and Bone series was cancelled, I was with my friend (whom I recommended the books to), and we were both distraught. This was one of the many things that bonded us together---the love for those books and this universe. We watched almost all the cast interviews, and all the episodes (some multiple times), and love the show so much that it is hard to put it into words. In fact, Shadow and Bone is probably my favourite show on Netflix, so it really broke my heart when I saw the cancellation announced, and heard Leigh Bardugo’s emotional and teary announcement on Instagram. I do hope you will consider un-cancelling this show, as it is a community---a family, of fans. Many mourners, one funeral. </3

Hi Netflix, I found Shadow and Bone two years ago. I wasn’t in a great place, just having left a toxic friendship I’d been a part of for most of my life. And then I found Shadow and Bone. I binged the first season (only one available at the time) in less than a week, and then I immediately picked up the books and ran through the main trilogy and six of crows in even less time. The world of the Grishaverse became my safe place. That first year, I was basically by myself. I didn’t have any friends. But I could just envelop myself in that world, where I could be anyone, anywhere, and it was my saving grace. I have pages and pages in google docs and even my school notebooks of worldbuilding and drawings for this show. I was well into the fandom by then, so when season two was announced and the trailer dropped, I was over the moon. We were on vacation when the first episode dropped, so I stayed up until ten at night in Hawaii just so I could watch the first episode right when it came out. And season two made me happier than I’d been in a while. I DIY-ed my first ever cosplay because of it- I handmade a cane so I could look like Kaz. This show was my safety net. When I didn’t have friends or anyone to talk to, I could immerse myself in the show, in its characters and its world and it was everything to me. I cried when it was cancelled. I didn’t know what to do with myself, so I opened google docs again and let those characters in that world comfort me. Shadow and Bone was everything to me. It’s saved me again and again, and Shadow and Bone was a world I could lose myself in. I’ve been rambling for a little while, and nothing I’ve just said really describes the way I feel about Shadow and Bone. It’s everything to me. I wouldn’t be the person I am today without it. Shadow and Bone was everything to me.

Dear Netflix, I am very disappointed in you for cancelling such an amazing show. Shadow and bone is a remarkable fantasy series and it is so sweet and captivating to watch. I could easily relate to all the characters. This show has given me a lot of comfort, more so last year in summer things were very hard for me and watching SAB kept me going. I think the series needs to continue and we all want to see more of our favorite Crows in spinoff. I am very glad I got invested in the fandom and I met some fantastic people.

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone came into my life at a time where I needed distractions from my grandmother dying and a car crash. I've been holding onto this universe and character since April 2023 and knowing I won't be able to see what happens to Alina, Nikolai and the Crows breaks my heart. Please, save this show.

Léane, from Europe

My Six of Crows tattoo is the story of crows and gives me hope. It reminds me that even when close to death, there is a way out. There are different things you can see in this tattoo, different possibilities. You can see it as six crows: Then the first crow, Matthias, unfortunately didn't make it; he can't escape the shadows. The second crow is Nina. She has to find herself after his death and try to find a way out. She's almost there. Wylan is the third crow, he has put his dark past behind him and is finally in the light. He never looks back and goes his own way. Then comes Jesper. He's not standing in line trying to figure out who he is. He tries to make peace with his past. If his past moves faster than him, Wylan will be there. Then the two crows sit on the branch. Apparently Inej and Kaz are arguing with each other. Kaz has probably come up with a new plan that is extremely dangerous and Inej is trying to convince him not to do it. But it's also possible to just see Kaz in the tattoo. From the moment he lost his brother, his hope and everything else, to that moment when he found peace in Inej's laughter. He is back in life and has realized that some things are worth fighting for. No matter what you see in it, it is a symbol. A symbol of hope, of a better future, even if the past is dark and hard.

Dear Netflix, Shadow and bone means so much to everyone. Since it has such diverse characters it is such a safe space for so many people. Personally, as a queer kid I was able to find representation of happy queer relationships existing in a fantasy world with no fuss about them. It's also one of my favorite books, so it's truly magical to see it come to life!!!!

We need to see more of crows and story!!!! Please renew it!!!!!!

This show has brought me so much joy in the past couple years. It's brought me to an amazing book series, a lovely community, and it's made me appreciate Netflix even more! I've even gotten friends hooked on it, and it's brought those friends and me closer together.

Shem, from North America

I'm from Ukraine. I discovered the Shadow and Bone a year before the war started. Read the books, binge-watched the show, multiple times. Even before the war, I've had a lot of challenges in my life, and never had those comfort show/book or fandom, where I could hide. Shadow and Bone gave me all this. When the war started and I was sitting in a bomb shelter, our Crows were sitting with me. I had the books with me, and downloaded episodes on Netflix app. We didn't know if we will have the Internet, and how long we will be sitting in those shelter under our house in Kyiv. Shadow and Bone was something, that held me together. It was the only thing from the normal life, the life, which was gone in one day. Kaz and Zoya gave me strength, Jesper and Nina made me smile, Matthias, Wylan and Mal helped me to stay calm and focused, Inej, Alina and Genya reminded me to have my faith strong and believe in the beauty of the world, no matter what. After the neighboring house was hit with the rocket, me and my family left to the safer part of the country, and then me, my mom and our cat went to Europe. I was struggling a lot mentally and physically, especially when my mom decided to come back to Ukraine and I ended up alone in Austria. I worked 12 hours, 6 days a week, and the show, the fandom, the books were my only comfort zone. Last year I met the cast for the first time at MagicCon. I finally talked to the people, who, even without knowing, helped me to survive, to climb out of those dark place where my life put me, and start feeling alive again. But what is most important - I met my best friends in the fandom, at the Con. This show, this fandom and these characters were my only amplifiers when I left my home and had to start a new life alone in a new country. They taught me not to give up, and now they continue to inspire me along the way.

THE THIRD
ARMY

THE THIRD ARMY

Being a part of The Third Army (if you know the show, you'll get the reference) means the world to us, as you can see on these pages. Shadow and Bone on Netflix has brought together fans both online and in person. Empire Conventions have held three 'A Storm of Crows and Shadows' (or ASOCAS) Shadow and Bone-specific conventions in Paris since 2022. Another show-specific convention, Starfury's 'Into the Fold' took place earlier this year in London. Due to its popularity, a second Into the Fold convention has been arranged for March 2025. Shadow and Bone actors are also in huge demand at multi-fandom events such as the massive 'MagicCon' in Bonn, Germany. Following a very successful debut by Shadow and Bone actors there last year, a number of the cast have been booked to appear at MagicCon in October 2024. Hundreds of fans travel from around the world to these and other conventions. This is a passionate fandom which spends thousands of dollars every year on conventions alone and has sold out some of the merch in Netflix's own online store. Imagine the merchandising Netflix could tap into when you go ahead with Shadow and Bone Season 3 and the Six of Crows spinoff?

There is a community surrounding Shadow and Bone for a reason, because the whole story of the Grishaverse is beautifully told with help from amazing actors and writers and producers and everyone behind the scenes. It's such an incredible, heartwarming, heartbreaking and breathtaking show that has become one of my favourite shows of all time. It's magnificent.

And last, but definitely not least, let's not forget about the fanbase. All the people devoted to saving the show with such great commitment. The efforts of the people wanting to make an impact gave me courage to write this message and make me feel proud for being - even if small- part of the whole campaign.

I was one of the first to sign the petition. Only 100 people had signed when I got to it. The amount of passion this fanbase has is incredible. In the first week, more than 5,000 people signed a day. It's been two months since you canceled, and there's already 200,000 signs. We have put together $13,882 to get a billboard in LA and London and a fan gathering in London.

We're stubborn. We won't give up. We want a last season and a Six of Crows spin-off.

Please. For all of our Third Army hearts, give us the third season and Six of Crows spin-off we deserve.

My friends and I have dedicated entire weeks to watching and rewatching this show analyzing every detail, fan-girling over the characters, and just going “oh my god this cast is amazing.” When we found out it was cancelled we were all heart broken. This show provides so much representation to so many underrepresented communities, and makes people feel included and heard. It has helped me meet new people, and see things from entirely new perspectives. It has helped me find a ton of new books/shows that I absolutely love now. It may seem we are all just desperate fans who have nothing better to do connected by one thing when in reality, we are an extremely diverse, passionate, and large fan base.

Netflix, you gave Shadow and Bone a chance. Our petition has reached such high numbers. We're even getting a billboard, for Saints' sake. If nothing else, remember the spinoff. But what we need right now is that season three. We're left at a cliffhanger, and it's impossible to let go. This is a beautiful story, and one you can't give up on.

With this show I got to go to conventions and meet, not only the actors, but also other fans that are so nice and that truly love this show. I know we were over a 1000 for both conventions, both almost sold out. People from all over the world were coming to Paris just for that because they, like me, lived the show and got to discover amazing people, I met a girl from Chicago that went there just to meet them, twice, because she loved the show! This proves that this show is loved.

When I first got into Shadow and Bone, after S1, I tried looking for fans online to share my enthusiasm with but had little luck there. By the time S2 aired I was even more excited about the show and so so happy that I did indeed find lots of fans on twitter. I was having quite a bad time with my health then, so the show was a welcome distraction, and it was awesome to learn there were books too. I binged the SOC duology immediately after S2 and then just had to find people to talk about it all with. Because of that, I've met some wonderful people I can now call friends, and we've made our own found family: understanding and supportive, there for each other when we need it. Just the right people that came at just the right time. I will also always be grateful that the show introduced me to Kaz Brekker—there being a young cane user, a character living with chronic pain, but who isn't defined solely by those things, was amazing to see on-screen. That was the disability representation I didn't know I needed so badly until it was there in front of me. And as someone queer, to see queer characters living in a world without any queerphobia was a breath of fresh air too. I really hope that we will get to see Kaz—as well as all the other brilliant characters who are great representation—back on screen again someday, because it would mean a great deal to so many people.

Dear Netflix,
Allow me to introduce myself. My name is Cris and I am responsible for the graphic design of the billboard, neverstopfighting.net website, this book's design and other visual assets for the campaign. My husband coded the website. I have not been alone for even an instant in the entire process, I have always had help, support and collaboration from way more people than you could imagine.

That being said, your actions and inaction have demonstrated an absolute lack of consideration and respect for your customers as much as for the cast and crew of this show, systematically ignoring our feedback and the achievements, acclaim and awards your own production has received. This tells me you don't actually care. We have proven beyond the shadow of a doubt that we are a loyal and passionate audience, and that we can and will give value and money, which seems to be the only language you understand. Yet nothing of that matters to you.

Why, then, have I been working so hard on a campaign you might ask? Because I do care about people, and more than two hundred thousand people have proven they are ready to fight. Their hope, creativity, kindness, love, support and humanity have been my fuel.

I will not even tell you what this show has meant to me. This book contains more than enough experiences than can tell you how valuable it has been.

I want to remind you that we, the people at the other side of the screen, are your customers and the ones that make a difference in your benefits. Treating us with such disdain, us and the many fans of the many shows you have and will cancel in the future, will only grant you our mistrust, disappointment and, when all is said and done, our subscription cancellations.

As a fan of the Grishaverse and one of many fellow barrel rats, I stand by Leigh Bardugo's words. We never stop fighting.

HOPES AND DREAMS

There are many parts of Leigh Bardugo's wonderful books that haven't yet been told on screen, and which will make for incredible television. Some of these stories have already been written into a script for Six of Crows. Others would continue the tales of incredible characters from the wider Grishaverse in Shadow and Bone Season 3 and beyond. Here are some of the things we are looking forward to when the shows go ahead.

Mary, from Europe

This show is one of the best not only on Netflix but ever and I think it would be an awful shame if we didn't get to see it pan out to its planned conclusion. As you have probably realised the fans are incredibly dedicated (because the books and show are so good!) - but not only that there are a great many of us: making a season three and a Six of Crows spinoff would be profitable. Also, the actors and honestly everyone involved in the production of the show are absolutely incredible - I will always be grateful for such an amazing adaptation, even if it is left unfinished. However, it shouldn't be cancelled because the talent of everyone involved is too perfect to not harness to finish this great show! Finally, it would be a crime to end the show where you have - with Matthias never meeting the others (except Nina, obviously) and Inej's story only just beginning, in a way. Do the right thing and don't check the potential of season three and the spinoff! No mourners, no funerals <3

*Delphi, from Europe

The attention to detail and the love that was poured into this show was very evident and I would love to see more. The promise of seeing all six of my crow children together on screen brought me so much happiness, and experiencing the grishaverse through the show was spectacular beyond my wildest dreams! Please make those dreams a reality by saving the show and giving us the chance to finally see the Six of Crows!

Bella, from North America

Shadow and Bone season 2 ending killed off my favorite character. I'd love for the character to be revived in season 3 like he is in the books. There was so much more that could have been done with his character like let him be King of Ravka! I need to see more of the Darkling!

Britt, from North America

The scripts have already been written, Eric Heisserer said there are plans to separate the six of crows spin-off, and I quote 'The eight-episode scripts are phenomenal and I'm really proud of my team for those.' All that work and dedication of good quality work and countless of hours go into something that should've gone out but didn't. Netflix keeps ending any show that's good or doesn't hit. Let shadow and bone, as well as Six of crows continue, let there be an actual ending and entice viewers.

Jonathan, from North America

There were so many more stories to tell, including delving into the rest of the Crows, Inej, Jesper, Wylan, Nina and Matthias because we barely scratched the surface with some of them and their stories matter too. It's not fair. This is a world we want and deserve to continue exploring and the amazing cast, writing team, Eric and especially Leigh Bardugo deserve to see it through as well. We never stop fighting. We are going to change the game. NMNF

I haven't read the "Shadow and Bone" series, but the "Six of Crows" one I have. When I saw the spinoff was cancelled, I was heartbroken. The ending of "Shadow and Bone" S2 was PERFECT for a continuation following the Crows, since jurda parem is part of the main plot for the first "Six of Crows" book. I feel there is so much of a story yet to tell through these amazing characters the Crows, especially through the way the actors portray them. It's like the characters in the books just sprang to life from the ink on the pages! Bringing back the actors and adding more to the Crows' story would be so amazing and I know fans of the "Shadow and Bone" series would also enjoy to have the "Six of Crows" spinoff. While I along with many others love "Shadow and Bone", a beginning of the Crows spinoff was never given to us. Lots of people are rooting for the Crows to come back, me being one of them. If given a chance, I really think bringing back the "Six of Crows" spinoff would leave "Shadow and Bone" viewers fulfilled.

Shadow and Bone has my favourite characters, the Crows. They have the most interesting backstories like how Inej is indentured to the Menagerie and how Kaz has dedicated his life to destroying Pekka Rollins. Their story is not over yet and we need another season or a spinoff for them to be explored.

Emily, from North America

Not only is everything so accurate and true to the books but it's also amazing how different plotlines got entwined in the end, leaving us with such a cliffhanger that absolutely NEEDS season 3. I'd like to see it happen, mostly because I'm still not ready to leave the characters and the story behind because it made my life better. I hope you bring it back. Sincerely, a huge SAB fan

Shadow and Bone is an amazing work of art that gets fantasy right! The world-building is incredible, and each of the (many) characters is so easy to fall in love with! With that said, poor Matthias has been imprisoned an entire season, and we need a season 3 or Six of Crows spin-off to know what finally happens with his character!

I've read a good portion of the Grishaverse books, and I've got to say that I enjoyed Six of Crows the most. Unfortunately, we haven't yet seen the events of that duology play out on screen, and that is what I was most looking forward to for any future Grishaverse on Netflix. So to hear that Netflix was canceling Shadow and Bone and any spinoffs (such as Six of Crows) was really disappointing for me.

Gino, from North America

The Shadow and Bone series has an incredible storyline, interesting characters and a real connection to main characters struggles. The Crows were the unlikely heroes and Alina struggled with the decision between love or destroy the darkness. At the end of the 2nd season, it was strange that Alina used dark magic. What happens next? Please continue this story.

Steven, from North America

What drew me in most of all was the tangible love the cast and crew put into every second and frame of this story, the costumes and sets, the directing and writing, the performances down to the last extra on the left, the sizzle reel for a spin-off that wasn't even greenlit yet. Please give these talented artists the chance to finish stories I've grown very attached to, filled with characters that live and breathe. They deserve to see it through.

Lena, from Europe

s.ere.n_00 via Instagram

Six of crows is my favorite book, most of the cast understands their character perfectly so not greenlit the spinoff is a waste of time and good potential. Shadow and bone needs to be concluded as well, a lot of people need a fantasy war story where it's not only brutal but optimistic as well, Zoya Nazyalensky and Alina Starkov deserve their whole story to be told.

Lili, from North America

Imagine my excitement when the final episode of season two (which had already introduced three of my favorites in Jordie, Wylan, and Nikolai) set up not only the Ice Court Heist and parem, but also Nikolai's demon and Sankta Lizabeta with the bee! I was so excited, as those two duologies are so cinematic, and I had been looking forward to seeing them on screen, acted by I think one of the best ensemble casts ever formed by a show.

I was really looking forward to seeing Zoya begin to work with Nikolai, to see what Genya did after David's death, to hear iconic lines, to see where Alina's story went, and, of course, to see the Crows all together for the very first time!...Not only this, but the last episode set up two of the most beloved duologies, and some of the most popular moments within the Grishaverse. Six of Crows would have been wildly successful, not only as a standalone, but also because it has the fanbase to back it up. It is the perfect, completed story that could easily be done within two seasons to tell the whole story, and be successful at that. It's a heist! It's a romance! It's a story of redemption, of representation, of the struggle to survive in a world that beats you down. And we will never get to see it when, in that last episode, we were promised it.

Cassidy, from North America

THE STORY ISN'T FINISHED AND I NEED THESE ACTORS TO COMPLETE THE STORY BECAUSE MY IMAGINATION CAN ONLY DO SO MUCH.

We love the Grishaverse, and especially Six of Crows, so it would mean so much to see the main events of the two most popular books in the franchise on our screens. Freddy, Jessie, Kit, Daisy, Cal, Paddy, Amita, Jack, and the rest of the cast all have our hearts! They, and the writers' very promising scripts, are ready and waiting if you'll give them a chance!

Elizabeth via Thankbox

I have laughed and cried, and squealed from excitement, because seeing these characters and these stories on the screen has been a dream come true. The Grishaverse contains so much representation (lgbtq, ptsd, overcoming abuse etc) and truly makes room for everyone, which is one of the things I like most about it. It may be full of magic and grand adventures, but it always has friendship and love at the core. People at the core. That is what makes it special, and what makes me ask you to reconsider your cancellation. Because there are still so many stories left to be told, if you would only let them. Love, the Grishaverse.

Dear Netflix,
I'm sure you have seen our love for both Shadow and Bone and Six of Crows and our desire to bring them back into production. Please let us have these beautiful stories out there on your platform. They deserve to be adapted and most of all, be finished. I want to see how Alina's story will end after the massive cliffhanger. She deserves a happy ending with Mal and the Crows deserve their own story in the spin-off for them. Nothing is lost especially when you can do something about it and bring even more fans to watch both of the shows.

Vlad via Thankbox

Shadow and Bone has given me characters I can deeply connect with, so to see Alina's story reach its conclusion, and watch the Crows take on the Ice Court would mean the world to me, and every other fan. The cast and crew worked so hard to bring this wonderful series to life, and we all deserve to see the character's stories continue.

Angie via Thankbox

Dear Netflix, I loved Shadow and Bone. I would love to see a third season. But also... Six of Crows is a unique fantasy story that focuses on a heist instead of a quest, and a found family of misfits instead of a chosen one. It focuses on skills and smarts over magical abilities. It's a story full of adventure, Danger, humour, romance and of course, crime! It has a diverse cast of characters who are all wonderfully human and flawed and fully realised, and therefore appeals to a wide audience. The already assembled cast are all perfect for their roles, the entire first season is written and there's a ready-made fan base just dying to see it brought to life. It's insanity not to make this show.

Emma via Thankbox

Dear Netflix,
Please Give us back the hopes of everything we were waiting for with the 3rd season of shadow and bone. It can't just end with so many unknowns.

Kim via Thankbox

Dear Netflix, the Grishaverse series is a series that keeps on giving. The characters keep on growing and just get better and better. It's a story of hope and overcoming hardships which as a theme resonates with people in our current society. To cut it short is devastating. To not allow the characters to reach their resolutions is heartbreaking.

astitchoutoftime via Instagram

It's disheartening that such a beautiful show was cut short on time and we'd love to see our favorite characters love and lose and win just as their stories are meant to continue. (i also want to see more wylan and wesper moments)!

Dear Netflix, please bring Shadow and Bone back! The Show was and is amazing! It shows, how important friends are and how strong you can be in a Bad situation! It shows, how much love you can have for the wrong person and how much love you have, to let the right person go! And now, we have this big plottwist and i want to know, how it ends! I watch it multiple times, because i will never get tired of the Grishaverse!

*milanda2011 via Instagram

There is something so special about the story that you brought to screen, and it'd be a shame to have let it end where it did—before it really started. There is still so much story left to adapt and bring to life on-screen, I can't even imagine the impact certain scenes will have when they finally come to play across our screens. I sincerely hope this series is given the ending it deserves.

NMNF via Thankbox

Seeing the books on screen has sent me through so many emotions, and when I watched the ending of season two, I knew that the potential to see the Six of Crows plot on screen was going to be amazing. The cancellation of the show was sad for so many people, including the actors.

Leigh Bardugo created an amazing universe with amazing messages, and she didn't deserve for her world to be cancelled. I love this world, the book and the show. It's story deserves to be finished. There's so many things that you didn't add that could've been shown (zoyalia, Matthias meeting the other crows and Alina's ending, just to name a few). No Mourners, No Funerals i

six_.ofcrows via Instagram

All of us, me, my parents, my friends, so many fans, were so disappointed and confused by it being cancelled. A beautiful adaptation such as this one deserves more story. It deserves more time for the characters to develop. It deserves to show more of the world building. It deserves another season.

fishfishfish_7 via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I had been intending to read Six of Crows for a long while, but hadn't gotten around to it. Then your Shadow & Bone was advertised to me, and oh man! I watched it, fell in love with the beautiful and dedicated cast, and immediately picked up the books. Now that duology is my favourite, and even though it can be hard to watch a show deviate from its books, I've loved watching your „AU“ interpretation. I know it's emotionally hard to rescind a decision, but please bring it back to us - the story was far from finished. <3

tatteredroots via Instagram

Shadow and Bone has been by far the most gripping and brilliantly done show that I have seen (in my opinion) on Netflix, if anywhere. The characters have such complex and wonderfully constructed personalities, and to see them grow and develop on screen (with them PERFECTLY cast no less) has been incredible, and I would hate to see their story end here, without a Season 3 or spin-off to continue their magic.

Hannah via Thankbox

Dear Netflix! Shadow and bone must've been the find that made my life amazing once i found it in 2022. The second season made me feel complete as we have a lot more Kanej scenes and a real introduction to Nina and Matthias! 2. The sad thing is, is that we have yet to see everyone's completed story. You shouldn't make a series if you can't finish it. No series should be left on a permanent cliff hanger. 3. We should never have to be waiting for an ending when we know there's a possibility we could never have one. It's easy to finish their story, or even give us the spin off. But instead of making a whole fandom of people happy, and despite having a full season script for the SOC spin off, you red lighted it.

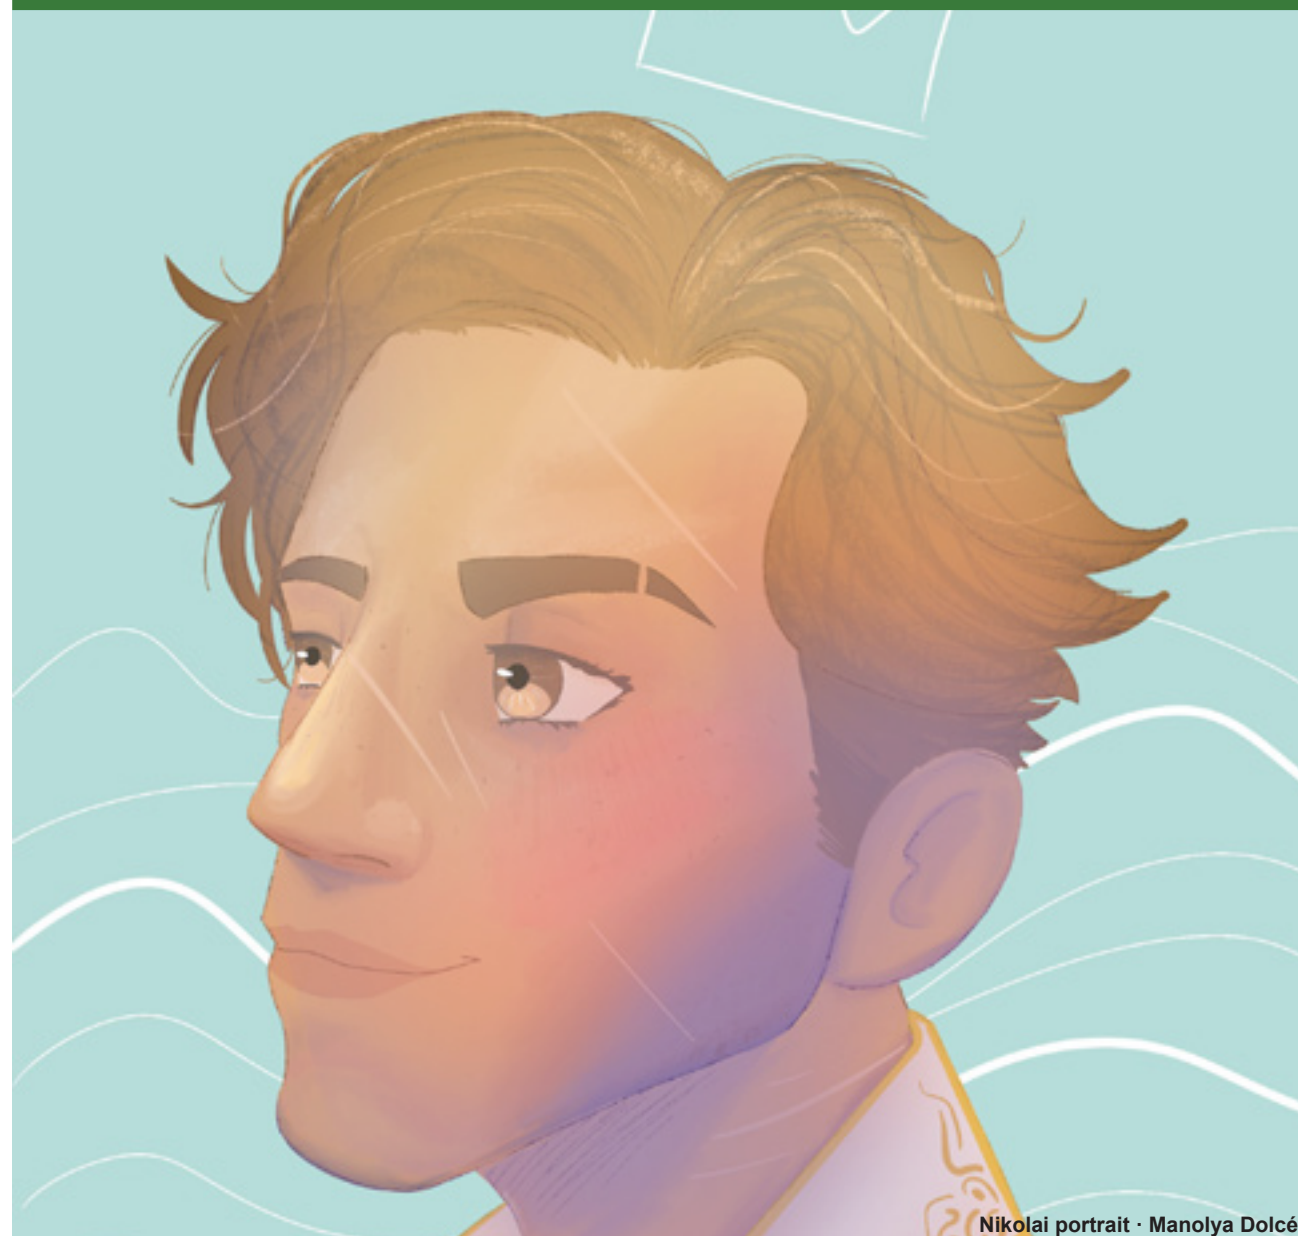

Maeve / freddycarterseyebrow, from Europe, via Instagram Story

When I heard there wouldn't be a renewal of the show or a spin off of Six of Crows I was devastated. I was so looking forward to seeing the crows pull off the ice court heist and being able to watch my favorite characters break into the ice court and escape on a stolen tank. I really hope and pray that you will change your minds and renew the series or make a spin off. So many fans like me are devastated by your abandonment of the grishaverse. I'm begging you to reconsider I know I and others would watch any series to come about the grishaverse so many times as there have already been many rewatches of the first two seasons. Please reconsider Netflix

Dear Netflix,
I cannot envision a world in which the Six of Crows masterpiece is not adapted into a series with our magnificent, pitch perfect cast. If not perfection, then what do you want to adapt? I cannot envision a world in which Game of Thrones and House of the Dragon give us magnificent dragon queens only to murder them by the end of the story. That's why the King of Scars duology is different. Adapt it to Shadow and Bone season 3 and give us Sujaya Dasgupta as the first living dragon queen in today's fantasy adaptations! You want a crown jewel for your portfolio and here is your opportunity!

Netflix is onto a winner with this franchise and there are huge benefits to you as a company when taking the Grishaverse forward. You've seen the statistics, engagement and awards for the show so far, and there are lots more reasons why it's good for business to continue the franchise; here are just a few.

Dear Netflix, Please, please, please- for the sake of the fandom, for the sake of finishing the story, for the sake of the viewership and money that a new season of shadow and bone would make you... please.

Rowan via Thankbox

Dear Netflix, I have genuine friendships that started with a joint love for Shadow & Bone. Shows with that much diversity, hilarity, and future potential are so rare! These are characters we care about; please don't go down in history as the company that robbed us of Julie & the Phantoms, Lockwood & Co, AND Shadow & Bone. Just saying, it's not a good sign when a company keeps canceling shows with so much non-white representation...Your move, Netflix.

ali_euphoria via Instagram

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone is worth saving not only for it's social media reach(which is considerable) or it's vibrant direction and storytelling or even it's potential to create millions in revenue in first-time and rewatch viewership for your company. All of that aside this shows diversity in casting and in character is the most important selling point. Because by continuing to make content like this you are showing the next generation that your values align with theirs, that you are not obsolete, that you aren't just looking for money but that you care about art and progressive movements in culture. Also the money thing(there would be like so so so much money in that too). Best wishes, a current Netflix subscriber

Best show I've seen on Netflix. Also the only reason I renewed my subscription was to watch it.

Anonymous, from Europe

We all know Netflix craves popular IP and by finally splitting Shadow and Bone in two, the overall quality will only get better and there'll be more consistent Grishaverse releases to keep casual fans engaged. The fandom is already pretty big, but with the full support of Netflix behind it, the numbers will only continue to grow. There'll always be financial risk, but the potential upside cannot be ignored. Think about it.

Dear netflix, there are only handful of stories nowadays that are original, interesting and complex. You were lucky enough to get your hands on one of them. Leigh Bardugo created such a beautiful universe and it is a home for many. We don't have stories like that anymore, at least they don't get adapted these days which is why we were all so grateful for the Shadow and bone show. Each character impersonates a great quality, has a depth but also shows pain, remorse and real problems, despite the fantasy setting. Please please please give them another chance, give US another chance to prove you how much we love this show. However, you have decided to cancel these projects (just like you canceled Inside Job) and everything that motivated me to continue being part of your clientele left with these broken promises. Hi Netflix! It is so rare that YA fantasy (or fantasy for women as I like to call it) is adapted with such care and respect as you have done with the Shadow and Bone series. It is so common that people write off whatever teenage girls like as unimportant. With the six of crows-duology, we actually have a story that is not build on tropes, is not preachy and contains characters that people can relate deeply to. If you ever doubt how much we love these characters, you just need to take one look at social media. I personally read the books during a tough time in my life, and even though the characters all have very dark backgrounds, I found so much comfort in them. As Kaz Brekker thinks at one point in the book: "There was no part of him that was not broken, that had not healed wrong, and there was no part of him that was not stronger for having been broken. ". It would be such a shame to waste the opportunity to adapt it. Six of Crows is the best YA book out there and it simply deserves to get an even bigger audience than it already has.

Dear Netflix,
Please let the creators of Shadow and Bone finish the story. There are SO MANY important narratives from the series that remain unexplored on screen. Six of Crows, in particular, is a fan favorite. The characters are just so richly realized and we have the PERFECT cast on deck ready to go to bring them to life. If you are just worried about the bottom line, I hope you realize that the Crows would bring in new viewers. But I hope you also worry about more than the bottom line. In this data-driven industry, don't lose sight of the vital importance of storytelling. It is what makes us human. I hope you realize just how much the world loves these characters, these worlds, and these stories.
No Mourners

Ashlynn via Thankbox

Dear Netflix, I usually have a hard time nowadays finding good quality fantasy media, and the Grishaverse is exactly that. Well developed characters brought to the screen by perfect casting and a talented & motivated team is such a rare thing nowadays, I found myself rewatching S&B again and again (even though I'm not one of the people who do that frequently!). Cancelling it will only result in a lot of fantasy fans leaving netflix for good, especially after multiple netflix-based book adaptations with horrible ratings (witcher, faith, etc). As a fantasy fan I was so happy about Shadow and Bone, now I'm equally sad about it getting cancelled.

pankaau via Instagram

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone was the reason I paid for you, and your cancellation of the show was the reason I cancelled my subscription. It is such an incredible story that is a comfort to so many people around the world (as seen by its high ratings, dedicated fandom, and ability to stay in the top 10 long after its release), it has an amazing cast and crew that are all so passionate about the show and put so much hard work into making it as incredible as it is, and is a rich and magical world that still has so many more stories and adventures to share with us. Its cancellation was by no means a fair or reasonable one, and the fans, the cast and crew, and the characters all deserve to properly finish the story they started.

pansoriion via Instagram

It's just such a good show! It's got so much potential and I honestly just think it's unfair to cancel a show that had potential for more seasons, a spin off series (which I'd argue could grow even more popular than S&B) and that is still remained unfinished. I love all the characters and their dynamic and the plot never fails to hook me. What else can I say? :)

Luna, from Europe

Dear Netflix, The Grishaverse has been the sole reason I've been watching anything on Netflix. This show, the actors, the production, etc. breathed a breath of new life into Netflix's tv series. I barely used my subscription because everything kept being cancelled or not renewed or just downright bad; but the grishaverse changed that up. Watching these books come to life has truly been something special, and sharing these experiences via watch party's with friends (or re-watches alone while doing homework) have meant the world to me. Don't cancel a popular show series, especially when there are many more stories to be told that WE ALL would love to see told.

pbandjess22 via Instagram

Dear Netflix, This story has a diverse cast and compelling plot. It is a narrative with integrity which has been constructed with the finest craftsmanship. It would be a shame to let such latent potential go to waste. Clearly there's a large and devoted fanbase, I'd contend there's nothing that could derive from this renewal but the potential for that audience to grow even larger. Make the right choice!

PRIYANKA, FROM NORTH AMERICA ”

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone has been one of the most life-changing experiences of my life. I'm in a lot of fandoms but never have I met a fandom so passionate, so united, so DARING as to start a campaign with little hope and turn it into something marvellous. That says so much about the show and the world Leigh Bardugo created that Eric Heisserer was able to adapt for the screen. Shadow and Bone filled its world with diversity and representation that is lacking in fantasy across the board. Casting Alina as a female, Asian, YA protagonist means more to me than I could ever explain. Not just Jessie's casting, but also the way the writers took care to change Alina's character too. Shadow and Bone, aside from a few issues, was gold. Perfect lightning in a bottle. The way the audience has rallied around the cast, and the way the cast has accepted the audience's love, is something not every book adaptation cast receives. The relationship between the crew and cast of a show to their audience determines how the future of that show will go on. You had such a perfect connection born from love and diversity. Shadow and Bone was pure magic, the type every author, reader, and fandom member wants. Cancelling it, on the cusp of adapting one of YA Fantasy's greatest hits and most popular duologies, DOES NOT MAKE SENSE. I understand business decisions take many factors into account, but take into account the audience Shadow and Bone has grown, the industry nominations the show has been awarded, the reception our campaign has received and TAKE ANOTHER LOOK. This is a universe you cannot waste. You had a dedicated cast, crew, and fandom. This is the type of unity every platform wants from its shows. Shame on you for not recognizing that.

Arya, from North America

It is also good for business for Netflix to invest more in shows instead of cancelling them all. Shows need time to grow and audience and a show like this one had the potential to grow so much more than it already did. Can you imagine, Six of Crows is one of the most popular book series still, even though it has been published for years. And many fans of Six of Crows don't even know about its relationship to Shadow and Bone, can you imagine how many new viewers you would get if you made Six of Crows! Six of Crows is cheaper to make, of course, and the scripts are already written and the beloved cast is also ready to go, which means that this show can start production quickly.

missingjussipo via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I have only recently started watching Shadow and Bone but I can say that it is already one of the best series I have watched on your platform. I would like it to continue to see how you interpret and capture the books on the screen. It would be a great win for the fandom, watchers across the world, and anyone who just love the thrill of a fantasy world if this series would continue. You can't just leave everyone on a cliffhanger, no one likes that.

Mercedes, from North America

Shadow and Bone is such a great series! I have a lot of trouble finding tv shows that I actually like and every time I do they get cancelled, so please don't cancel this one too, I'm getting desperate. Shadow and Bone as a great story, great characters and great visuals! It's such a good adaptation of the books and it would be a SHAME to throw it away before getting to at least the Six of Crows plot because it was about to get even better. And the fact that Nikolai and Zoya relationship didn't even get a chance to appear on screen is a loss for all humanity.

Rochelle, from North America

I only found this show a week ago to find out it was already cancelled, I mean come on! This show is brilliant, the actors are so good and to hear that my favorite part of it all the six of crows was ready to have a spin off makes it even more crazy that things didn't work out. I mean please give this another chance there will be more people like me who discover these shows late and fall completely in love with them I realllly want to see the six of crows more than anything on netflix

Kimberly, from Europe

Netflix, the way you portrayed Shadow and Bone was incredible. It was so incredibly realistic with what I pictured in my head, I couldn't have made it any better if I tried. The sets were amazing, the characters true to their book selves, and the way you even brought the Crows in was genius! This is by far my favorite show out there, and I can hardly imagine going onto Netflix and not seeing it in my 'Continue Watching.' Please, for all our sakes, bring it back!

Cheyenne, from North America

It continues to break my heart even nearly two months after the cancellation that in order to prevent our favourite shows from the horrible fate of being scrapped, we had to fight with tooth and nail just to prove that Shadow and Bone deserved to be renewed and to get the Crows' spin-off when not only has the show represented groups of people not often put in the spotlight in exciting ways and given hope and comfort to lots of people with its story and characters, but the numbers prove that Shadow and Bone had everything to continue its story, and Leigh, Eric, the cast, and the writers (the crew too) didn't deserve to be ignored like that for so many months, and neither do we deserve to be ignored now for something that we should've gotten. As Kaz Brekker said, „We never stop fighting,“ and that's what lots of us are planning to do, because Shadow and Bone and the Grishaverse are more than just a show and a history: they're home.

Sofia, from South America

Dear Netflix, When I first discovered the grishaverse fandom in 8th grade, I expected to enjoy the series, given that it had already been popular for years. But what I didn't expect was for the Six of Crows duology to become one of, if not my favorite book series of all time; one that I'm still a huge fan of to this day. I'm a college student now, and this show and the spinoff series mean the world to me. Leigh's books offer incredible positive representation for people of color, the LGBTQIA+ community, people with disabilities, people with mental illness or addiction, survivors of abuse, and more. Not only has the show done Leigh's books justice in terms of this representation, but the writers have expanded upon it by casting an Asian woman as Alina, the leading character. The cast is also wonderful across the board in terms of representing their characters in both looks and personality, which is something rarely achieved by book-to-screen adaptations. By cancelling this show and the Six of Crows spinoff, you are not only taking opportunities away from an incredible cast and crew who have poured their hearts and souls into this project, but also from millions of fans who hold this series near and dear to their hearts. In supporting this show with all of our beings, we have given YOU our support as well— it seems both illogical and cruel to suddenly stab this fandom and their creators in the back. Please, Netflix, bring our show back. Bring back Alina, and our beloved crows. Bring back Leigh Bardugo, the writing team, and the amazing cast and crew. We all deserve better. No mourners!

This show means so much to so many people, and I desperately wish for it to come back. So many people would be so very glad that crows would skyrocket, and you would make quite a bit of money. Continuing these very impactful shows would make many people's lives so much brighter, and would be profitable to you. Please give us back these character that mean so very much to so very many people.

Shadow and Bone has only scratched the surface of what this universe has to offer, and it would be a disservice to both the fans and the incredible material to leave it unfinished. If given the opportunity, „Shadow and Bone“ has the potential to become an iconic and long-lasting series that will transcend its original fanbase to captivate even more viewers worldwide. The immense success of other fantasy series, both on Netflix and beyond, is a testament to the demand and appetite for such content. In conclusion, I respectfully request that Netflix reconsider and reverse the decision to cancel „Shadow and Bone.“ The show has proven its ability to capture the hearts and minds of viewers, and with the continuation of its production, it has the potential to become a cultural phenomenon. I, along with countless other passionate fans, eagerly await any news that may indicate the revival of this magnificent series. Thank you for your time and consideration. I sincerely hope that you take into account the immense support that „Shadow and Bone“ possesses and reevaluate the decision to cancel this truly remarkable show. Please, let the Grishaverse continue to thrive on our screens.

Please also consider continuing to work on the Six of Crows spin-off that was in the works! It would be much appreciated by fans of Leigh Bardugo's books all around the world.

AJ, from North America

It is too bad that Netflix decided to stop the show when there is so much more to explore and to picture. It is too bad that Netflix paid for the rights to adapt the books into a series, that people liked it and watched it and that they just stopped, out of nowhere, probably for financial reasons. We pay you to watch your content, and this is what we get.. I'm honestly a bit upset, because you already canceled another unique and very beautiful show, Sense8. The way you choose shows is not about art or entertainment and I think it should be.

Chloé, from Europe

Netflix struck gold with this show and I'd hate to see it not be given a chance to continue, or at least to be given a proper conclusion. The Six Of Crows spinoff as well would bring in a huge audience. Please consider letting the already written script see the light of day. Doing so would show the world that you really do listen to and care about your customers. And you would have a pretty loyal fanbase on your side forever afterwards. Thank you for two incredible seasons. If you truly don't want to continue telling this story, please please sell the rights so that someone else can. I promise the demand is there.

Madeline, from Asia

Leigh Bardugo's Grishaverse series are some of the best contemporary YA novels out there. The decision Netflix initially made to adapt 'Shadow and Bone' and 'Six of Crows' was extremely smart. Objectively, these novel series have a major following and an extremely dedicated fan base. Viewership was guaranteed and the writers had amazing source material. The result was a visually and thematically stunning intersection of Grishaverse stories that brought new adventures to beloved characters. The decision to cancel the show after two seasons has disappointed not only fans, but the actors, writers, and crew as well. The love and commitment these people had for the characters/this story translates through the screen. It is devastating to deny them the opportunity to continue exploring their stories. Season three of 'Shadow and Bone', as well as the pre-written 'Six of Crows' spinoff, is something that fans, cast, and crew are all still holding their breath for. Please consider rescinding the cancellation decision and/or selling the rights to a studio who can pick up where Netflix has left off. We appreciate all that Netflix has done to get this show to where it is. We only want to see 'Shadow and Bone' flourish and to have a chance to see these stories to the end. Thank you!

Shadow and Bone was so good it was literally nominated for an Emmy! You can clearly see by now that the fan base is huge and a lot of us would devour merch if you made it available and promoted it. Also, its 2024, book adaptations made with the cooperation of the author are a big deal. You are for real only shooting yourselves in the foot here. Fandom is large, powerful, and throws money at things they like. For real why on earth would you not ride this wave? Its basically free money

DEAR NETFLIX, SHADOW AND BONE IS A SHOW THAT TRANSPORTS PEOPLE TO A WHOLE 'NOTHER WORLD. IT'S A DIVERSE SHOW WITH CHARACTERS OF ALL DIFFERENT BACKGROUNDS. IT'S A SOURCE OF ESCAPISM FOR MANY AND ENABLES OTHERS TO SEE THE CHARACTERS THEY HOLD SO DEAR ON THE BIG SCREEN. IT HAS AN IMMENSELY STRONG FANBASE AND RENEWING THE SHOW, HECK EVEN GIVING THE CROW CLUB A SPIN OFF WOULD BENEFIT NOT ONLY THE FANS BUT ALSO YOUR COMPANY. NO MOURNERS, NO FUNERALS.

Hey Netflix!! Shadow and Bone is my favourite show in the whole world. I love the books it's based on and I thought the film adaptation was done SO well!! I was (and am still hoping to) looking forward to season three but especially the Six of Crows spinoff series. I wonder to myself all the time what these would have consisted of from the book series and also what Netflix would've added in of their own. Please bring back Shadow and Bone (and possibly Six of Crows spinoff) and show everyone how amazing it truly is and can be with the Netflix twist!!!

M, from North America

If you were wondering how the show became the 10th most googled show of 2023, all I need to tell you is: a lot of people were looking forward to news about season 3. A lot.

I have been equally looking forward to the six of crows spin-off, especially because the scripts are already written! (And by the way, did you know that heist stories are all the rage right now and that six of crows would be perfect for meeting the demand!)

These stories are amazing and powerful and diverse and they mean so much to do many people (a lot of people, considering the petition reached nearly 200,000 people in just two months) I would also like to remind you that this show was the 15th most watched show the first half of 2023. That has to be an impressive accomplishment that shows that there certainly is high demand for a next season.

I hope you will hear the voices of thousands of fans telling you the story is not done yet and give the show the ending it deserves.

Roos, from Europe

Shadow and Bone has also become symbolic to me of the way Netflix treats its fans. The sheer number of unfinished shows on Netflix these days, especially sci-fi and fantasy, leaves me with little desire to invest time in something new. If even a high-profile Netflix original based on a best-selling series of books can't be given a decent send-off? Well, that's a major break of trust and perhaps a sign that I should move on from this streaming service. By undoing your decision and giving us more Shadow and Bone or at least the already-written Six of Crows spin-off, it would go a long way in restoring that trust. Please save Shadow and Bone. Bring the light!

I was genuinely surprised at how much I not just enjoyed – but loved – watching Shadow and Bone. I hadn't read the trilogy or the Six of Crows duology, but I wanted more from the tv series because the unfinished two season story was not enough to satisfy my interests, so I devoured the books too. And I'm so glad I did because now I can look forward to watching these all these characters' highs and lows adapted on screen.

Why do I like it? The adventure, the fantasy, the romances. Rich characters with deeply compelling stories to tell. The costume designs, too. The Six of Crows characters hold a special place in my heart. They may struggle with their own individual problems, but together they are powerful, unstoppable. Their traumas aren't healed, but they are helped while supported by the right people. That's a powerful message. Six of Crows isn't a love story, but it's clear that the characters all love one another and that's the real heart of what makes their story so special. Friendship, found family, and romantic love are very present themes shown six times over in six unique ways. There's something very special about that that makes me come back to the books and Shadow and Bone tv show.

Shadow and bone is honestly the most incredible show. It includes everything I could dream of for a tv series; diversity, amazing cast, spectacular acting, and so much more. The moment I found out it was cancelled my heart shattered. The show I love, the show I have obsessed over for so long, the show that made me confident and comfortable. It was done. But now I realise, it isn't. The grishaverse will fight, we will continue fighting until there is nothing left of us. You hold the power, so do something please. Do something for the hundreds of thousands of people who adore this show, who need this show. We need this show, so please, I'm begging you, renew it. Don't let Alina's story go untold, don't let the crows's story go untold. No mourners, no funerals, that includes for a tv show.

Zara, from Australia

Kaz · Galaxy Night

So, then. It seems we have found ourselves here, in the wake of cancellation, as so many other shows do. I always wanted to be a writer, and reading Leigh Bardugos books inspired me to pursue it more seriously than just a dream. But now, seeing how those at the top treat creative minds, seeing how streaming services scrap work at a moment's notice, I'm not so sure. I don't want to have my dream be canceled, not like this was.

So when the show first aired, I had felt giddy in the way a child does right before ripping into the wrapping paper of a gift. Shadow and Bone was my everything. I'd turn it on to watch when I couldn't get out of bed because of my failing health. The characters and their struggles helped me get through my own hardships. Heck, I only met some of my closest friends through talks about this show. This show matters to me, and it always will. That won't change regardless of if it's renewed or not. What WILL change is my belief in the industry. My excitement for the future. My faith in Netflix adaptations. I'm not begging for a renewal just because I am selfish and want to see my favorite characters, I'm begging for a renewal because this story isn't over, and it deserves a proper end. We deserve our proper end. Don't deprive us of it when we were so close to perfection.

Darien (psychichomie), from North America

Was very sad to see you cancel it as I was curious about how you'd continue it and build on it. I wasn't expecting you do a supernatural or vampire diaries with loads and loads of series, but was excited to see how Eric's plan would have gone for it and the spin off. It saddens me to think you've cut off the show where you had, and makes me sad on all the cliffhangers you left at the end of season 2. It just makes it seem unfinished, and makes me sad you did this to a show I was really enjoying and got me back into watching stuff on your streaming service after not really clicking with anything you've produced. Makes me sad because everytime I try to get into something, I find out its now being renewed or that's how it's ended. Is there nothing you could do for the fans of the show and the amazing cast you chose for this project?

Dear Netflix, please do the right thing and give us Shadow and Bone season three and the Six of Crows spin off. The story, character and world building is just amazing and you can't let it die. You found the perfect cast for this show - they don't play their characters...they ARE the person they're portraying on screen. The show gave my friends and me a home. Helped me find my found family and I am grateful for them every single day. So please change your mind and give us more. More of this wonderful show. More of the characters we fell for. More of the persons we identify with. Please give more people the chance to fall in love with those stories and people and find their own found families.

Alina via Thankbox

SHADOW AND BONE-SIX OF CROWS are the best series and the best book saga, I loved it because its story is perfect and very well structured. I'm a big fan of Grishaverse, especially Inej Ghafa, and I think all the other fans owe us season 3 since we've been waiting for a long time and seeing the news that she wasn't going to release it was like a crush on my heart, I started to cry because the truth was I was super sad and well I hope you take it out to heal all the broken hearts that there are.

Just want to say a huge thank you to the actors the show writers, Eric the show runner and of course Leigh. We love you. I had the chance of meeting them in ASOCAS and they are the nicest and most interesting people I have ever met. It breaks my heart to think that they won't work together again (but they will, we will make it work). And thank you Leigh, for creating those characters and this universe. I fell in love with Nina character, I suffered for years from eating disorder and Nina helped me so much to love myself and gave me so much confidence. So thanks for that.

Dear Netflix,
Please, please, please- for the sake of the fandom, for the sake of finishing the story, for the sake of the viewership and money that a new season of shadow and bone would make you... please.

We love the Grishaverse, and especially Six of Crows, so it would mean so much to see the main events of the two most popular books in the franchise on our screens. Freddy, Jessie, Kit, Daisy, Cal, Paddy, Amita, Jack, and the rest of the cast all have our hearts! They, and the writers' very promising scripts, are ready and waiting if you'll give them a chance!

Elizabeth via Thankbox

The Grishaverse is so diverse with such great actors and storylines that it would be a disservice to everyone that loves it to discontinue this incredible franchise. The show, the books, the characters, the cast, and the fandom mean so much to so many people that letting this many people down by not allowing them more time with characters they adore would be so wrong. Everything about the Grishaverse makes it so real and I for one absolutely adore everything that comes with it: The heartbreak, the near-misses, the building disasters. These are the things that life is filled with, but life is better when you get to spend it with the best found families that have been created within the fantasy genre.

No mourners.

Dear Netflix,
Shadow & Bone deserves to continue as a show. Between the representation of the characters, the absolutely stunning performances by the cast, and the story unfolding, this show has had an impact on SO many fans. Shadow and Bone, as well as Six of Crows, mean the world to me. The books allow so many people to feel seen, because of how inclusive and diverse the cast is.

Kuwei deserves to be seen. These stories are so much more than just words and deserve more than this. These characters and their stories have helped so many people find themselves. They have given people hope when they thought there was none. They make us feel seen and represented no matter our background, race, gender, sexuality, beliefs, strengths, weaknesses, disabilities, abilities, dreams, and everything we have yet to discover. Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone is perfect to teach people what's Emotional Intelligence and Resilience is all about. Innocence & Experience, Enabling & Disabling, Childhood & Adulthood, Love & Manipulation, Losing & Finding, Ordinary & Extraordinary and it goes on. Without conclusions that's incomplete. The world n societies needed what you just happened to give. Being able to teach people regardless of age what they consciously perhaps less likely to do is fun and novel task. Please do not deprive your platform of such golden opportunity and do the needful.

The characters of Shadow and Bone and Six of Crows have brought so much joy to my life, and getting to watch their stories unfold on screen has been the most amazing experience. I was captivated reading the books, and the show has been everything I've hoped it would be. Shadow and Bone has given me characters I can deeply connect with, so to see Alina's story reach its conclusion, and watch the Crows take on the Ice Court would mean the world to me, and every other fan. Dear Netflix, I loved Shadow and Bone. I would love to see a third season. But also... Six of Crows is a unique fantasy story that focuses on a heist instead of a quest, and a found family of misfits instead of a chosen one. It focuses on skills and smarts over magical abilities. It's a story full of adventure, Danger, humour, romance and of course, crime! It has a diverse cast of characters who are all wonderfully human and flawed and fully realised, and therefore appeals to a wide audience. The already assembled cast are all perfect for their roles, the entire first season is written and there's a ready-made fan base just dying to see it brought to life. It's insanity not to make this show.

The Shadow and Bone series brought together such an incredible cast and crew that endeared themselves to all of us. As with any adaptation, there's bound to be changes--but through some miracle, the main roles were all cast perfectly and they embodied their characters so thoroughly that I couldn't even be mad at any of the differences. They DELIVERED. Having their stories reach so many more people and give viewers the opportunity to connect with their experiences was truly a gift.

Reading the Six of Crows duology for the first time gave me the courage to really live my life. Years later, in early 2023, looking forward to the release of season 2 was the only thing keeping me going day-to-day during a rough patch. The resilience of their characters inspired me and gave me strength to continue.

There is something so special about the story that you brought to screen, and it'd be a shame to have let it end where it did--before it really started. There is still so much story left to adapt and bring to life on-screen, I can't even imagine the impact certain scenes will have when they finally come to play across our screens.

I sincerely hope this series is given the ending it deserves.

I got into the Grishaverse when I was 16 in 2020. I fell love with the world and the characters. I feel at home in the Grishaverse. I loved seeing the characters and storylines come to life and would love to see them continue to come to life. I have never been as excited for a book adaptation than i was for Shadow and Bone. Over the years, the show and books have continued to bring me comfort. I watched the first season twice in the first weekend it was released. Shadow and Bone has been by far the most gripping and brilliantly done show that I have seen (in my opinion) on Netflix, if anywhere. The characters have such complex and wonderfully constructed

Dear Netflix,
I want to tell you how much I love Shadow and Bone, how much the show and the characters and the story mean to me, but I don't think I will ever find the right words to express just how deeply I love them.
The show is more than just another fantasy story. It is a story full of diversity and representation of all kinds. It is a story that helped me and countless others to feel seen and appreciated. It is a story of hope, a story of finding the light to fight the dark (literally) and it is beautiful.
It deserved more than what it got.
I loved the way the story managed to adapt characters from two very different series, and I love how they set up the ending to continue both with season 3, that would differ from the books and with the beloved Six of Crows spinoff. To that I was really looking forward.
This story has brought me so much, joy, hope, light, it allowed me to meet many wonderful new people. A story about a found family helped me find my own found family.
It is a story that had so much more to tell, so much more people wanted to hear.
As one of the most amazing characters once said, "hope is the wind that comes from nowhere and carries you home."
I still hope for a better future for this show. And I will never stop fighting.
All the love, no mourners, no funerals.

Dear Netflix!
Please renew Shadow And Bone and green light the Six Of Crows spin-off. The characters, especially the Crows, are very important to me and many others and we want to see their stories on screen. Please reconsider your decision
Sandra, from Europe - "Please give us the Six of Crows Spinoff"

Shadow and Bone matters to me because it is one of the most original and inventive fantasy stories in recent years. The Grishaverse has such interesting worldbuilding, and very three-dimensional, well-rounded characters that are easy for viewers to be passionate about. The Grishaverse as a whole is very engaging, and interacting with it will almost always lead to becoming invested in the stories and characters very quickly.
Anonymous, from North America

I fell in love with shadow and bone because of the esthetic. It was so beautiful and special. And it has everything we like in a good fantasy show, the costumes, the action, the betrayal, the emotion, the beauty of the special effect. But t'I think the thing I like the most is the cast. I had the chance to meet them during a convention, and they are the nicest and most interesting people on earth. It break my heart to think that they might never work together again, given that they all have such a special bound with each other and lot of loves for their characters.
Camille, from Europe - "No Mourners, No Funerals"

The main reason I loved Shadow and Bone is because of the main concept hidden behind the Small Science and the fact that Grisha stay healthy, beautiful and live a long life as long as they use their powers constantly - it means that you're the best version of yourself when you're not hiding who you are, and doing what you love and what you're born for is only going to make you stronger and not the other way around. I've never seen another show, book or movie do this concept, so it was really good to see it. And above all, it is developed in a show with so much diversity in it - we have disabled, POC and queer characters, we have all sorts of diverse relationships and a really good dynamic between light and darkness, Alina and the Darkling. This story saved my life when I had given up on all kinds of beliefs in love and friendship, it was there for me when nothing and no one else was, and I will never not be grateful for that. I can for sure claim that this is the case for so many other people out there, and they all deserve to see the end of this beautiful story. We want to see Alina and Mal getting their happily ever after, we want to see Nikolai and Zoya turning Ravka into a better place for both Grisha and Otkazat'sya, we want to see the Crows get together and go to the Ice Court, we want to see Kaz buying Inej her own ship and finding her family, we want to see Hanne Brum and their relationship with Nina Zenik, we want to see The Darkling's comeback, we want to see Alina's full potential unfold and her darker side that's never been explored to this day, we want to see more of every single character and story, because they're more than just characters in a show for us. Shadow and Bone is more than a show. It's something that holds us all together, it's something that helps us out when nothing else can, it's something can make people feel important in a world where everyone can feel useless at any time. The diversity in this show proves that anyone can be a hero, that anyone can be the Chosen One, despite their race, sexuality, identity, etc. We want our characters back. We want our show back. We want it all back.

Nina, from Europe - "I'm paying for life if they renew the show and the spinoff"

Dear netflix,
I absolutely loved watching one of my favourite book series be brought to life by the incredible cast of Shadow and Bone. These books were so beautifully written by Leigh Bardugo and mean so much to me so it was heartbreaking to see the show cancelled, especially with so many unfinished plot lines. The show gave me something to look forward to and let me connect with other fans discussing it. It gave me something to bond with my sister over as we loved watching it together and I would definitely say that it's my favourite show on netflix. I would love to see a Six of Crows spin off because the Six of Crows duology is a personal favourite of mine as all the characters have so much depth to them and I would love to see the actors explore this, either in another season of Shadow and Bone where we can see possible interactions with characters from the trilogy or in a spin off focused solely on the crows.
Emma, from Europe

Shadow and Bone (and the Grishaverse) is a show about found family, something that everyone wishes.
Aly, from Europe

Hi Netflix! Just wanted to say that one of the reasons Shadow and Bone means so much to me is that it's one of a few things I can still share with my younger sister. We have such opposite personalities and interests that it's rare and special when we are both get invested in the same fandom. Please consider either bringing the Grishaverse back, or at least selling the rights to someone who can.
Elizabeth, from North America

Because is the first series that I really love on your platform with a great plot and interesting characters.
Bianca, from Europe - "Do not remove the only fantasy show that really matters."

Shadow and Bone has been my comfort TV show from the start, I instantly fell in love with all the diversity the show has to offer no matter if in heritage, sexual preference, disability, victims of violence or addiction! I feel seen and belonging with this show and fandom and I am sure a lot of others do to what is very rare these days. Please Netflix don't take that away from the fans but also the incredible cast, crew and even more from Leigh who put her whole everything into this story. Please reconsider and don't leave our stories unfinished as I believe all stories deserve a proper ending. So please save Shadow and Bone and the Six of Crows Spinoff or at least sell the rights because this story deserves to be continued and be given the time to grow. Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Marisa, from Europe - "We never stop fighting!"

I found family and new friends. Shadow and Bone give me so much! Comfort and a new fandom that i love. The cast is so kind and lovely. Shadow and Bone is one of my favorite series. Because i love Fantasie. And i love Six of Crows. They made Shadow and Bone so perfect.

Saskia, from Europe - "Netflix please give us Shadow and Bone back!"

I first found out about Shadow and Bone show shortly after I've read the books. It was when my life situation wasn't very good and I felt very bad in those days. After I started watching S&B, from the very beginning it just felt like a comfort place for me, about an hour daily of just pure relax for myself. I was also so happy to see characters from one of my absolutely favourite books on screen. The actors were the best possible choices - just like I've imagined them to look in my head! I loved the series from the very first minutes and I would really, really love to see it all again in more episodes <3

Gabby!, from Europe

As someone who up until watching Shadow and Bone had never read the books, the series inspired me to read all of the Grishaverse books I could lay my hands on. The stories, the characters, the plots were incredibly well done in the show so to then go and read more about them in the books I was so happy! The Shadow and Bone and Six of Crows combination in the show just work so well to enable people to access all of the Grishaverse in one show! I've also connected with so many fans as a result of this show and it's been lovely to discuss why these characters mean so much to everyone.

Sophie, from Europe

My friend introduced me to the books and getting to see them come to life together was wonderful. She got so excited about the casting when the second season was announced and once I'd watched it I understood why. I rewatched the second season with her and another friend as our escape from revision when we were taking A-Levels. I have so many wonderful memories of connecting with friends over this show and I'm so grateful for all of them.

Katie, from Europe

Dear Netflix,
Shadow and Bone has been one of the most life-changing experiences of my life. I'm in a lot of fandoms but never have I met a fandom so passionate, so united, so DARING as to start a campaign with little hope and turn it into something marvellous. That says so much about the show and the world Leigh Bardugo created that Eric Heisserer was able to adapt for the screen. Shadow and Bone filled its world with diversity and representation that is lacking in fantasy across the board. Casting Alina as an female, Asian, YA protagonist means more to me than I could ever explain. Not just Jessie's casting, but also the way the writers took care to change Alina's character too. Shadow and Bone, aside from a few issues, was gold. Perfect lightning in a bottle. The way the audience has rallied around the cast, and the way the cast has accepted the audience's love, is something not every book adaptation cast receives. The relationship between the crew and cast of a show to their audience determines how the future of that show will go on. You had such a perfect connection born from love and diversity. Shadow and Bone was pure magic, the type every author, reader, and fandom member wants. Cancelling it, on the cusp of adapting one of YA Fantasy's greatest hits and most popular duologies, DOES NOT MAKE SENSE. I understand business decisions take many factors into account, but take into account the audience Shadow and Bone has grown, the industry nominations the show has been awarded, the reception our campaign has received and TAKE ANOTHER LOOK. This is a universe you cannot waste.

Geekgal · Arya Fong · Zoya digital illustration

Arya, from North America - "You had a dedicated cast, crew, and fandom. This is the type of unity every platform wants from its shows. Shame on you for not recognizing that."

Dear Netflix, I love the Grishaverse because of how much representation is present. It makes everyone feel included and accepted. As the world strives towards diversity and equality, representation in the media is key. Shadow and Bone offers this. I also love all the characters and how much I see myself in them.

Anonymous, from North America - “The Grishaverse is so special to so many people around the world and would make Netflix more money because people would tune in to watch it.”

I love the Crows and was really looking forward to see more of them.
Allie, from Africa - “I want to see the Crooked Kingdom on screen. Kidnapped Inej!”

Dear Netflix, I love the Grishaverse because it’s inclusive and fun to watch. Everyone is able to resonate with at least one character, and the show has become a safe place for many people.
Maggie, from North America

Dear Netflix,
When I first saw edits of Shadow and Bone on TikTok, I knew I had to read the Six of Crows duology and this started my love for the Grishaverse. I then tried to read the Shadow and Bone trilogy as fast as I could so I could watch the show and see my favourite characters on screen. These characters taught me that you can still achieve great things despite your flaws and that everyone has these flaws, even if them seem perfect from the outside. Their stories don’t deserve to go untold and it would be the greatest thing to ever happen to the book community to have them adapted.
Rianna, from Europe

Dear Netflix,
I have only recently started watching Shadow and Bone but I can say that it is already one of the best series I have watched on your platform. I would like it to continue to see how you interpret and capture the books on the screen. It would be a great win for the fandom, watchers across the world, and anyone who just love the thrill of a the fantasy world if this series would continue. You can’t just leave everyone on a cliffhanger, no one likes that.
Mercedes, from North America

I love the way I bought my favourite books alive! The grishaverse is fantastic!
Alda, from Europe - “The fandom has shown so much dedication to bring this amazing show back, it is loved by so many”

Shadow & Bone is a show filled with amazing representation, from queer to disabled characters. The cast all deliver stunning performances. The story unfolding throughout seasons 1 & 2 deserves a continuation, and fans are absolutely clamoring for the Six of Crows spinoff.
Tiger Torre, from North America - “Shadow & Bone needs a Season 3!”

Dear Netflix,
for me Shadow and Bone is more than just a show. It’s a safe space. The characters are like family and so is the cast. It has motivated me and helped me get through a hard time. So please bring the show back.
Nelson, from Europe

Dear Netflix,
I love Shadow and Bone because it’s such a carefully crafted story. There are a lot of complex characters with interesting relationships, and all their lives are intertwined in a fascinating plot. It’s extremely addictive to watch and it’s also very inspiring for people who are interested in storytelling. The plot twist at the end of the second season left me wondering where the story is going to go, and I think it would be a shame to end this beautiful story so unfinished.

Malina, from Europe

This show has meant so much to so many people, including me. The show highlights strong female characters, and beautifully-written LGBTQ characters. The acting is incredible, the world-building is immersive, and, like so many other netflix shows, it feels unresolved. A season 3/ Six of Crows spinoff would give fans and the characters the resolution they deserve. The first two seasons were popular on Netflix (according to their own data) and it’s only gained in popularity since then. The campaign to save the show has brought so many new fans to the Grishaverse
Serena, from North America

Shadow and Bone means so much to me. It has representation of people of color and LGBTQ people. It’s exciting and interesting and I can’t bear to lose it.
Marianne M, from North America

Xavier, from North America

Shadow and bone has a special place in my heart as it is a show that allows me to escape into the amazing world of the Grishaverse while giving me the representation that is lacking from so many other shows. When i have been in a bad place this show has been an incredible lifeline to the real world. I struggle with a lot of the issues that the characters experience and seeing that reflected on screen means so much to me.
Tia, from North America

Shadow and Bone is such a great series! I have a lot of trouble finding tv shows that I actually like and every time I do they get canceled, so please don’t cancel this one too, I’m getting desperate. Shadow and Bone as a great story, great characters and great visuals! It’s such a good adaptation of the books and it would be a SHAME to throw it away before getting to at least the Six of Crows plot because it was about to get even better. And the fact that Nikolai and Zoya relationship didn’t even get a chance to appear on screen is a loss for all humanity. The last years have been pretty rough for me and Shadow & Bone something that brought me joy in a period of time where I desperately needed it. It’s something that let me share my love of the Grishaverse with people that don’t read. My sister and I literally cried when they announced the cancellation because we loved it so much and were so excited for what was to come! And the team behind it, the cast, Leigh Bardugo, all of these people who made this amazing show reality deserve a chance to finish the story. It would be stupid to think that this show doesn’t matter because I’ve seen first hand that people do care. The fans have taken so many initiative to fight while staying respectful at all time, we wouldn’t do all of that if we didn’t care. This is one of the best fandom I’ve ever seen, I love y’all <3
Rochelle, from North America

Shadow and Bone is an incredible series with very compelling characters that I immediately grew attached to. The activism and size of the fanbase is a testament to how much this series deserves to be given a chance to continue and thrive!
Isabella, from North America

Shadow and Bone means the world to me. Being able to resonate and relate to these characters is something I find very special. I and so many others have found comfort within these stories and it's heartbreaking to know that these said stories won't be finished. It's helped me through some of the toughest parts of my life and I'm forever grateful for everyone who've helped bring these characters to life.
Robin, from North America

Representation matters! Go Alina!
James, from North America

It was a beautiful show which wonderful characters, that while it may have had its flaws, fixed a lot of what I didn't really enjoy about the books. The crows were an absolutely lovely addition and were played phenomenally by their respective actors. As I've been watching the fallout of the cancellation, and seen the numbers that have come out in full force, I genuinely don't see how it ever made sense for you to cancel it. Hopefully in this new year, you'll be able to reevaluate that decision.
Anna, from North America

Not a great writer on things like this but Shadow and Bone was thrilling from beginning to end and I was so excited for more especially because of the cliffhanger. They mean so much to be because of the diversity and queer representations that isn't shown in many TV series.
Esme, from North America

Shadow & Bone is the perfect example of a great book adaptation. It translates to the screen wonderfully, thanks to amazing writers and actors who respect and understand the complex characters we book fans adore. Diverse characters that give us representation, and we love seeing evolve in different storylines parallel to the books. It is such a shame that we won't be seeing the continuation of those storylines if the cancellation remains, especially since so much of the Six of Crows spinoff was already written. Get Matthias out of jail please!
Fernanda, from South America - "Book adaptations should be dealt with differently than other projects. We ask you to please reconsider a Six of Crows spinoff, since by its own standards the show did great."

I love shadow and bone so much because it open up a whole new world I could make art, writing and ideas about! It brought some of my favorite characters to life and made it so I could really see how events occurred, how things were pronounced and even how people acted more clearly!

ready to have a spin off makes it even more crazy that things didn't work out. I mean please give this another chance there will be more people like me who discover these shows late and fall completely in love with them
I realllly want to see the six of crows more than anything on netflix
Kimberly, from Europe - "Please keep us updated and give at least the spin off a chance!"

Last year, I was gifted six of crows as a book for Christmas! I'm an avid fantasy fan, and I ended reading all 7 main Grishaverse books (Shadow and Bone Trilogy, Six of Crows Duology and the King of Scars Duology)

Soon I discovered the show, and I loved seeing these characters come to life in ways that were different from what came into my mind while reading. The show was absolutely fantastic, and I could feel the emotions within each actor truly bringing out each side of the character. And then the show was canceled. And I have to ask, why? Shadow and Bone was incredible, there was such a diverse and talented cast that were bringing these characters to life. It was 24th on all streaming services for 2023. What made that decision to cut it off?

I got to laugh watching the show, I nearly started bawling, and people I know got invested into the story. If the company makes any reversal of the cancelled shows, it's clear the movement to bring Shadow and Bone back is so huge that it's impossible to say nobody wants it. Please, listen to the fans and bring your adaptation of the grishaverse back.
Atlas, from North America

I Love the Characters so much. The whole Show is a good alternative to my stressful life. It's a very exciting Show!
Ellen, from Europe - "Please don't cancel Shadow and Bone!"

Great characters, great plot and great moments and quotes.
Mal, from Europe

Shadow and Bone means so much to me because thoughtfully done and wonderfully casted book adaptations are really hard to find. The actors, writers, casting directors, and set and costume designers did an amazing job bringing the world and characters to life.

My favorite part of the Grishaverse is the Six of Crows duology. The actors who portrayed the Crows embodied their characters perfectly. I was really looking forward to seeing them in their own show based on the plot of my favorite books, and so I was really disappointed to see it cancelled. Please bring back this wonderful world!

Natalie, from North America

Shadow And Bone is a unique concept with great and unique characters. Everyone watches the show will have a character to understand and relate to. We have different countries and ethnicities inspired by real countries and we get to explore the diverse culture through the story and characters. Grishaverse has a lot of story to tell and we have barely scratched the surface.

Renuka, from Asia

Shadow and Bone is a show that has really helped me through a tough time. It gave me comfort at a time where all I felt was loneliness. The characters and the cast mean so much to me and to so many other people. Even after the cancellation I could not fathom never seeing the actors or characters again so I am holding out hope that it will be saved. Please save Shadow and Bone, it is a show that has a massive fanbase that love and support the universe. We want to see more so please give us more!

Aubrey, from North America

Shadow and Bone is my comfort show. The characters, the setting, the actors themselves are genuinely interesting and whenever I feel anxious, I watch it. Whenever I feel happy, I also watch it!

Denis, from Europe

Love it, so dynamic. A new world for us to explore!

Cassidy, from Europe - “PLEASE let it continue and the six of crows of course!!”

Seeing so many characters I can relate to and understand the internal struggles of is so important to me, seeing them alive on the screen means more than you'll ever understand

Jordan, from North America

I am an avid lover of fantasy, but it can be hard for me to get into movies or series. Shadow and Bone was one of the few series that really caught my attention and that I was super exited for. I fell in love with the people and places that were introduced in this series. It is not every day that I find a series that I love as much as Shadow and Bone. I'm super disappointed in Netflix's decision to cancel it and I really hope that I can see some continuation of it someday.

Briana, from North America

Shadow and Bone matters a lot to me because the show has wonderful characters with beautiful stories. I have read the books and was excited to see a new version of them on screen with talented actors. It's one of the greatest shows I've watched, continues to amaze me and has the potential to be even bigger than most fantasy shows. Also the cast and crew are very passionate about it and love what they're doing.

Anonymous, from Europe - “I hope the cancellation is revoked because not finishing these stories properly would be a huge shame.”

It was this show that really got me into reading and onto the path in life I'm currently on! This show is the reason my life and passion is what it is today and I'll be forever grateful for that.

Matilda, from Europe - “The actors and crew are truly the most wonderful and talented people!!”

I am a huge fan of the books and i really loved the adaptation, everytime i watched it i felt in wonderland, it is my to go show when i am sad because it makes me really happy. Most of all i fell in love with the cast and the chemistry between the actors and ot would be really sad not to see them one more time.

Julia, from Europe - “I think that the show should get another chance, maybe with a lower budget, just to see how it would look like with more scenes from the books and new. EVERYONE DESERVES A SECOND CHANCE!”

This cast has so much chemistry! The Grishaverse is a world I thoroughly loved getting pulled into. Amazing casting, especially the Six of Crows. Please give

Maggie, from North America

The show allows me to see the characters I love on screen! I know so many people identify with these wonderful characters and Shadow and Bone brings this to another level!

Leah, from North America

The reason Shadow and Bone matters to me is the representation it has, LGBTQ+, trauma, POC and Neurodiversity and how casual all of it is, and how it isn't (always) the biggest part of the characters personality. Shows like S&B really shine light to these community's and the representation means a lot to people.

Syd, from Europe

The representation means a lot to me as a queer person with adhd. The writers and actors are so passionate about this series and deserve another season/ spin-off.

Dara, from North America - “I will cry if we don't get more content (threat)”

This show has everything you could possibly want, portrayed by a cast who cares so much about their characters and each other. The diversity and representation reaches to a huge audience, including me. I've never related to a character like I do to Wylan, and it's lovely to see someone like me on screen. I know thousands of other fans feel the same.

Anonymous, from North America

This show has meant so much to me since the first time I watched it. It's difficult to put into words how much I adore the show, and the grishaverse in general. I think what I appreciate the most is the diversity of the characters. I think shadow and bone does an excellent job of representing groups that typically aren't represented very well in the media. I especially love the crows and I have to say Jesper is my favorite. It's also worth mentioning that this cast is so perfect for the characters and the actors are all phenomenal. I have so much love for this show and I really hope that it will continue!

Olive, from North America - “No mourners, no funerals ♥”

Shadow and Bone made me fall back in love with not only reading again but also watching shows based on books on Netflix.

Eileen, from North America

It's nothing we've ever seen before! The sets, costumes, sound, lighting, visuals, etc all help to tell an amazing story. The characters are dynamic and relatable (though I don't think anyone can ACTUALLY summon the sun...) and well written.

Hi Netflix!
It is so rare that YA fantasy (or fantasy for women as I like to call it) is adapted with such care and respect as you have done with the Shadow and Bone series. It is so common that people write off whatever teenage girls like as unimportant. With the six of crows-duology, we acctually have a story that is not build on tropes, is not preachy and contains characters that people can relate deeply to. If you ever doubt how much we love these characters, you just need to take one look at social media. I personally read the books during a though time in my life, and even though the characters all have very dark backgrounds, I found so much comfort in them. As Kaz Brekker thinks at one point in the book: „There was no part of him that was not broken, that had not healed wrong, and there was no part of him that was not stronger for having been broken.”
It would be such a shame to waste the opputunity to adapt it. Six of Crows is the best YA book out there and it simple deserves to get an even bigger audience than it already has.

Sofie, from Europe

Netflix, the way you portrayed Shadow and Bone was incredible. It was so incredibly realistic with what I pictured in my head, I couldn't have made it any better if I tried. The sets were amazing, the characters true to their book selves, and the way you even brought the Crows in was genius! This is by far my favorite show out there, and I can hardly imagine going onto Netflix and not seeing it in my 'Continue Watching.' Please, for all our sakes, bring it back!
Cheyenne, from North America

It's a great show with a good cast and watching it is a fun form of escapism!
Anonymous, from North America

Shadow and Bone is probably the best adaptation that I have seen from the book medium to the screen one. I was hooked from the start, especially because of the amazing jobs of everyone who worked so hard to bring every character to life from the Grishaverse, even with the changes needed. The Ravkan storyline was great, especially with the way it focused on how power isn't the only thing needed to lead a nation (my interpretation), because there are many different types of power: the Darkling wanted Grisha to be safe and to have a leader, Alina had people believing in her and putting her on a pedestal she didn't want but still pulled through for the best of everyone, and countless other examples. The storyline of the Crows was even more immersive - I don't think I'm the first to point out that it seems like they truly came to life from the books. Who doesn't like a found family of criminals going on various heists? The wardrobe for this show is something else I love about Shadow and Bone; each outfit was carefully selected based on what they were trying to tell us about the characters, and all of them are gorgeous. It really does feel like with all the other special details - props, music, scenery, etc. - we have been plunged into a magical world quite different from our own, but with characters that have personalities so real that they almost feel like looking at a represented part of us.
Anonymous, from Europe

Dear Netflix,
When I first discovered the grishaverse fandom in 8th grade, I expected to enjoy the series, given that it had already been popular for years. But what I didn't expect was for the Six of Crows duology to become one of, if not my favorite book series of all time; one that I'm still a huge fan of to this day. I'm a college student now, and this show and the spinoff series mean the world to me. Leigh's books offer incredible positive representation for people of color, the LGBTQIA+ community, people with disabilities, people with mental illness or addiction, survivors of abuse, and more. Not only has the show done Leigh's books justice in terms of this representation, but the writers have expanded upon it by casting an Asian woman as Alina, the leading character. The cast is also wonderful across the board in terms of representing their characters in both looks and personality, which is something rarely achieved by book-to-screen adaptations. By cancelling this show and the Six of Crows spinoff, you are not only taking opportunities away from an incredible cast and crew who have poured their hearts and souls into this project, but also from millions of fans who hold this series near and dear to their hearts. In supporting this show with all of our beings, we have given YOU our support as well— it seems both illogical and cruel to suddenly stab this fandom and their creators in the back.

Please, Netflix, bring our show back. Bring back Alina, and our beloved crows. Bring back Leigh Bardugo, the writing team, and the amazing cast and crew. We all deserve better. No mourners!

Shadow and bone was the best show I saw in 2023. The crows mean so much to me ad u loved getting to see Wylan on screen. It felt so good to see a person with a learning disability that is still successful on screen.

Season 1 of SaB was such a fun ride. I'll be honest, I watched it bc of Ben (I'm a big fan). But season 2 hit me like a train. I read ALL the books, learnt absolutely everything about the Grishaverse, discovered this incredible fandom that feels like home... What SaB gave me is absolutely everything I look for in a book or a show. I learnt to see things from a new perspective, to understand the real world differently, to think of myself in a new way. Idk if I would've discovered SaB without Netflix, but the show popped up in the home page and I can't believe I'll never see it again. Because I love these characters like I love my friends. Because I love their stories and I need to see more. Because it is the best fantasy show streaming rn and it DESERVES to be continued. Because I know I'm not the only one feeling this way about it.

Shadow and bone means a lot to me, as it's the only fantasy world I've ever encountered that has such extensive representation for people of all genders, all sexualities, all body types, as well as people who have limb differences and disabilities. The story is incredible, but the community and representation the story brings us is even better. This show has literally changed my life, helped me build a small business, and made me some very dear friends. I hate to see it gone so quickly when I know there are more people out there who might need it.

Kaya, from North America

Shadow and Bone is a thrilling fun fantasy with great settings, adventures, clothes and amazing characters that the actors brought to life beautifully. It's a story that means a lot to people and a lot to me specifically as a young queer poc, seeing diverse characters at the center of a mainstream story. Besides, Shadow and Bone and the grishaverse is a world and a story with so much potential to explore and it leaves room for so much creative freedom! We miss original stories, we're sick of reboots and remakes, we're sick of our favourite shows getting canceled, we're tired of boring, empty, superficial and stupid stories that get renewed. Netflix clearly doesn't care about their shows and movies and is only obsessed with money, but cinema is an art and it deserves to flourish.

Yasmine, from Africa - "The script is already written and the fandom is huge and very very invested and attached to the series so... why not?"

Shadow and bone was one of the first shows that gave so many different stories and characters the opportunity and chances to break the norm of the fantasy genre. The show was one that can not be rivaled. I have tried to find shows that can fill the void that was left but nothing can replace the intricate character development that was given to us by the crew. The show gave so much diversity with having a queer couple be part of the main story, while also giving us poc's in an amazing beautiful way. Taking the casts love of the show and the fandoms love of the show away was tragic for having been the first show my mother and I were able to fully gush about.

Kenzie, from North America - "I would give my appendix to see this show rise from the ashes."

This show got me back into reading books again. The characters and the chemistry made me love the show and buy the books. This show is so great, I stream it every day!

Anonymous, from North America - "Please have a third season of Shadow & Bone and the Six Of Crows spin-off"

Shadow and Bone was my favorite show of the past several years. The attention to detail and the love that was poured into this show was very evident and I would love to see more. The promise of seeing all six of my crow children together on screen brought me so much happiness, and experiencing the grishaverse through the show was spectacular beyond my wildest dreams! Please make those dreams a reality by saving the show and giving us the chance to finally see the Six of Crows!

Bella, from North America

It's such a good show! It's not fair to just end in a cliffhanger! :(

Anonymous, from North America

Shadow & Bone was one of the first experiences I had with such a diverse set of characters and experiences, and all the characters were so complex and relatable in so many ways. Inej was especially an important character for me, seeing as how she struggled with balancing her religious beliefs while trying to come to the terms with the fact that she had done bad things in her life, yet believing wholeheartedly that she wasn't beyond redemption and she deserved good things, too. It was such a realistic representation of the world and real problems that we deal with in life, such as how to acknowledge and accept the flaws in the things we love, how to balance faith and actions, and more.

Hello Netflix! I'm gonna get straight to the point: I was devastated when the cancellation of shadow and bone 3 and the six of crows spin off was announced. These shows mean more to me than I could ever express in words. I almost cried when my favorite characters came on screen. And I know I wasn't the only one. This show means so much to so many people, and I desperately wish for it to come back. So many people would be so very glad that crows would skyrocket, and you would make quite a bit of money. Continuing these very impactful shows would make many people's lives so much brighter, and would be profitable to you. Please give us back these character that mean so very much to so very many people.

Cole, from North America - "I really hope this works. If it does, that would be the best news of my life."

Dear Netflix,

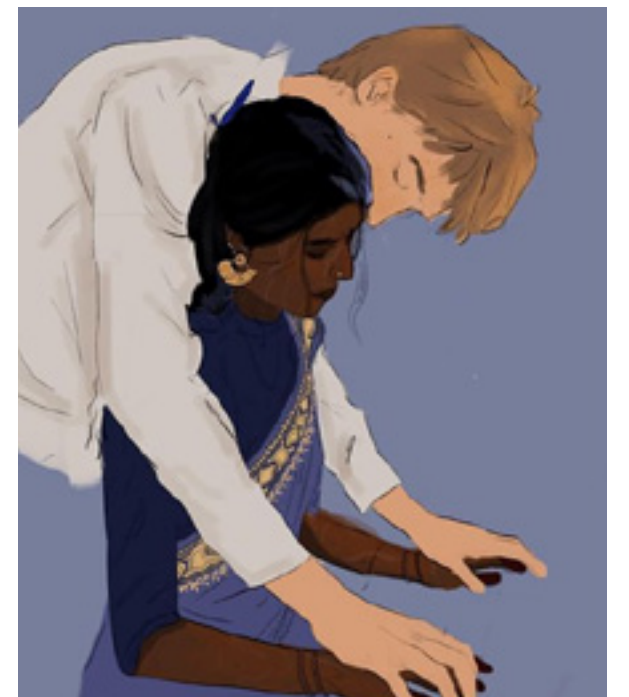

There is no way to describe the emotions I felt when you canceled Shadow and Bone. My heart was broken. I had watched the show when it originally came out without having read the books, and I became completely obsessed. The characters were beautifully written, painfully relatable at times, and the actors were just incredible. This show means more to me than any other show that I've ever watched, and I would give anything to have it back.

Maddie, from North America

I grew up reading Leigh Bardugo's grishaverse books and fell in love with the story and characters. I found myself represented as a south Asian girl in Inej, one of the main characters of Six of Crows. When the story was adapted to steaming, I was beyond thrilled and became very attached to the cast, crew, writers and show runner of the show. I found the story to resonate with so many friends in my life and also met life long friends through watching the show. I was heartbroken when Netflix decided to cancel this show, as I felt that I was losing a beautiful story that was not able to run its course, with vibrant characters and a deeply loving cast. It is my deepest hope that Netflix reconsider their decision and give this show a further chance, especially as it was very successful in terms of trending.

Shadow And Bone has created a safe space for me through the fandom and cast. The casting is incredibly, so is the writing. There are very few shows out there that have casts as endearing as this one. Life at home isn't exactly always easy but to cheer myself up, I could always go onto Netflix and watch the show. I've seen every episode more than 10 times each. This show means the world to all of us. Whenever I'd watch the show, I'd feel like I was immersed in another world, away from my problems. I don't want to see that get taken away.

Shadow and Bone has given me so much. I have found LOTS of friends through our love for the show. I've also made my family and friends watch it, and every single one of them has ended up enjoying it. We're all excited for more.

Shadow and Bone has some of the best characters ever created with the most dedicated cast I've ever seen. Everyone who has worked on this show very clearly loves it and works hard on it.

Ann, from Europe

Although a fantasy world, yet the faces represent seemingly the whole world. Not only they entertain but also enable us to heal, to view, to feel others bringing up a better human understanding of things. A vision of harmony after chaos.

Arti, from Asia - "Entertainment and education can go hand in hand."

Dear Netflix,

I hope this letter finds you well. I am writing to express my utmost support and desire for the continuation of the production of the beloved series, "Shadow and Bone". As an avid fan of Leigh Bardugo's Grishaverse novels, I firmly believe that the decision to cancel the show is one that should be reconsidered.

"Shadow and Bone" was a beautifully crafted adaptation that showcased captivating storytelling, complex characters, and stunning visuals. It successfully brought to life the intricate world of Ravka, engaging a vast audience and reigniting passion among existing fans. Personally, I found myself captivated by the show's ability to uphold the essence of the novels while adding new layers of depth and excitement. The series encompasses a perfect blend of fantasy, action, romance, and political intrigue, making it truly one-of-a-kind. It has created a loyal and dedicated fanbase that eagerly awaits the release of each season. The cancellation of "Shadow and Bone" has left countless viewers disappointed, and it is my belief that the potential for future success is undeniably present.

By continuing to produce "Shadow and Bone", Netflix has an opportunity to further explore the vast Grishaverse and take viewers on a journey through additional captivating storylines. Characters like Alina Starkov, Mal Oretsev, and General Kirigan have resonated deeply with audiences, giving rise to emotional connections that could be further explored and developed in subsequent seasons. As viewers, we yearn to witness their growth, challenges, and triumphs on screen.

Moreover, the novels by Leigh Bardugo themselves provide an abundance of source material for adaptation. The rich and diverse world-building, intricate plotlines, and morally complex characters offer endless possibilities for future seasons. "Shadow and Bone" has only scratched the surface of what this universe has to offer, and it would be a disservice to both the fans and the incredible material to leave it unfinished. If given the opportunity, "Shadow and Bone" has the potential to become an iconic and long-lasting series that will transcend its original fanbase to captivate even more viewers worldwide.

The immense success of other fantasy series, both on Netflix and beyond, is a testament to the demand and appetite for such content.

In conclusion, I respectfully request that Netflix reconsider and reverse the decision to cancel "Shadow and Bone". The show has proven its ability to capture the hearts and minds of viewers, and with the continuation of its production, it has the potential to become a cultural phenomenon. I, along with countless other passionate fans, eagerly await any news that may indicate the revival of this magnificent series.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I sincerely hope that you take into account the immense support that "Shadow and Bone" possesses and reevaluate the decision to cancel this truly remarkable show. Please, let the Grishaverse continue to thrive on our screens.

AJ, from North America - "Please also consider continuing to work on the Six of Crows spin-off that was in the works! It would be much appreciated by fans of Leigh Bardugo's books all around the world."

Shadow and bone was such a good watch and I loved bonding over it with friends and family I'd be sad to see it go it brought so many good memories and another season would just bring more!

Dear Netflix,

I love Shadow and Bone because of the original and unique storytelling. It is a show that my daughter and I can watch and talk about together. The cast are amazing and portray their characters beautifully.

Tracey, from North America

I first read the grishaverse books years and years ago alongside a dear friend of mine, and the stories changed my life. when the show came out, it came at a time in my life where i was really struggling. to have a story that was so much like home to me return in one of my most desperate hours was truly a miracle. not only is shadow and bone a show that has a great story, it is also a show that is comprised of an all-star cast, astounding visuals and an amazing soundtrack. it is an all-around wonderful adaptation of a book series that means so much to so many people. knowing that the show was made with so much care from everyone involved made it even more incredible. the books saved me one time, and the show saved me a second time. regardless of what its fate is, the show and everyone who worked on it will forever mean everything to me. its characters are home to me and its settings are as well. no mourners, no funerals. long live shadow and bone.

Rey, from North America

The characters! Love the characters and how the actors portrayed them. The sets and costume designs are also stunning!

Brianna, from North America

I learned about Shadow and Bone through a Kaz and Inej TikTok, a TikTok with their last scene in season two had appeared to me more than once, I had bad luck with other series that's why I resisted, but when more than one appeared to me maybe I took it as a sign. I saw the series and I loved it, especially the crows, I didn't know it yet but my life was about to change. After I learned about Leigh Bardugo's books, for personal pleasure I read the biology of Six of Crows and my charm head-on. I was at a point in my life that felt like a void inside me, I was missing nothing, I didn't think I needed anything, but I felt so empty, so stagnant, as if I were a spectator of my life sucked into everyday life, like If only one existed but did not live, the simple fact of existing means nothing if one does not feel alive. When I finished Six of Crows it felt like finding a home in these characters and their stories, they are survivors, and if you think about it, we've all been survivors of something in some way, or maybe still are. They gave me inspiration to get up and start feeling alive, play sports, read more, regain a sense of purpose, as if it will help me reconnect with myself. Their stories were the boost I needed, hope, courage, after all hope will never be the servant of any coward. What kind of person do you want to become? If you have the opportunity to show such stories and characters, their value and contribution, why not do it? They are not just other stories, they are not just other characters, they are the crudest way of understanding that hope can be born from tragedy and in a society like this, isn't that what we need more of? Hope. Please reconsider your decision regarding the grishaverse, the numbers are in favor of that, they have a committed audience that is willing to fight and turn that SPIN-OFF into a success and more. I don't know if it makes sense to fight for this, I just know that it's worth it and that I choose to be a faithful believer that the possible can be born from a lack of realism. Thank you. The series changed my life, and rescued it in some way. God knows how much I'm looking forward to this spin off, I hope we can see how these six stories come to life. It would be a complete success, we all win. Thank you. Best wishes and blessings to whoever is reading this.

Adriana K. Mora, from South America - “Believing that impossible things are possible is how wonders came to be created, and many of those are part of our normality today. For example, electricity, years ago people would have called someone crazy or naive who had insinuated that you can create something to have light by pressing just a button, but Thomas Edison didn’t pay attention to them and out of their naivety and lack of realism was born an idea that later became reality. We don’t need it to be probable or realistic, only possible, and if we can learn something from history and from great inventions like that of Thomas Edison, the possible can be born of a lack of realism. What dream do you have? You think you can’t really believe?”

Shadow and Bone is such an amazing show with so much potential. It has a one of a kind cast that fully embodies the characters from the book. Everyone involved with this show deserves to tell the amazing story they have been building in season 1 and 2. I have loved every second I have spent watching this show and I want to watch another season of it. I know that it is a show that many people enjoyed across so many different audiences. It has the potential to be something great, if given the chance.

Kayla, from North America - “Please bring back Shadow and Bone!”

For me it's the representation, I haven't felt this close to characters before nor have I ever related to them so much before, especially the crows. I feel represented by them in so many ways that haven't really had before in other characters. For example Kaz, I have a leg condition and having a character like Kaz who doesn't like his bad leg define him really inspires me.

Abigail, from North America

Shadow and Bone is THE GREATEST show I've ever seen. It puts all others to shame. The character dynamics are so powerful. Kaz and Inej. Alina and Mal. Matthias and Nina, Jesper and Wylan. No character is left out. The casting is spectacular. I could not ask for better actors, and seeing the characters I love so much out there, on screen, is like a dream come true. Netflix, you gave Shadow and Bone a chance. Our petition has reached such high numbers. We're even getting a billboard, for Saints' sake. If nothing else, remember the spinoff. But what we need right now is that season three. We're left at a cliffhanger, and it's impossible to let go. This is a beautiful story, and one you can't give up on.

Colette, from North America - “Freddy Carter as Kaz Brekker is a masterpiece.”

Shadow and Bone has all of the elements of a great show—brilliant writing, a wonderful cast, and beautiful production and design. It is truly an embodiment of the height of television.

It's amazing, the actors, the idea, I love everything about it

Anonymous, from Europe

The series was a very good adaptation of the books, which I'm a huge fan of. I think that what make the books special is the mash up of different types of literature and genres and the facts that the characters are not archetypal, they have layers and complex personalities and histories. It is also one of the rare fantasy world where women are not just exploited and sexualised. There are issues with their rights but it's not everywhere, and lots of female characters are very strong and interesting. Plus, it is also a queer world and that it really awesome. It is too bad that Netflix decided to stop the show when there is so much more to explore and to picture. It is too bad that Netflix payed for the rights to adapt the books into a series, that people liked it and watched it and that they just stopped, out of nowhere, probably for financial reasons. We pay you to watch your content, and this is what we get.. I'm honestly a bit upset, because you already canceled another unique and very beautiful show, Sense8. The way you choose shows is not about art or entertainment and I think it should be.

Chloé, from Europe - “Bring back Shadow and Bone and the Six of Crows spin off please!”

Shadow and Bone was something for me and my friend to connect over and get excited about together. She had read the books and watched the first season before me. As I read the six of crows books I texted her my live reactions and when the second season came out we watched alongside each other and freaked out about it together. Next year I'm going to university and she's doing an apprenticeship, likely in different cities, and another season would give us something to connect over again even while we're having different experiences in different places.

them. I fell in love with the characters when their names were just ink, and then fell in love with them once again when I saw them on my screen. This happened because of the amazing cast you have. Their chemistry on and off screen is something so seldom, you really have to appreciate it. Don't let that rare opportunity go to waste, please save Shadow and Bone.

Shadow and Bone showcases brilliant storytelling by the wonderful Leigh Bardugo through the talented cast and crew who bring the amazing Grishaverse to life for so many fans.

Jennifer, from North America - "Please bring back Shadow and Bone and fulfill your commitment to provide fans with a Six of Crows series."

Dear Netflix,
Shadow and Bone means a lot to me because it shows a world where you can use your magic and actually become stronger, not weaker as you use it. I haven't seen a story with such an angle. It portrays the idea that being different is something special and it makes you beautiful, strong and lets you shine. Also the characters are relatable and you experience their pain, love and fears. It also conveys the idea that even people who seem "ordinary" at first sight are the key for everything. I love the strong female-lead and how she's the sun summoner - the counterbalance to the darkling. I love this fantasy world and I don't lose hope that you can still do something to save our show.

Vlad, from Europe

As a disabled fan, I had never seen disabled characters who were involved in the fights, I felt a lot of shame, I felt useless. Then Kaz and Wylan came along, two disabled characters who were as active in fights as their able-bodied counterparts. And they looked cool doing it! They taught me, "You're not weak because you're disabled, you're weak because you're afraid of people seeing your weakness."

Charley, from Europe - "You have a dedicated cast and fanbase and the ability to do something unique. I know Covid has brought down your profits and I appreciate you must make revenue but I believe this is how you can."

I was genuinely surprised at how much I not just enjoyed – but loved – watching Shadow and Bone. I hadn't read the trilogy or the Six of Crows duology, but I wanted more from the tv series because the unfinished two season story was not enough to satisfy my interests, so I devoured the books too. And I'm so glad I did because now I can look forward to watching these all these characters' highs and lows adapted on screen.

Why do I like it? The adventure, the fantasy, the romances. Rich characters with deeply compelling stories to tell. The costume designs, too. The Six of Crows characters hold a special place in my heart. They may struggle with their own individual problems, but together they are powerful, unstoppable. Their traumas aren't healed, but they are helped while supported by the right people. That's a powerful message. Six of Crows isn't a love story, but it's clear that the characters all love one another and that's the real heart of what makes their story so special. Friendship, found family, and romantic love are very present themes shown six times over in six unique ways. There's something very special about that that makes me come back to the books and Shadow and Bone tv show.

Sarah, from Asia

Shadow and Bone is so important to me because of its characters and the journeys they go on. Watching how the characters battle traumas, betrayals, heartbreak, and still remain resilient inspires me. I really feel like I can relate to the characters, and seeing how they never give up and achieve their goals is a daily reminder that nothing is impossible.

Angie, from North America

I started reading shadow and bone at a really dark time in my life. it was a comforter to me, it helped me escape reality. when season 2 came out, i was in a better place, but i recognized how beautiful the story and characters were. i was able to appreciate the worldbuilding and the wonderful fandom. it brings me so much joy! i cannot begin to describe how much i adore the cast and the cinematography. the whole show is an artwork, a beautiful one. please bring it back!! not just for me, but for all of us.

Crow, from Asia - "I named myself after the crows, that's just how much they mean to me!"

I loved seeing the stories of the characters coming to life in novel, yet comfortingly familiar ways. Seeing strong female leads, especially those like Genya, who have had traumatic experiences similar to mine, inspire me to keep going and be strong. Shadow and Bone is my comfort show- i watch it when i need a good cry, or to be cheered up, or when i want a reminder of the hope i should have it humanity. Seeing season 3 would mean so much to me!!!

Alisa, from Europe

It's an amazing show with accurate representation, and personally I see myself in Jesper, having lost a parent and hiding behind a smile when I'm hurting along with what I feel is ADHD representation and I love it, it means a lot to me to see myself in a Character that I love.....along with the amazing Cast that makes me smile with every BTS scene video and every Instagram post/story

I first found this show when I was at a very low point in my mental health and when I discovered the crows my mental health skyrocketed and it was the best thing to happen to me. Because of this show I have met so many amazing people and my edit account has grown so much because of it!

Zayne!, from North America

It's hard to put into words how special Shadow and Bone is to me. It is a world I want to return to over and over again. The cast, VFX, story, writing, magic system...all of this has been executed so well. Netflix struck gold with this show and I'd hate to see it not be given a chance to continue, or at least to be given a proper conclusion. The Six Of Crows spinoff as well would bring in a huge audience. Please consider letting the already written script see the light of day. Doing so would show the world that you really do listen to and care about your customers. And you would have a pretty loyal fanbase on your side forever afterwards.

Madeline, from Asia - “Thank you for two incredible seasons. If you truly don’t want to continue telling this story, please please sell the rights so that someone else can. I promise the demand is there.”

The time, the effort, and the heart that these actors put into this show was phenomenal. No one else could bring these characters to life with the passion and dedication they showed. They deserve an ending. The fans deserve an ending.

Janae, from North America - “We deserve an ending. Watching shows that Netflix continues to cancel and leave us hanging is a waste if everyone’s time.”

The show is amazingly spectacular, challenging big movies, enthralling and engrossing. The casting here and there was even better than I could have hoped after the book. And the Six crows... I extremely love them... I loved to see the spin off about them!!!

Anna, from Europe

I love love love the books and I loved seeing them come to life in a new take combining the two series! It was great seeing strong women taking the lead, and having storylines independent of romance, but still having good romance, including Kaz and Inej’s touch-phobic one. I loved seeing Kaz dealing with disability but not being overcome by it, having many characters of color and of different backgrounds. The special effects, sets, costumes ect were all so well done and it was amazing seeing my favorite books come to life.

Becky, from North America - “Six of crows spin-off!!”

I love the show!! My older sister was really into anything related to the Grishaverse. We lost her last year to cancer.. Watching Shadow and Bone on Netflix gave me a way to feel closer to her.. :)

Shadow and Bone was so good it was literally nominated for an Emmy! You can clearly see by now that the fan base is huge and a lot of us would devour merch if you made it available and promoted it. Also, its 2024, book adaptations made with the cooperation of the author are a big deal. You are for real only shooting yourselves in the foot here. Fandom is large, powerful, and throws money at things they like. For real why on earth would you not ride this wave? Its basically free money

Dear Netflix,
Shadow and bone has been my comfort show since day one. It has really hurt me hard that you guys have decided to cancel Sab. I was so hoping and literally praying, for a season 3 and spin-off. I think this show deserves a second chance, because this show has such a strong fan-base, and you guys really left us on a cliffhanger. We fans will not stop bothering you guys until you bring it back. We are all trying our best to bring it back, and I hope that you guys will bring it back.

Lina, from North America - “Yes, I want Sab season 3 and spin-off.”

Shadow and Bone is a brilliantly cast, acted, and written show. After watching the first season, I immediately bought the Six of Crows Duology and absolutely devoured them while I waited impatiently for season 2 to come out. As a person with chronic pain who walks with a cane, who is also a survivor of sexual abuse, Kaz and Inej in particular are characters who mean a lot to me. As a bisexual person, seeing Nina and Jesper easily living their truth in the midst of dramatic circumstances that don’t revolve around their sexualities is so refreshing and important to see. This show brings so much joy into my life and I can only hope that minds and hearts will open to reconsider the choice of not going forward with these stories. Thanks!

Alaina, from North America

The series has been such a visual treat to fans of the books. And, as Six of Crows is one of my favorite series that I regularly re-read, I would love to see the perfectly cast characters get their spin-off. The cast puts their heart and soul into every performance, and seemed to be genuinely in love with their roles. They deserve the chance to continue on with the stories Leigh Bardugo wrote.

Andrea, from North America

Hi Netflix,
I was very excited about the Six of Crows spin-off because it’s about the outcasts whose backstories make them very unique characters. It’s about a found family. There are many reasons why I love Shadow and Bone so much, but the main reason is that the actors are as big fans of the source material as we - the fandom - are. It doesn’t happen very often. At least I’ve never seen it before. I especially adore Amita Suman. She talks about her character with so much passion, love and understanding. I met her shortly once and it was one of the most beautiful moments of my life. Some of your shows change people’s life for better. They make impact. And I can tell you that Shadow and Bone is one of them. I don’t know why you decided to not continue it, I truly can’t understand it. But if you need a reason to change your mind, here’s one - please do it for Amita Suman, our perfect Inej. And for all the other actors from Shadow and Bone, who put their whole hearts into portraying people’s favorite characters. Thank you!

Klaudia, from Europe

Shadow and Bone is the best series I have ever watched. I enjoyed every part of it. But that’s not all. So many people love it and it means so much for so many people. A big group of people worked hard on it and wanted to see the 3rd season (and the Six of Crows spin off) to come alive. The way people love it is one of the best things about the show and that is also the thing that makes it worth saving.

Anonymous, from Europe

Shadow and Bone season 2 ending killed off my favorite character. I’d love for the character to be revived in season 3 like he is in the books. There was so much more that could have been done with his character like let him be King of Ravka! I need to to see more of the Darkling!

Shadow and Bone is one of the first Netflix shows I enjoyed watching. The characters are pulled directly from the books and are so entertaining. The plot also keeps me hooked which is hard for shows to do.

Moksha, from North America

Bring back the show please. I really loved the casting. I wanna see my favorite characters and show back. Shadow and Bone is such an amazing show and probably one of the best series I've ever watched, from its relationships between characters to its showcase in visual effects and fight scenes. The whole show tenses you up, inspires and excites you, as well as demands you to feel the empathy and pain for others, placing you there with them. The scripts have already been written, Eric Heisserer said there are plans to separate the six of crows spin-off, and I quote 'The eight-episode scripts are phenomenal and I'm really proud of my team for those,' All that work and dedication of good quality work and countless of hours go into something that should've gone out but didn't. Netflix keeps ending any show that's good or doesn't hit. Let shadow and bone, as well as Six of crows continue, let there be an actual ending and entice viewers.

Jonathan, from North America

Dear netflix:

shadow and bone and the six of crows mean everything to me. It was Jesper Fahey who showed me that I was okay just the way I am, and that maybe everything will work out okay. He is the reason I get up in the morning and I cannot bear to lose him. The show was so fun too watch and many of my family members have enjoyed watching it and expressed huge levels of disappointment when the heard of the cancellations.

Any, from Europe - "Please bring the crows back. You have a script. You have a cast. You have a dedicated audience. No Mourners, No Funerals"

Dear Netflix,

the Grishaverse came to my life when I was pretty depressed. Ever since I opened those books this amazing world has become my second home. The show quickly became my comfort show when I'm feeling down or anxious. The story is so magical, the cast is perfect and the Grishaverse means so much to so many people all around the world. Seeing so much diversity on screen is so important especially in the fantasy genre. Main characters are part of the LGBTQ+ community and in the Grishaverse it doesn't matter which hand you want to hold. Please don't give up on this story, the best is yet to come!

Love, The Grishaverse

Annika, from Europe

To Netflix, Shadow and Bone matters to me because of the representation that it carries throughout the books and especially in the show. We don't see a lot of tv shows that show this many different representations whether it LGBTQ+, Interracial relationships, Dealing with Trauma, ect. There is so much to this show that I would love to see more of!

Lynn, from Europe - "No mourners, no funerals! Can't beat the odds, change the game!"

It matters to me because i love every character and i relate deeply to some of them and their struggles. Also i love the world and the magic Leigh created for the Grishaverse, it's unique and beautifully done. There were so many more stories to tell, including delving into the rest of the Crows, Inej, Jesper, Wylan, Nina and Matthias because we barely scratched the surface with some of them and their stories matter too. It's not fair. This is a world we want and deserve to continue exploring and the amazing cast, writing team, Eric and specially Leigh Bardugo deserve to see it through as well. We never stop fighting. We are going to change the game. NMNF

Rocío, from South America - "Please greenlight the SPINOFF. It's a smart choice."

Shadow and bone matters to me because it is a show about the book that has helped me through so much and really saved me. The show made the characters whom I related to so much come to life even more and is how I got my entire family to spend more time with each other through watching the show.

Hayley

Hey Netflix,

Shadow and Bone has been a banger of a show. For a majority of the fandom, it's a dream come true. The cast is brilliant, the writing is great, and it's everyone's favorite characters, come to life.

Shadow and Bone has brought me through tough times. It's been there, and it will always be a comfort to turn to. I'll always be thankful for what we were given, but to take away the next season is a heartbreak. The fandom has supported the show through everything. The watch hours, the statistics, and the overwhelming support should be proof that canceling the show is a poor choice. This is bittersweet. Thank you, Netflix, for giving us a show to love. But why, why take it away?

Arden, from North America - "No mourners, no funerals"

I've never been so captivated by a fantasy show like "Shadow and Bone". The incredible worldbuilding and scenery, the well-made characters and plot, everything about it was phenomenal and I felt like I was there walking among the Sun Summoner and Crows myself! I came across Shadow and Bone from reading Leigh Bardugo's "Six of Crows" duology. The front cover of each one had a sticker showing Netflix had made a show out of her "Shadow and Bone" series. A few days after, I put on the first episode and was immediately hooked! I haven't read the "Shadow and Bone" series, but the "Six of Crows" one I have. When I saw the spinoff was cancelled, I was heartbroken. The ending of "Shadow and Bone" S2 was PERFECT for a continuation following the Crows, since jurda parem is part of the main plot for the first "Six of Crows" book. I feel there is so much of a story yet to tell through these amazing characters the Crows, especially through the way the actors portray them. It's like the characters in the books just sprang to life from the ink on the pages! Bringing back the actors and adding more to the Crows' story would be so amazing and I know fans of the "Shadow and Bone" series would also enjoy to have the "Six of Crows" spinoff. While I along with many others love "Shadow and Bone", a beginning of the Crows spinoff was never given to us. Lots of people are rooting for the Crows to come back, me being one of them. If given a chance, I really think bringing back the "Six of Crows" spinoff would leave "Shadow and Bone" viewers fulfilled.

The Grishaverse books have truly been a gateway for me back into reading as an adult. I get so hyperfocused on school and work that I often forget to take time for myself... but these books, and by extension the show, help me stop and take a break. The show, and all the wonderful content (like bloopers and cast videos) that come alongside it is such a light in my day-to-day that brings me so much joy! I know that I am not alone in this, and that so many others feel similarly. By bringing back this show, know that you will be bringing life and light to so many around the globe!

Liesl, from North America

Shadow and bone is incredibly important to me and so many others, I personally seeing characters have a good relationship with food like Nina is so important to me as someone with eating issues, seeing Inej is so important to any women, seeing how she is strong and successful despite what happens to her, seeing all the characters being more then their trauma really Same with genya and Alina! Their stories are so inspiring, how strong they are despite the circumstances forced on them both, how they grow despite it. And besides from that it's just so entertaining!

Lily, from Europe

There is so so many reasons and I don't wanna be here all day, but alina's story is so inspiring as someone who came from an abusive house hold, she was strong despite it. She didn't excuse his behaviour and she fought for her happy ending, Wylan is also very important to me as a dyslexic person he's inspiring! I've never seen representation as good, I actually cried while reading the books (multiple times) and know Jack Wolfe would do it amazing on screen! And it's just so fun to watch??? So many teens like me watch it but my 67 year old Nan also loves it, fans range from all ages and I think that's telling to just how many and what variety of people love these stories and are inspired by them!!!

Kiera, from Europe - "❤️❤️❤️"

Dear Netflix, there are a lot of reasons why I love Shadow and Bone, but here are the most important ones: 1) one of the main themes is found family, 2) the characters are so diverse and unique, and 3) the worldbuilding is just phenomenal. The showrunners did an amazing job bringing the Grishaverse to life and the cast managed to portray each character so perfectly. I love this series so much and I would love to see more of it.

Nina, from Europe

I honesty loved the entire series. I loved the idea to intertwine the Crows with Alina's story. I especially enjoyed the show's decision to make Alina part Shu to make it seem like she really was the underdog. The ending made me very excited for more adventures with the Crows and that is why I deeply wish for the show to be continued. Please support one of my favourite book series to help it bring even more people into it's fantastic world <3

Vance

Shadow and bone is an incredible show with an amazing cast who perfectly embody the characters that they play. It has great disability rep in addition to characters that are just generally badass and/or extremely lovable and/or very funny. Please please please give us a season 3!!

Elisabeth, from North America

Hello! I love Shadow and Bone because the world is so exciting and vast; the characters so lovable and complex; the plot so exhilarating and intricate. This show is one of the best not only on Netflix but ever and I think it would be an awful shame if we didn't get to see it pan out to its planned conclusion. As you have probably realised the fans are incredibly dedicated (because the books and show are so good!) - but not only that there are a great many of us: making a season three and a Six of Crows spinoff would be profitable. Also, the actors and honestly everyone involved in the production of the show are absolutely incredible - I will always be grateful for such an amazing adaptation, even if it is left unfinished. However, it shouldn't be cancelled because the talent of everyone involved is too perfect to not harness to finish this great show! Finally, it would be a crime to end the show where you have - with Matthias never meeting the others (except Nina, obviously) and Inej's story only just beginning, in a way. Do the right thing and don't check the potential of season three and the spinoff! No mourners, no funerals <3

Delphi, from Europe

Dear Netflix,
One thing I love most about Shadow and Bone is the care that so many people put in this amazing world. The beauty in the costumes, the effort made to create all these different cultures, complete with their own languages, the thoughts behind each character and the way in which all of those are portrayed give Shadow and Bone something that many Fantasy worlds start to lose: careful worldbuilding and love in each and every single detail. To see how this series is loved by the people making it automatically makes you love the show itself and that is something that Shadow and Bone has mastered wonderfully.

baconofunity via Instagram

Dear Netflix, My favorite thing about the Shadow and Bone TV show was the casting. I was so impressed with how the cast really embodied their characters. It's very rare that a cast so perfectly brings to life a book character, but in this case, so many were just chef's kiss. It was incredible. The books are great and this was one of the best adaptations I've ever seen of a book to a TV show. I loved it.

mindyschaper1 via Instagram

allisonbrooke93 via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I'd never had a favorite tv show before. When I watched Shadow and Bone, it got me excited. I loved the cast and I loved how the Crows story was merged with Alina's. The ending to season 2 was amazing and I am desperate to find out what will happen. I love the cast and my favorite character is Kaz Brekker. This is the best tv show ever.

savan_in_wonderland via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I've loved the books since my friend recommended them, and watched the show immediately after. I waited patiently for season 2, excited with every snippet and tidbit, and the cast are just perfect. I was and still am so impressed by the adaptation and a 3rd season and/or spinoff for Six of Crows would make my entire decade <3

chrissie.b_ via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I can't help but feel like I am reading the books all over again when ever I watch Shadow and Bone. I feel immersed in the world so fully that all the other shows I have seen cannot compare. The first two seasons were one of the best things to happen to many book lovers because it represents the Grishaverse SO WELL.

nettle__heart via Instagram

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone is currently my favourite series and show and I really wanted to see the season 3. The cast was super nice and talented and they had done an amazing job so please try to make the next season!

Inej_nazyalensky via Instagram

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone is worth saving not only for it's social media reach(which is considerable) or it's vibrant direction and storytelling or even it's potential to create millions in revenue in first-time and rewatch viewership for your company. All of that aside this shows diversity in casting and in character is the most important selling point. Because by continuing to take content like this you are showing the next generation that your values align with theirs, that you are not obsolete, that you aren't just looking for money but that you care about art and progressive movements in culture. Also the money thing(there would be like so so so much money in that too). Best wishes, a current Netflix subscriber.

jpuff_23 via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I loved the show because the show captured the crow club and Ketterdam vibe exactly how I pictured it and the cast. The entire cast was out of the books!!! No one else can play Jesper and Nina the way Kit and Danielle do, no one else can play Kaz and Inej and Wylan and Matthias like them. Also casting Ben as the darkling was the only reason I wanted to understand the character. Jessie as Alina and Archie as Mal and Dean as Pekka and everyone else just fits perfectly. This is an awesome adaptation, you have Leigh with you and the perfect cast, you are missing an opportunity here if you don't get in on it now. This could be one of the perfect things you created.

lomltswizzle via Instagram

Dear Netflix. Where to start? Shadow & Bone is special. Not just in terms of the fact that it is a new fantasy universe based on a series of books adapted to the screen. It is really special because the show means something special and personal to a lot of people for many different reasons. To me, Shadow & Bone has a catalogue of characters with who the audience easily identifies with at least one or several of, Grisha, Ravkan, Fjerdan or Shu alike. The show itself includes a lot of genre elements, from hardcore fantasy, to romance, the black and white good vs. evil with a lot of grey in between, friendship and kinship, sense of duty and responsibility, I could go on. Lastly, the show has managed to bring a group of actors together who not only embody their characters fully and are as passionate about them and the show as we fans are; they are all just really good PEOPLE, the epitome of someone mastering their craft and who genuinely care about each other and the fans who's nationalities span far and wide in representation. Shadow & Bone and the people involved unite people from different backgrounds. That, to me, is one of the most beautiful aspects of the industry of film and TV. Please don't take a prime example of that away from us when there's so many stories in the Grishaverse left to tell that have the ability to continue uniting and connecting people to each other. ✨

camillahmlarsenedits via Instagram

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone is all could ever have dreamed of in one show. Amazing casting, with characters that look and act like their book counterparts, and actors who love their roles. It is beautiful, containing both stunning magic and awesome surroundings. The soundtrack is one of my all time favourites and really elevates the experience. The overall show feels like a warm hug, both due to the actual show and because of the love and care that went into making it. It will always have a special place in my heart.

vbrunnegard via Instagram

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone made me meet the most amazing people, who happen to like the very same show. In these characters, I find role models of bravery, friendship, love, resilience, and so much more. Moreover, the actors have been the most pleasant and endearing ones I've ever met (and I've met quite a lot). They deserve more episodes ♥

Dear Netflix, I have been a fantasy and a Grishaverse fan for a long time and have been following Shadow and Bone since the show was first announced. Seeing some of my favorite books come to life was such a dream come true! The cast was perfect and I loved how the show weaved multiple stories together to create something unique for long-time fans to enjoy. It is truly one of the best book-to-TV adaptations I've seen and it is too soon to say goodbye to the show and the amazing cast and crew! Please reconsider canceling the show and bring it back for a third season and for the planned Six of Crows spinoff!

julia_herrman17 via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I loved Shadow and Bone because it's rare that a show stays so true to the books. The Grishaverse is just magical and has such a great fandom!!

xnnikx_klemxnn via Instagram

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone is the rare book to screen adaptation that was made by people who truly care about the source material. the writers, cast, and crew put so much love into this series and it shows. Six of Crows is my favourite book and those characters are COMPLEX. i never could have dreamed of the level of care the actors of S&B gave in bringing them to life. not to mention, the level of diversity in S&B is something that the fantasy genre does not show enough on screen. please choose to champion this show, let the spin-off go ahead. this is a story already much beloved by fans and will only continue to reach more if you give it the time and a chance. thank you.

Dear Netflix, I love shadow and bone for the opportunity it gave me to share these books that's hold dear with so many of my friends that might no love reading but loved the show so much.

yumi_espinoza via Instagram

Dear Netflix, i love Shadow and Bone because of the characters: they are unique, complex and each one of them has a story that deserves to be told! Nobody is black or white and it's fascinating to delve into their personality and explore all of the different shades that they possess. The show makes everyone feel included and part of something, regardless of your flaws, your insecurities, your past... It's a world full of possibilities and so much potential for more, if only you decided to give it a chance

madax via Instagram

Dear Netflix, Shadow&Bone is such a special show, beause it managed to really stay true to the books. It just captured the essence of this beloved book universe. Is so rare for a book adaptation to be good and S&B is more than that. Every scene feels exactly how I'd imagined it while reading. The cast is incredible, the costumes are fantastic, every location, every bit of decor is so well thought out. You can't rip this world from us, we need to experience more of it.

emina_memi via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I loved shadow and bone so much because it was beside me in one of the most beautiful periods of my life, magical and full of joy and possibilities. when I think back to the show I think back to that period and vice versa. But that's not all: it's a story full of magic, with complex characters, compelling plots and well-structured places. It's a story with great potential and it's a shame to cancel it. he can still give a lot. the characters in the story give people hope because, especially in sad times like these, they are people who don't give up, who fight, who always get back up despite the difficulties. I am an example. they are pieces of our soul... shadow and bone was one of the highest quality products on the platform not only in terms of plot but also as a world

(very original) and in depth... I hope you can retrace your steps because this show he gave me so much...

Dear Netflix, shadow and bone was extremely impressive. I watched the whole thing with EXTREME interest without even knowing it was a book series. This just shows that shadow and bone can be interesting for people who never even read the books. It's very well explained and even without the books it's an absolute masterpeice!! The actors were great and definitely felt like they matched the character. The special effects and visuals throughout the whole series are so great there isn't a word grand enough to express how stunning the series was. Please bring back Shadow and Bone. I was so disappointed when it wasn't getting a third season even though I was really hoping for one after I read the books. Please bring our crows and s&b cast back!!

This show is just so amazing. Leigh Bardugo has crafted such an amazing world and it was recreated beautifully by the outstanding cast and crew working so hard on the show. There's so much potential with so many of the characters still left to explore! This show is such a a comfort and joy to watch over and over and is just breathtaking. The actors are phenomenal and deserve to continue growing and exploring their characters. Matthias needs to be with his crows!! Everyone did an outstanding job and I really want them to have the opportunity to continue to play with these characters

Dear Netflix, I was introduced to the Grishaverde through Shadow and Bones, and I can't be grateful enough for that. The world and particularly the characters earned my love with their struggle, their strength and their brilliance. The way the cast was selected is perfect, and the fact that their stories are inconcluse breaks my heart. Both Alina and The Crows deserve their stories told

Shadow and bone has incredible editing, cinematic shots and well developed characters. The grishaverse has always been beloved even before the show. The books got me into reason and now as a film major I have been so inspired by the shows visuals and plot approaches. The Netflix show Shadow & Bone introduced me to a disabled character just when I had become disabled. It gave me the confident to buy myself a cane when I realized I needed one. I was inspired by many more characters, as well. The show got me back into reading by introducing me to Leigh Bardugo’s books, which led to me changing careers and becoming a book editor. My life was greatly improved by Netflix’s show on a physical, mental, emotional, and career level. I have told so many people about the show and the books, leading to new viewers. I want the show brought back and the spin-off to be made so other people’s lives can be made better, too. It’s also just excellent entertainment with a great cast and crew who deserve more of the story and the world they love to be shown.

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone was the greatest thing, the cast was perfect and the story was brilliant. I loved the twists and turns that were different from the books and I love how a new layer was added to the story of the books. Their stories deserve to be told, so many fans absolutely adore the show, and it gave a sense of comfort and familiarity. There is a community surrounding Shadow and Bone for a reason, because the whole story of the Grishaverse is beautifully told with help from amazing actors and writers and producers and everyone behind the scenes. It’s such an incredible, heartwarming, heartbreaking and breathtaking show that has become one of my favourite shows of all time. It’s magnificent.

Dear Netflix, i’ve had many favourite characters among the years but none of them even barely come close to what nina zenik means to me. she gave my life direction and a meaning, and i’ll carry her in my heart always. yet i cannot bear the thought of never having her back on my screen. i need closure, i need her and matthias to reunite. nina isn’t giving up on her happily ever after, and neither am i.

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone drove me to reading the books and i couldn’t be happier. The casting is incredible, all the effort behind the show and how it improved, I am just sad that we couldn’t get any further. It’s such an amazing project with great storyline and awesome, deep character... What happened to quality content? This is all just a bit sad, that no more people will get to see the full potential of this immersive, impossible not to love, fictional universe.

Dear Netflix, I loved the show so much it made me read the books and I absolutely fell in love. The characters feel like friends, I care about them and everything they go through, especially the crows. The cast are so perfect, they embody their characters so incredibly well and are exactly what we see when we read the books. I am so integrated into the Grishaverse and the fandom, I have made friends through it, I've rewatched the show so many times and reread the books. Myself and everyone else are so invested in these characters and want more than anything to see season 3 of shadow and bone and of course the six of crows spin-off to see our favourite scenes from the books.-

s.ere.n_00 via Instagram

I feel as though I should let you know why we fight so hard for shadow and bone. Since the beginning, six of crows had brought people together. This rag-tag team of orphans has brought people together since they were created, and the way Leigh wrote about them, including the queer community, the POC community, those who are disabled or have fought home lives or struggle with addiction felt so natural that it's no wonder so many of us fell hook line and sinker for these characters. She, and the crows, made many grishaverse fans feel seen and heard, and helped us feel as though we weren't alone. This found family created a sense of community amongst the fandom as we realised that we weren't alone, and that there were others like us. These characters empowered us, showed us that despite impossible odds, we can keep going, we can keep fighting. I think Wylan said it well in crooked kingdom. "Wylan summoned every bit of bravado he'd learned from Nina, the will he'd learned from Matthias, the focus he'd studied in Kaz, the courage he'd learned from Inej, and the wild, reckless hope he'd learned from Jesper, the belief that no matter the odds, somehow they would win." And even though in the end he is just Wylan van eck, he still wins. And even though we as a fandom are not Nina or Matthias or Kaz or Inej or Jesper or Wylan, these are the characters that brought so many together and given them hope, and the ability to be themselves. Please Netflix, help us bring this hope and community to others. Save Shadow and Bone. Give us the Six of Crows spin-off we desire. Bring the light of the crows to more people. Love, a girl who's life was changed for the better by The Crows.

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone was the first show I remember following since it was announced. I had so much fun following the accounts and losing my mind over any new scrap of information about the show. When it finally came out, it became my favorite thing. It was such a good adaptation of my favorite books with my favorite characters. Please let them continue to grow and finish their story on screen.

dylan.ehlers.20 via Instagram

Dear netflix, there are only handful of stories nowadays that are original, interesting and complex. You were lucky enough to get your hands on one of them. Leigh Bardugo created such a beautiful universe and it is a home for many. We don't have stories like that anymore, at least they don't get adapted these days which is why we were all so grateful for the Shadow and bone show. Each character impersonates a great quality, has a depth but also shows pain, remorse and real problems, despite the fantasy setting. Please please please give them another chance, give US another chance to prove you how much we love this show. Because I think I speak for a lot of us when I say we would watch the hell out of season 3 if it was made.

Dear Netflix,

I loved the Shadow and Bone show for a few reasons. The Six of Crows duology is my favorite read from 2023, it was just such an excellently written, interesting book, and I love it. I was so excited to start watching the show, and immediately was impressed by how well cast it was. The actors playing each and every character were absolutely perfect for the role, and the dialogue stayed true to the writing and the characters. I loved the whole mood Ketterdam had, and everything about the story was exactly how I had pictured it while reading the book. I was absolutely devastated when I heard season 3 as well as the Six of Crows Spin off were being cancelled. The dynamic characters and the really interesting fantasy world made me so excited to see all the Crows together in the SoC spin off, and I know that hundreds of thousands of people would be absolutely delighted to be able to experience Six of Crows and the end of Shadow and Bone in the tv show. It was a brilliantly executed tv adaptation, please consider reviving it!!

I've loved the Grishaverse since middle school, and i'm 20 now, so you do the math. King of Scars came out after I was hospitalized for mental health, and reading it was my anchor. The story deserves to be finished. These actors deserve a complete story on their resumes. Cancelling the show and giving our story to the Witcher is so... cruel, to all these talented people and devoted fans. Please bring it back.

Dear Netflix, Please give us back our Grishaverse. These stories need to be told. They have meant so much to so many and it is a terrible shame to abandon them half finished. I know you are eager to move on to new projects but "Shadow and Bone" is worth seeing through to the end and the "Six of Crows" spin off would just give us more time to cherish this diverse cast of characters and their stories. Please do not take them for granted.

Dear Netflix, the thing I love most and Shadow and Bone is the sheer beauty of the show. Whether that is the visual effects, cinematic shots, or the deep relationships between the wonderful characters. As a neurodivergent queer person, I really found myself seen through the portrayal of LGBTQ and ND characters, in both the show and books. It has become such a comfort to me, and I would absolutely love to see these topics explored more in the Six of Crows spinoff, which I have no doubt could have been - and still could be - an outstanding piece of media. It is a special world full of much needed representation, and a stellar cast who care so deeply for their beloved characters. Love from the fandom x

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone is part of a vast and impressive universe that has huge potential. There are numerous books within the Grishaverse that you could adapt into amazing storylines and develop this unique world even more, The way that you left the series feels so unfinished, and there are so many of us that are disappointed with your choice and eager to see more. Most importantly, the cast and crew deserve to have more seasons!! They worked so hard on making these books come to life, and were devastated after your cancellation announcement. The Six of Crows spin-off would be an absolutely amazing addition to the Grishaverse, especially since The Crows are fan favourites. We are desperate to see all six of The Crows on screen together

Dear Netflix , after hearing news of a shadow and bone show, I jumped to read the books and finished them before then finishing the show. The show brought so much love and the cast were absolutely incredible, pulling off everything the books offered and showing me a new found family. The show was intense with complex love and incredible action scenes with their own diverse culture. There is still so much to tell, so much potential to create and bring back our new found family and home.

Dear Netflix, I love Shadow and Bone because it is a way of presenting this incredible universe for much more people, and with an extremely accurate adaptation from the books. The cast is amazing and they picture wonderfully the depth of the characters that are so important for so many people. These stories need to continue being told.
luluvi.8 via Instagram

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone is not only a fantasy story with a rich and diverse setting it also stands for inclusivity and love. The series as much as the fandom itself have been a beacon of light to many people and have brought together a beautiful community of creative people. Without this show for example, our Cosplay collective would've never existed. And seeing the hard work of our members on a daily basis is showing us that the show has not just been a little spark but a searing burst of light for connection amd creativity. Everyone involved in the cast, the crew, down to the fandom is so passionate about this project, which admittedly is a rare phenomenon nowadays in the industry. So it would be a shame of you'd take that away from the world and would therefor waste all of this great potential! So please consider reviving the show. Yours truly, Ravkas Crow Council 🌞

Dear Netflix, it's hard to explain how much this show has meant to me. Both times a season has dropped, I have counted down the days and binged all episodes as soon as they came out. I have laughed and cried, and squealed from excitement, because seeing these characters and these stories on the screen has been a dream come true. The Grishaverse contains so much representation (lgbtq, ptsd, overcoming abuse etc) and truly makes room for everyone, which is one of the things I like most about it. It may be full of magic and grand adventures, but it always has friendship and love at the core. People at the core. That is what makes it special, and what makes me ask you to reconsider your cancellation. Because there are still so many stories left to be told, if you would only let them. Love, the Grishaverse.

Dear Netflix, I love the Grishaverse for my crows. They always remind me that no matter where you come from or how gifted or normal you're, ultimately you're the one choose to write your own history. It taught me overcome things that bind me down and instead fight them for a better life.
colossal_decay_ via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I only read the books because I heard of the show and thought it sounded cool. I never thought that it would be something I would turn to time and time again when I was in a hard place. This series and the characters have become a comfort and an escape. I have battled depression and anxiety, but I could always go back to Jesper's quips and jokes. I could always find a little strength in Alina's. I could always find faith in Mattias.

If you have ever been a fan of anything, you understand the pain of it ending. This series has meant so much to me and many others.

If there is any hope at all (which I believe there is because as Nikolai says, 'when people say impossible, they usually mean improbable'), try one more season. See the 200,000 signatures on the petitions. See how much this series has meant to people. I will watch it a million more times if it means seeing these beloved characters come to life on screen again.

Dear Netflix, The grishaverse literally changed my LIFE. Like not only did i binge the show and the books religiously, but like the characters and their stories saved me. When I read six of crows, I was going through a really hard time. Their heists gave me an escape. And I repeated quotes from them in my head to channel strength. I gained self confidence through Kaz and perseverance from Inej. They taught me to not be ashamed of who I was or what I do and to generally give zero fcks about what people thought of me. Zoya is also so important to me in all this. Her quote, "You are strong enough to survive the fall." helped me ease my anxieties that if I were to fall, I'd be strong enough to get back up again. She gave me courage and hope. So Netflix, it's not just about some tv show or just another book series. Watching shadow and bone introduced me to a world that genuinely saved my life—I don't know that I'd be here today if it wasn't for these characters. Shadow and Bone is more than a show. It's a lifeline. It's changed so many lives and could do so much more if given the chance. Please give us a season three. Please give us the Six of Crows spin off. These characters still have many more stories to tell and many more lives to impact. The cast, crew, and fandom are dedicated to making this happen. So please, don't take away our lifeline. Love, The Grishaverse.

Dear Netflix, I was recommended Shadow and Bone by a friend, and through the TV show, discovered the books. The show is so well made, the crew and production team did an incredible job bringing the world to life and each of the cast was perfection. To see such a gorgeous adaptation was a dream, so often books are adapted and something is lost. It didn't feel that way to me. Its been a long time since I was so excited to watch something, and the disappointment I felt when I heard it had been cancelled is still with me. It feels like you're throwing something away for no good reason. It was a brilliant show, and would continue to be so.

crollamel via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I didn't know about the Shadow and Bone books until I watched your show and I fell in love with them. The time and dedication taken by the cast and crew of the show to honour the book characters is very clear. I read all the books and fell in love more with the characters. This show has become very special to me, the diversity of the characters and the stories (female empowerment, abuse survivors, POC, loss and trauma, queer relationships and representation, disabilities, platonic love) has been something I've not seen before in a fantasy series, it's something to be in awe at. Your cast and crew put everything they had into making this show and I know they've treated these characters and the source material with love and respect, and I know they'll finish out the stories right. I know a Season 3 and Crows Spinoff would allow this good work to be completed while also leaving an opportunity for expansion (the spin-off). Your amazing show pulled me into the Grishaverse and I couldn't be more thankful.

Dear Netflix, the Grishaverse was with me in a dark time of my life. It picked me up. Alina gave me hope and as ironic as it sounds she showed me that there was light. Leigh Bardugo created a masterpiece.

Dear Netflix, what I love about Shadow and Bone, especially the Crows characters, is that it makes me feel seen. The characters provide such great representation of different people that allow the viewers to be able to connect with the show on a deeper level. Having flawed but human characters means everything to me, and even just the intricate writing and depth of the characters makes it stand out from any other fantasy series. The books are my favorite ever and being able to see these characters come to life with actors that are genuinely perfect and do each character justice is so important to me and so many others around the world

Dear Netflix, The Shadow & Bone series came to me in a time when I was at a dark place - I was instantly hooked and the world and characters were my escape from that darkness. The show introduced me to the books and I discovered the whole Grishaverse. Especially Six Of Crows holds a special place in my heart and I was so excited to see more heists and adventures on screen. I am heartbroken that you don't want to continue our beloved show - you must have noticed that this beautiful fandom is not ready to give up hope. I see so much potential in the Grishaverse, not only for shows and more books, but videogames, merch (just look at Etsy) and more. The Grishaverse inspires us, it brings out the best in us and it helped people like me that were dealing with mental illness. My heart bursts when I feel the power and the cohesion of the people that love the stories of the crows and the "shadows". It feels like the found family that we see in the crows. Please reconsider! Love, the Grishaverse

Dear Netflix,
I started reading the Grishaverse when I was 14 years old in freshmen year. Shadow & Bone and Six of Crows quickly became my favourite book series' as I felt the pacing of the books, the unique setting, and the humanity and development of the characters were excellent. When the Netflix series was announced, I was incredibly worried about the adaption as there was a history of book series having terrible adaptations, but when I watched the first season, it was amazing. The characters were excellently casted to the point where they were exactly as I pictured them in my head, and the actors on their own were outstanding in their performances. The foreshadowing of futures seasons and making references to the books in the show also made me "fan girl" when watching. The show was all I ever wanted. The day season 2 came out, I spent the whole day binge-watching it (my family was genuinely concerned of my absence). I thought the second season was even better than the first season. The cinematography and set design was once again phenomenal. The actors, once again, demonstrated brilliant performances, including the newcomers who played characters I adored. The writing and pacing of the second season was amazing to the point where I thought that the show was getting close to a Game of Thrones kind of series. I was excited to see season 3 because I love the Six of Crowds series and the King of Scars series. I love the characters. I love the world. I love the Grishaverse. And then you cancelled it. This show was my favourite. One of my comfort shows because despite being different from the books, there were so many things that were JUST like the books, and it was perfect. Please, bring this show back. So many people feel the way I do. So many people find enjoyment and peace because of this show, and you cancelling when it was one of the top shows of this year seems like a foolish idea. So many people want this show back. We've have petitions that have been going for over a month. No other fandom has done that for a show yet. Bring it back, we all would love for it back.

Netflix, This was the best casting I'd seen for a book adaptation ever. You had the best opportunity here to just follow the book spin offs. You kinda blew it.
georgina.breen via Instagram

Dear netflix,
I started reading the books, I read six of crows first and I LOVED it, as many others did too. I loved the characters, the universe, everything. I then read shadow and bone, and oh my god I fell deeper in love. King of scars too, the relationship with Nikolai and Zoya is to die for. When the series came out, I was overjoyed, I think I've watch the first season 8 times? At least lmao. Well, I loved it. I think it's an amazing adaptation of the books, and season 2? I couldn't stop, I stayed up late, watching it, and for the next days, I couldn't stop, I watched it again, and again, and again. I caught every single detail, every little thing. It was amazing. Another great thing about it is the chemistry between the characters, sometimes when they laugh, it doesn't look forced as in other series, it's like they're friends, you don't see chemistry that good very often.
All I want, is to bring it back.
Please.

Dear Netlix, I love Shadow&Bone with all my heart. Because the books they're based on are perfect. Because the showrunners put so. much. effort and love into bringing those characters to life and doing them justice. Because the cast is so wonderful, both on as off screen. Because we saw characters we love so much on the pages breathe and talk and fight for what they love. The series brought our favorite realm to life. It became a comfort show (and Saints do we need comfort these days), a safe space (even with volcra and Kirigan there. That says a lot) to emerge ourselves in when the world is too cruel or just too much. It's a show about hope, never giving up, and fighting for what you believe in, whether that's a happy end or a best friend. There are so many stories from the Grishaverse that yet have to be told and we would love to see our found family on screen again. Thanks for reading this. Please bring our people back ❤️ NMNF

Dear Netflix,
You have yet to disappoint with the grishaverse! A fantastic book series and you are doing a wonderful job turning it into a cinematic experience! Keep up the fantastic work for all future seasons. I can't wait to see what happens next.
I.c.2813 via Instagram

Dear Netflix, let me tell you exactly why I love the Grishaverse so much. I think I'll start with the basics: about how it is such a beautiful and gorgeous world to live in and introduced a new fantasy realm to everyone. Now, let me talk about how this has personally changed me. The writing style of Shadow and Bone as a book greatly inspired me to finally start writing my own fantasy novel, and it was incredibly hard, but I'm close to finishing the first draft. The thing is, I probably would've never picked up Shadow and Bone if it hadn't been for the Netflix series. The series left me wondering for what comes next and I immediately had to pick up the book. Let me tell you about the characters. Alina Starkov may be a plain average YA female lead, but she will always hold a special place in my heart because she didn't let anything stop her from doing what she loved and felt was right. She went to any lengths to protect those around her and help everyone out, and the series really helped bring that out. Don't even get me started on Genya Safin and her tragic yet inspiring story which gives you the message to keep on fighting and Zoya Nazyalensky who always overcame any adversity with her head held high. There's also Nikolai Lantsov who showed that we are not defined by who we are born as, but rather what we make of ourselves. I could go on and on, but I shall save it for later. #saveshadowandbone #sixofcrowsspinoﬀ

Dear Netflix, the Shadow and Bone show was so well done and everyone involved should be proud. It introduced me to the Grishaverse and I ended up reading all the related books soon after season 2 came out. I was so disappointed to not get a season 3 and see some of my favorite story lines come to the screen. Please reconsider, we're all still very interested!
meeshngreen via Instagram

Dear Netflix, before the Netflix show was made I had never heard of Shadow and Bone before. I saw it was a book adaptation and spent months reading the all the Grishaverse books before I started your show. It being an adaptation I didn't expect a lot, but it was amazing. The casting was perfect, every character was hit spot on. The effects and how the small science was showed was perfect. The show was adapted amazingly, following the main plot points of the books while making it more suitable for a tv show. Everyone loves this series, I don't think I've ever seen actors that care more about a show than this one. When the second season did so well I thought for sure we were getting a third. This series is so important to so many people, we don't know why it was cancelled but whatever reason I'm sure you can see how large of a fan base the show has. Netflix you've gotten rid of so many programs recently, Shadow and Bone is the only thing I watch on there. I know the ultimately we can't force you to change your mind, but I truly hope you reconsider and continue with this show.
cocokat132 via Instagram

Dear Netflix, As a major fan of fantasy it was truly interesting to see a book to show adaptation that truly did the source material justice. Everything was well connected and written delivering to us a full and structured story. These are incredibly rare qualities for fantasy shows that in my opinion don't get enough credit and spotlight. Another thing that immediately won me over was the great amount of diversity about the characters from dynamic and healthy female leads and secondaries, to numerous LGBT+ characters and one of the very few portrayals of a dyslexic character ever shown on TV (as a dyslexic person myself it really meant a lot to me to see it). I loved the chemistries and the different dynamics between all the different personalities are unlike anything I've ever seen on a show, it made me truly appreciate the depth and abilities of each and every one of our heroes. Last but certainly not least I honestly mean it when I say that every single member of the cast was perfect for their respective roles with captivating performances and the crew was immensely passionate as that can be reflected on the writing and overall delivering of the show as a whole. So these are the reasons I think S&B should be saved and this amazing story must continue 🙏❤️

marantidou_anna via Instagram

Dear Netflix, the first time I read the books and they were absolutely amazing, then I watched the series and it was really awesome. I fell in love with the series AND the actors in the first episode and I think it's one of the best series I've ever seen. I really don't understand why Netflix is trying to ruin this great and amazing world of the GrishaVerse.

barbora_silhava via Instagram

Dear Netflix, 2023 has not been an easy year for me, and I was able to escape the hard times through the original universe the Shadow and Bone tv show authors, cast and crew weaved for us. Also, I feel like myself and a lot of other people feel represented through many of the characters; be it for their ethnicity, sexual identity or disability. This show is compelling because the creators believe in it. I wish you would too.

plantae_studiosus via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I don't even speak English but I'm doing my best to tell you how much I love the Grishaverse. Leigh Bardugo's book series helped me grow and cope with many aspects of my life. The fact that you adapted the story into a series filled me with joy. I subscribed to your platform just because of Shadow and Bone and the promise of the Six of Crows Spinoff. However, you have decided to cancel these projects (just like you canceled Inside Job) and everything that motivated me to continue being part of your clientele left with these broken promises. I hope you reconsider your decision, there are thousands of workers who loved making the series and we believe that a story like the one Bardugo created should be told. I keep my faith in you, I hope I'm not making a mistake. Love, Kai.

kaizer.____ via Instagram

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone (and by extension Six of Crows) is far more than a book series adapted into a show. It's become one of those rare fanbases where it's brought people from all over the world together and into its "fold"; Into the Grishaverse. The series was brilliantly adapted, as far as bringing the two book series together. The cast assembled is fantastic. Each actor has embodied their characters to the full. And the world that we, the fans, only saw in our minds or in fan art was beautifully and brilliantly brought to life. I know I'm not alone in thanking you for making the show in the first place. And I definitely know I'm not alone in the devastation I feel at the show being cancelled. It's been proven in multiple polls and social sites that the show has been one of your most popular in recent years. This world is incredibly inclusive AND diverse. So, I hope you can understand why we are so passionately fighting for it to at least have a decent conclusion (Shadow and Bone storyline) and the potential that the Six of Crows spin-off show has is immense. Thank you for your time.

Dear Netflix! Shadow and bone must've been the find that made my life amazing once i found it in 2022. The second season made me feel complete as we have a lot more Kanej scenes and had a real introduction to Nina and Matthias!

The sad thing is, is that we have yet to see everyone's completed story. You shouldn't make a series if you can't finish it. No series should be left on a permanent cliff hanger. We should never have to be waiting for an ending when we know there's a possibility we could never have one.

It's easy to finish their story, or even give us the spin off. But instead of making a whole fandom of people happy, and despite having a full season script for the SOC spin off, you red lighted it.

Dear Netflix,
To quote Inej Ghafa, "She knew how she sounded—stern, fussy, like an old crone making dire pronouncements from her porch. She didn't like it, but she also knew she was right. Besides, old women must know something, or they wouldn't live to gather wrinkles and yell from their front stoops."

I discovered the Grishaverse as a 50-something. I loved the world, its people, its messages. Then an amazing thing happened, this deeply engaging book world was adapted to the screen. I, who previously disdained streaming channels, saw the Fold onscreen, better than my own imagination, and watched S&B obsessively. The casting, the costumes, the differences from the books, had this great creative collaborative energy I'd not seen anywhere else.

And then, incomprehensibly, came the cancellation. The jackbooted crushing stomp to the wild magic of the Grishaverse on screen.

Please lift your boot. Please let the magic continue. In my best Ravkan/Kerch/Kaelish/Shu accents, thank you in advance for your consideration ~

Dear Netflix, the Grishaverse series is a series that keeps on giving. The characters keep on growing and just get better and better. It's a story of hope and overcoming hardships which as a theme resonates with people in our current society. To cut it short is devastating. To not allow the characters to reach their resolutions is heartbreaking.

Dear Netflix,
Shadow and Bone is a show which means so much to so many. It's a found family for so many fans. The story has a deep impact, thanks to the many characters and their amazing stories. We can understand them, and find a bit of ourself in some of them. This universe feels real, very few shows are able to do this nowadays. This cast is absolutely outstanding and special, being able to find the exact way to portray their characters rightfully, which is rare. This show deserves a complete story and a good closure, for the fans and for the cast and crew.

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone is a great book series and you managed to make an interesting show of it as well. I was skeptical because it combined two separate series, but it's honestly really creative and wonderful. We left off on two big plot points and it would be a shame to do nothing with that when the books don't have the answer. You've made something unique and to cancel it now would be a shame for all involved

Admittedly, I read shadow and bone first and wasn't too interested in continuing. BUT THEN, I watched season one— each and every actor in the show gave me reasons to pick the books up again.: the idea of persevering in the face of trouble, understanding that it won't be easy, but people can change and that you really can find family anywhere. All of them have done so well portraying their characters and deserve to see their stories through to the end.

Dear netflix, I have loved this series for years. It is the thing that got me through some of the darkest times in my life, and even now, it helps. But this isn't about just me. The characters in that story are not just something of profit for you to exploit. They have shape and depth, and over half of said characters represent people and situations that big media doesn't cover. If you truly cancel this show, you will silence the people who are talking about the things that need fixing and visibility.

Dear Netflix, the Grishaverse meant the world to me way before it was adapted and to see this beautiful world and amazingly written characters brought to life was everything to me. Not only that but also the fact that so many talented people worked on the show too. From the crew, the producers and the directors to Leigh Bardugo herself. Everyone of them gave their all to make this show the masterpiece it is. And don't even get me started on the cast. Those people loved their jobs and the fictional universe they were called to bring to life deeply. Connected with their characters, gave everything they had to make them even more perfect than they already are. Their talent is undeniable and incomparable. And not only that but the connected with each other both inside and outside the set. They shared so much, they respected and loved and admired each other and became family. I can't tell you how much joy it brought to me to see them interact and talk about their work and the time they spent together. Shadow and bone, this beautiful show, along with the incredible people that worked on it helped me get through some rough times and even now I turn to it every time I find myself needing a reason to smile. We, as a fandom, placed our hopes in Netflix's hands from the moment the sjow was announced and the show didn't disappoint us. What is disappointing us now is your decision to cancel it. Nevertheless, we keep trying to show you that you should reconsider because the Grishaverse is something worth fighting for. There are many people out there that share my love for this beautiful universe and I speak for us all. We are once again placing all of our hopes in your hands. Dear Netflix,

Most book fandoms have a problem when their favorite worlds are being put to the screen. The fear that the show or movie will lack the same magic as their favorite series is prevalent with all of the criticism, but the hope for something amazing is ever present in the background, letting us readers think "what if this time it's different"?

When shadow and bone was first released, it pushed out fears to the side. It showed us that our favorite world had been done justice. That you all CARED about the show that was being put together.

You have a fantastic cast. Each actor accurately represents their character the way we, as a book fandom, imagined them. Freddy's portrayal of Kaz's cleverness and cunning was unmatched. Amita's portrayal of Inej's devotion to her saints brought us near tears. Kit's portrayal of Jesper's humor and wit had us laughing with him. Ben's portrayal of our morally grey darkling had us feeling for him. Jessie's portrayal of Alina's self actualization and struggle showed us the sun summoner we all needed and wanted. Archie's portrayal of Mal's bravery and loyalty had us finding our own true north.

To take that away from us after two phenomenal seasons is unjust. The representation of different cultures and lifestyles brought us all to our feet, cheering for the work you all had done to create the magical world we all care for.

You have a cast and crew who are passionate about the show, and you have fans that are willing to fight for them. That's more than most can dream of. While we aren't the biggest fan base, we have heart.

Personally, a six of crowd spin off would mean the world to me. We'd get to see the little moments in the books that the show is setting up for. If you'd take a chance to read them, you'd know that. Or even just look out on social media. We care about our crows and our Grishaverse.

A season 3 or spinoff would close doors that you flung open with the season 2 ending. You opened the six of crows story, now we ask you to finish it.

Because we've got nothing else to lose. And we're as patient as saints. And we won't stop fighting.

No mourner,

The grishaverse fandom

Dear Netflix, I usually have a hard time nowadays finding good quality fantasy media, and the Grishaverse is exactly that. Well developed characters brought to the screen by perfect casting and a talented & motivated team is such a rare thing nowadays, I found myself rewatching S&B again and again (even though I'm not one of the people who do that frequently!). Cancelling it will only result in a lot of fantasy fans leaving netflix for good, especially after multiple netflix-based book adaptations with horrible ratings (witcher, faith, etc). As a fantasy fan I was so happy about Shadow and Bone, now I'm equally sad about it getting cancelled.

Dear Netflix, when the first season of Shadow & Bone came out, I had not yet heard of the Grishaverse. From your rendition of the book series, I got sucked right into the Grishaverse world. I purchased every book and read them all before the second season was even announced, let alone released. I loved how both Shadow & Bone and Six of Crows characters were spun into the same timeline and we were able to watch both series unfold consecutively. The characters were cast with such precision and accuracy, that as I read the series, the actors were the only faces I visualized for the characters as they were near identical to their description. I think this series could become something quite big if given the opportunity and done correctly. Please, let the story unfold and finish on the screen.

Dear Netflix, I first found the Grishaverse in late 2021 but chance, I read the books and then whilst googling about it I stumbled upon the show. I was worried that the world I'd fallen in love with hadn't been done justice, but I found that you had done complete justice to the world, and was the best book to screen adaptation I've ever seen. The casting for all the characters is spot on and perfect, I love the entire cast so much, they didn't deserve their show to be cancelled. Leigh Bardugo created an amazing universe with amazing messages, and she didn't deserve for her world to be cancelled. I love this world, the book and the show. It's story deserves to be finished. There's so many things that you didn't add that could've been shown (zoyalia, Matthias meeting the other crows and Alina's ending, just to name a few).

Dear Netflix,
I'm always so sceptical about books I love being adapted, but Shadow & Bone did it so well. I rewatched both seasons multiple times and even skipped school to watch both season as soon as they came out. As a fan of the books this show was just perfect and I know from my parents (who haven't read the books) that it was beloved by non book readers as well. My parents even rewatched it, despite my dad not rewatching many things. All of us, me, my parents, my friends, so many fans, were so disappointed and confused by it being cancelled. A beautiful adaptation such as this one deserves more story. It deserves more time for the characters to develop. It deserves to show more of the world building. It deserves another season.

Dear Netflix, The Bardugo book series is unique. I love all the character designs that have been created with so much love. Not only are they extremely representative, but they are also really likeable in their own way.
Six of crows, and by extension shadow and bone, has given me a nice break from my daily routine and I love the show with all my heart.
Please consider this spinoff or season 3, otherwise I, and many others, will miss it very much!

Dear Netflix, through the Grishaverse I found my love for fantasy novels again. Until Shadow and Bone, no fantasy show or novel ever stuck with me as much as Harry Potter or Game of Thrones did. In short: I find the Grishaverse infinitely compelling and inspiring. Be it the show, the books about Alina, Mal and the Darkling, Six of Crows or the King Nikolai duology - I have devoured all of them after finally finding something that I can love just as much as my teenage favourite Harry Potter.

seeing the Grishaverse on screen is one of the best things people can experience. No really, after that cliffhanger you can't just leave us hanging. The changes the Netflix adaptation made were interesting and good, adding diversity in the cast and an interesting twist in the plot. I and many others would love to see where the new plot leads to, as we can't get enough of Alina Starkov and the rest. Especially the crows have my heart, but the best scenes are currently only words on paper and we need to see them acted out. The show gave us an opportunity to get a new perspective regarding the shipping of characters and the general plot. The actors are all amazing and fit the characters very well.
Please renew Shadow and Bone and preferably the Six of Crows spin-off too.
No mourners. No funerals.

Dear Netflix,
Shadow and Bone is one of those tv shows that you simply cannot put down. Me and my friend counted down the days until season twos release and then watched the first episode together at lunch. So much screaming occurred and it's honestly one of my best memories. I couldn't wait to see what direction season three would go in as so many of my favorite characters were only just added to the show. I really hope you renew this amazing show!
Thank you!
cleodawson88 via Instagram

Lovely idea - you guys are amazing. My message: Dear Netflix, I had been intending to read Six of Crows for a long while, but hadn't gotten around to it. Then your Shadow & Bone was advertised to me, and oh man! I watched it, fell in love with the beautiful and dedicated cast, and immediately picked up the books. Now that duology is my favourite, and even though it can be hard to watch a show deviate from its books, I've loved watching your "AU" interpretation. I know it's emotionally hard to rescind a decision, but please bring it back to us - the story was far from finished. <3

I love the show because it reminds me of the family that went through hardships to survive in the end
raisav_isa via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I love the Shadow and Bone tv show so much, my friends and I can never stop talking about it, and it's brought us closer together. The source material is absolutely incredible, and seeing it brought to live action with a star studded cast, excellent cgi, sound design, acting, costumes etc is so exciting, seeing the new way the story unfolds with the Crows' storyline veiny combined with Alina's is very interesting, Leigh Bardugo is right, it's like a high budget fan fiction, and that's so much fun! The show as been fantastic already, but I'm telling you, there is a whole goldmine's worth of moments yet to be adapted in Bardugo's series, especially that in the Six of Crows series. Not only is it entertaining, but it's also astonishingly diverse, allowing more people to see themselves in fantasy stories, a genre which is unfortunately often not a great source of representation. It would be in Netflix's best interest to consider renewing this series, the fanbase is truly alive and kicking and desperate for more.

thaliak4te via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I just found this series last year, and Inej and Nina have been powerful inspiration to me. Fantasy stories are my safe space, the emotional journeys feel real without situations feeling too close to life. The situations Inej and Nina went through felt just far enough removed from me I could be helped by their journeys instead of feeling uncomfortable, too close to home. They feel real to me, thanks to Leigh Bardugo's writing, the actors portrayals, and all of your hard work to create the show. I don't know how they managed to remain so open, kind, and genuine after what's they've been through, but they have inspired me likewise to live with less of my armor on. Please, if you would, I'd love to see the end of their story. Love, Colette colette_.laina.olson via Instagram

Dear Netflix, From the beautiful story, to the perfect cast, the incredible chemistry, the endlessly quotable exchanges , the Grishaverse deserves to go on and on. Rarely has a show had such wonderful representation, allowing people to find themselves in highly entertaining, complicated, and always compelling characters. Whether a Grisha, a Crow, or anything in between, there is someone for everyone in this show. Thank you for giving them to us, and please bring them back! You made a mistake, but like Inej taught us, "this action will have no echo" when our show comes back!

Dear Netflix, Shadow and bone has become so important to me. The grishaverse helped me in a really dark time and so many others as well. The cast is absolutely amazing and it breaks my heart that we won't be able to see it go on. Especially with the amazing end, I was hoping that it would go on and maybe get to see the crows with the Jordan parem storyline. Please renew the show since it is by far your best project

Dear Nexflix,
The first time I read Shadow and Bone and Six of Crows was the start of year 11. I was obsessed with the books (particularly six of crows) and even later in the year used it for my English essay. When the tv show announcement came out when I was in year 12 I was so ecstatic and remember how excited I was being in class and seeing the cast revealed for the first time and how perfect it was! I've had such high hopes for this show for years and as a long time book fan I wasn't disappointed in the slightest. Everything about this show was perfect from the casting and how they interact with each other to how they adapted the plot. It's my all time favourite tv show and ever since I've watched shows/movies that are adapted from books with such high expectations hoping that it may possibly be almost as good as this one. However, each time I've been dismally disappointed. I've got so many memories of this show and these books. These characters are a part of me and I have so many personal memories that are so nostalgic to look back on. I want to keep reliving the high this show gives and to continue making memories that this show and these books have given me over the past years. Please bring it back and continue making the magic!
jazminkriewaldt via Instagram

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone is one of the rare exceptions of a excellent and well done book adaptation to show. The casting? perfect. The plot? Beautiful. The backgrounds and cgi? Amazing. Please don't crush the hearts of many, many grishaverse fans but denying us one of the best shows we have ever watched.

The netflix show really nailed the casting! I mostly find it a shame to never see this cast portraying the characters again
sasjaw17 via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I had never had a show where I had seen myself on screen. Wylan means everything to me, he has my same disability, we're both queer, AND he's still a science loving badass. I hope you regret taking that representation away.

Dear Netflix, this show has been one of my favourites since I saw it Alina's story and the crows' story are both individually amazing and together too. The writing, acting , directing, etc were all quite fabulous. This was one of your masterpieces , please bring it back

My favorite thing about Shadow and Bone is that it made my most beloved characters come to life in a truly rare and unique way. It's not often that I feel TV series do Justice to source material, but Shadow and Bone did it. It meant the world to me to see it on screen and I was gutted over the cancellation.
g_mlsna via Instagram

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone was the reason I paid for you, and your cancellation of the show was the reason I cancelled my subscription. It is such an incredible story that is a comfort to so many people around the world (as seen by its high ratings, dedicated fandom, and ability to stay in the top 10 long after its release), it has an amazing cast and crew that are all so passionate about the show and put so much hard work into making it as incredible as it is, and is a rich and magical world that still has so many more stories and adventures to share with us. Its cancellation was by no means a fair or reasonable one, and the fans, the cast and crew, and the characters all deserve to properly finished the story they started.

I love shadow and bone because it makes me feel seen. I can finally see myself represented in media in a show that isn't about the holocaust. Please don't take away that representation.

Dear Netflix, I discovered Shadow and Bone just by scrolling on your app because I was looking for something knew. I thought it was interesting and I started warching it. Once I started I couldn't stop. I felt in love with this show. Then I started to read the books and I even went to conventions to meet the actors. No shows have ever bring me that much joy. For me everything about S&B is perfect, the scenario, the actors, the decor...everything. It might sound stupid but this show helped me a lot with my mental health. And I got to discover such amazing actors, all more talented than the others. I only knew Ben Barnes but then I felt in love with an amazing cast that has a beautiful bound with each other, they are a family and us, fans, are also parts of this family. When I saw season 2, I was so excited for what's coming after, but nothing...S&B helped me a lot and this show is so important to me. With this show I got to go to conventions and meet, not only the actors, but also other fans that are so nice and that truly love this show. I know we were over a 1000 for both conventions, both almost sold out. People from all over the world were coming to Paris just for that because they, like me, lived the show and got to discover amazing people, I met a girl from Chicago that went there just to meet them, twice, because she loved the show! This proves that this show is loved.

zoecitlati via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I have loved the Grishaverse for years, even before the inkling of the show, and when I watched the show that love multiplied a thousand fold. I was submerged not just in the story but also in all the actors, who portrayed the characters so well. I constantly looked forward to any and all the bts and actor tidbits I could get my hands on. Believe me when I say I have rewatched the show many a times and it never gets old. All the charm this show has can never be lost. I really hope that you'll consider all the fans' love for this show and would not break our hearts.

anonymous.reader.av via Instagram

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone is one of the few shows around that feels just right. It's not slow-paced, the casting is brilliant and it so perfectly connects with the book series. Please don't cancel this beautiful show now

dizzylizzy0000 via Instagram

Dear Netflix, OH let me tell you.. you got me into the grishaverse, I remember when I first binged the entire first season when it came out, and when I found out it was based on books I went to buy them almost immediately. I have never read fantasy before that, and if we're talking books? I've read like 5 at the time. You have got me to absolutely adore and obsess over one of the most gorgeous worlds from a modern author. Since then I've watched season one and two, both, at least a dozen times, read 7 out of the 10 total books in Leigh's universe AT LEAST once. You made me fall in love with Alina and Malyen, David and Genya, Kaz with his crows, and that's it for making, but not even close to the end of the list. You have awoken currently my greatest obsession only to cancel it, you have made me love a book like I've never before only to tell me that's it for the adaptations... With the cancellation you've created movements, petitions with dozens of thousands of signs, kickstarters for advertising, but you still didn't renew.. By this you've taken my time, money, and most importantly heart. And not just me, but also all the people in this comment section, dozens of thousands of petition signers, thousands of supporters and HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS of people who paid for your service, watched S&B and liked it. Bring our beloved universe back to life, please renew.

sankt_dominik via Instagram

Dear Netflix, my favourite thing about shadow and bone was the chemistry between the actors and how it felt like you were transported to a different, cooler world. This show felt more like reading a book than watching a show and I have never enjoyed a TV show adaptation of a book more than the actual book until shadow and bone.

rubber_fish7 via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I was not sure at first if I would like Shadow and Bone but I fell completely and unconditionally in love with it. I loved how the Crows were part of the Shadow and Bone storyline and it was even better than in the book. The book itself was incredible and it is not everyday that a series captures someone as much as Shadow and Bone did with me. I loved the cast, perfect casting is hard to accomplish. I am desperate for a third season and would love a Six of Crows Spinoff with my whole heart. I hope that our wishes come true.

Dear Netflix, this show is something to be proud of- bringing two such loved series together like never expected outside of headcanon and could bring in so many more views. Saving a fan favourite can only build usership. beth_c_art via Instagram

Dear Netflix, The Grishaverse has been the sole reason I've been watching anything on Netflix. This show, the actors, the production, etc. breathed a breath of new life into Netflix's tv series. I barely used my subscription because everything kept being cancelled or not renewed or just downright bad; but the grishaverse changed that up. Watching these books come to life has truly been something special, and sharing these experiences via watch party's with friends (or re-watches alone while doing homework) have meant the world to me. Don't cancel a popular show series, especially when there are many more stories to be told that WE ALL would love to see told.

pbandjess22 via Instagram

Dear Netflix, the grishaverse is the book that made me come to love myself for the first time. To show strong South Asian Characters, who are fighters, when the media has always portrayed as the smart/nerdy one for years. It made me love my body because a plus sized character embraced her curves and beauty when the media has always shown them as insecure. It's something that brought people together and allow people to bond over. The diversity, the representation it means something to everyone. It shows us that love doesn't have to be physical and that women have their own agency and can rise up against their difficulties. Queer characters portrayed in such a beautiful manner, that love really has no gender and no bounds. We do not only want it back to see our favorite characters brought to life. We want it back to have these messages shown in modern media, where diversity and representation is still lacking.

Dear Netflix, I have genuine friendships that started with a joint love for Shadow & Bone. Shows with that much diversity, hilarity, and future potential are so rare! These are characters we care about; please don't go down in history as the company that robbed us of Julie & the Phantoms, Lockwood & Co, AND Shadow & Bone. Just saying, it's not a good sign when a company keeps canceling shows with so much non-white representation...Your move, Netflix.

ali_euphoria via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I had been a fan of the grishaverse for a very long time and when you announced you would be making a show of it I totally freaked out!! I counted down the days until it was released and binged the first few episodes the moment they were out. I have absolutely loved watching my favorite characters of all time come to life and live out the stories that I fell in love with years ago. When I heard there wouldn't be a renewal of the show or a spin off of Six of Crows I was devastated. I was so looking forward to seeing the crows pull of the ice court heist and being able to watch my favorite characters break into the ice court and escape on a stolen tank. I really hope and pray that you will change your minds and renew the series or make a spin off. So many fans like me are devastated by your abandonment of the grishaverse. I'm begging you to reconsider I know I and others would watch any series to come about the grishaverse so many times as there have already been many rewatches of the first two seasons. Please reconsider Netflix

jillianmackk via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I am a huge fan of the books, I love the story and the world and the characters so much. I was so excited when I found out there was going to be a show and now I am devastated that it's been cancelled despite having a huge fan base and performing well. There is such a diverse range of characters and I'm disappointed that we won't get to see their journeys continue. I've gotten my whole family into the grishaverse and have been reading six of crows with my boyfriend because I love it and he loves me. Dear Netflix,

This story has a diverse cast and compelling plot. It is a narrative with integrity which has been constructed with the finest craftsmanship. It would be a shame to let such latent potential go to waste. Clearly there's a large and devoted fanbase, I'd contend there's nothing that could derive from this renewal but the potential for that audience to grow even larger. Make the right choice!

Dear Netflix, Shadow and bone was the opportunity I had to see my favorite characters on screen. Six teenagers struggling through life in an unreal situation have helped me in a way you could never understand. The storyline is not simple or full of happiness. But going back and watching the show brings me - and so much people - comfort. The shadow and bone trilogy, Six of crows, Crooked Kingdom, King of Scars qnd all the books Leigh has written, they mean more than views on these episodes. The script, the lines being brought to life, the amazing cast. It wasn't nothing. We learned with these characters that hope can be dangerous, we also learned that light can be find, and that we never stop fighting. We don't even know if all we've been doing wil be something enough to cause a reconsideration. But we're trying, because the show deserves to be seen.

_dylan__hansen_ via Instagram

Dear Netflix, I cannot explain how much it means to see my all time favourite literary characters come to life before my eyes on screen. The way the show combines both the shadow & bone characters with the crows and adapts events to include them all I'm such brilliantly daring and exciting ways makes the show 10000x more exciting to watch. It's so heartbreaking to think it has simply stopped when it had so much more room to grow and thrive. The show speaks to so many people. For me especially, the crows are a place for the outcasts - for those of us who were simply told to lie down and accept our fate. Feeling a connection to characters like that very rarely happens for me, but I receive that from this show. It has so much room to grow and carry on being even more amazing. Please bring it back to us. Please.

mariajacob15 via Instagram

Dear Netflix!

I beg you to reconsider your decision to cancel Shadow and Bone and the already written Six of Crows spinoff!

The cast does a perfect job of portraying the beloved book characters!

Shadow and Bond is a series that doesn't shy away from diversity but embraces it, resulting in it representing a variety of diverse people from all parts of the world.

In my opinion, the film industry has a significant influence on how people who are "different" are perceived by society. Therefore, you are also responsible for showing that "Different Isn't Bad; It's Just Not The Same."- (Anne Shirley Cuthbert- another series that was canceled too soon).

There are still so many backstories that need to be told, especially of the women:

-Inej was taken away from her parents and sold to a brothel at the age of fourteen just because of her skin color!

-Genya was given to the queen as a servant and sexually abused by the king for years!

-Zoya's mother almost married her to a much older man when she was nine years old!

So, I kindly ask you to do this for them and show that women are independent and strong despite their tragic pasts!

PS: Please do not let Matthias stay in Hellgate forever!

Dear Netflix, I didn't love ONE thing about shadow and bone. I loved it all. As a reader of the books, although everything was squashed together for that second season it brought some of my favorite characters to life and brought them in before the series ended so I got to see them early happily. I hope for another season because this was by far the most captivating fantasy show I had watched in awhile and helped me get out of my depressive rut. The costumes were also so beautiful, I loved Alina's black dress with the gold stitching. I don't think I ever wanted a dress so bad.
thatsludavina via Instagram

The show took all the great parts of the stories Leigh wrote and enhanced them by correcting or improving on weaker points. The intermingling of the original trilogy and introducing the crows in a type of prologue to the SOC duology was masterfully done and kept the story engaging. Alina could be in a peaceful forest-wandering time while the crows were in high stakes, and vice versa. The casting was phenomenal, the acting was impeccable, and the story was just perfect. Devastating that such a wonderful show was canceled.

lulu_ninja1 via Instagram

Dear Netflix,
The Grishaverse was one of the first book series that made me feel seen. It depicted my feeling in a way I never hoped I could find representation.And especially the Crows. They are the characters, whom I could relate to the most. Yes, they are criminals, but they are also teens, with teenage problems. When I first heard, that there would be a series I screamed, because I could never imagine to actually see my beloved character on the screen. When I watched the series I fell in love even more. Somehow the visuals were so close to what I was imagining in my head, that it was almost creepy. When I learned that there might be a Six of Crows spinoff I screamed again. To have a show this perfect about my favourite people... It seemed impossible. Then I watched season 2 and my jaw droppedd, I didn't think anything could top season 1 and boy, was I wrong! It was even better. So I waited about news of season 3, the show was no.1 everywhere, we did everything we could and more, but still it wasn't enough. When I heard the news, I cried. I cried because I lost the opportunity to see even more of the beuty I grew up reading about.
Sincerely,
A pissed fan

Dear Netflix,
Whenever a fantasy saga is turned into a TV show it also goes from 👍 to 👎. Like, instantly. Automatically. Inevitably.
But Shadow and Bone did not. I love the characters, the cast is amazing, the effects and everything, I mean...do you really need a reason to save this show???
If the answer is yes then know that I DESPERATELY NEED MORE KANEJ MOMENTS as well as I need more of Nikolai's in my life so yeah, just do it. Now. Thank u 😊

Dear Netflix,
I cannot envision a world in which the Six of Crows masterpiece is not adapted into a series with our magnificent, pitch perfect cast. If not perfection, then what do you want to adapt?
I cannot envision a world in which Game of Thrones and House of the Dragon give us magnificent dragon queens only to murder them by the end of the story. That's why the King of Scars duology is different. Adapt it to Shadow and Bone season 3 and give us Sujaya Dasgupta as the first living dragon queen in today's fantasy adaptations!
You want a crown jewel for your portofolio and here is your opportunity!

Dear Netflix,

Please let the creators of Shadow and Bone finish the story. There are SO MANY important narratives from the series that remain unexplored on screen. Six of Crows, in particular, is a fan favorite. The characters are just so richly realized and we have the PERFECT cast on deck ready to go to bring them to life. If you are just worried about the bottom line, I hope you realize that the Crows would bring in new viewers. But I hope you also worry about more than the bottom line. In this data-driven industry, don't lose sight of the vital importance of storytelling. It is what makes us human. I hope you realize just how much the world loves these characters, these worlds, and these stories. No Mourners

Dear netflix, one of the many things I liked the most in Shadow and Bone was how the actors represented the characters' alchemy. I loved how Jesper-Kit looked at Wylan-Jack, how Inej-Amita talked to the man she'd just smashed, or how Nina spoke to Matthias. Moreover, I loved the scenery, the costules that seem so accurate and the accuracy of all the makeups, hair, in general. But I despise the fact that I will never see Matthias out of prison, or that Nicolay will not fall in love with Zoya. I hope you reconsider your position soonly. Sincerely

Dear Netflix

I don't think you realise quite how special your show is. It has a rich, diverse set of characters played by a passionate, perfect cast. The potential for expansion of the Grishaverse on Netflix is HUGE. You were only getting started! Six of Crows would explode onto screens and hook a massive new audience in addition to the existing ones. Those stories need to be told!

Netflix Please, for saints sake, continue this show. It has been such an amazing series and i know there are more people who would appreciate a continuing than not. It has the potential and i know the cast wants it as much as we do.

Anastasia via Thankbox

Shadow and Bone is a show that holds a special position in my heart thanks to many aspects. The world is absorbing and interesting, with all the history, political issues and culture depicted. The characters are relatable on a personal level thanks to their well-built complex personalities and development throughout the story (which many certainly would like to see continued). The cast showed us that they can handle the roles perfectly, considering their chemistry and dedication to the portrayal. It was delightful to see them on screen. In addition to this, every well-cared-for aesthetic part of the show, from scenography or VFX to details in costumes, made the show even more amazing.

And last, but definitely not least, let's not forget about the fanbase. All the people devoted to saving the show with such great commitment. The efforts of the people wanting to make an impact gave me courage to write this message and make me feel proud for being - even if small- part of the whole campaign.

I hope, eventually you will reconsider your decision.

Dear Netflix, it isn't very often that we get to see a universe that is so healing to so many people. In a way, we're all outcasts and we all feel alone in this world. The Grishaverse shows us that that's more than okay, it's normal. Shadow and Bone and Six of Crows validates our experiences, our feelings, and our stories because they show us that we are not worse for them, we're better and more complete. We need season 3 of Shadow and Bone and the Six of Crows spin-off.

Dear Netflix, I discovered Shadow and Bone thanks to the show as I hadn't read the books beforehand. I watched the first season while I was in bed with long Covid, not sure if I would ever make it out of the Fold that was my illness. It gave me a lot of strength and comfort to find some light in the darkness. Fast forward to 2023, I was excited to watch season 2 but I have to admit I never expected how much this season would actually change my life forever. First, seeing Wylan on screen was a moment of enlightenment for me as, for the first time, I was seeing someone shy and anxious be a badass and be loved simply for who he is. Second, the Wesper relationship, even though it was different from the book, was one of the best, if not the best depictions of what a healthy relationship should be like. It is so rare, both in fiction and in real life, that I fell for these two really hard and I feel like they healed my heart and helped me make decisions in my private life that I might not have had the courage to make before. Third, I've been a cinema buff for 20 years and I've been hanging around movie sets and red carpets for 12 years but I have genuinely never seen such a pure and inspiring energy as the one present within the cast and crew of the show. Moreover, the people I have discovered in the fandom have also changed my life forever. The characters and the stories of Shadow and Bone allow everyone, and especially those of us who have always felt like misfits, to find ourselves and to be validated, comforted and inspired to go on, no matter what hardships we encounter. This isn't just a show, it's a community and it's a long-term involvement for many of us. It is not just fiction; it has tremendous repercussions on the real lives of thousands of people. Please consider the impact you have had by bringing this show to life and don't take it away from us before its conclusion.

Dear Netflix,

One thing i absolutely love about both the books and the show was the span of diverse characters that had such depth with amazingly tragic backgrounds. each individual had a lifetime of fighting to survive which brought everyone together. the stories are so creative and Leigh Bardugo is truly amazing. The castings were spot on, and i was so sad to hear of its cancellation. seeing those books come to life on screen was such an indescribable experience and i'm sure it would be in your best interest to continue! everyone in the fandom is so passionate about their adoration for the series, and the actors just as much. seeing their on and off screen dynamics are just incredible. we all want Season 3 of Shadow and Bone!!!

bruennc via Instagram

If only you knew how much I love Shadow and Bone. It is one of the best shows I have ever watched. It's cast is so incredible they literally managed to bring their characters to life straight from the pages of the books. The crew did an amazing job in every aspect: the scripts, the set design, costume design, everything. The special effects were absolutely gorgeous (and nominated for an Emmy no less! They totally deserved the win but either way that must tell you this show was money well spent).

As far as representation goes this show is phenomenal. It has got a lot of queer representation, as well as people of many ethnic backgrounds (who are lead roles, not just side characters!) and it has disability representation in many shapes and forms. From invisible disabilities such as neurodivergent characters to physical disabilities. As far as representation goes, it is one of the best shows out there, and it deserves more.

It is also good for business for Netflix to invest more in shows instead of cancelling them all. Shows need time to grow and audience and a show like this one had the potential to grow so much more than it already did. Can you imagine, Six of Crows is one of the most popular book series still, even though it has been published for years. And many fans of Six of Crows don't even know about it's relationship to Shadow and Bone, can you imagine how many new viewers you would get if you made Six of Crows!

Six of Crows is cheaper to make, of course, and the scripts are already written and the beloved cast is also ready to go, which means that this show can start production quickly.

For me, this show has helped me through some dark days. The cast interviews were some of the best cast interviews I have seen. This show is amazing in literally every way and it deserved so much more than it got.

Until we meet again, no mourners no funerals

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone introduced me to the wonder of the Grishaverse and it's genius creator Leigh Bardugo. The show really brought the world and it's characters to life. I love how cleverly the SaB and SoC storylines were intertwined in the show and how we get a backstory to the crows. The casting is superb and each actor represents their character perfectly. Now all I wish is for the story to be continued and allowing my favourite characters, The Crows, to have their moment in the spotlight so that we can truly appreciate their character arcs. I desperately need to see all six crows come together and the ice court heist. I need to see Nina & Matthias reunited, Kaz & Inej's fight against their individual traumas, and Jesper & Wylan explore and develop their relationship. This show has such a diverse representation including LGBTQ+, racial, neurodivergency, and disability. It tackles racial and religious prejudice and each character demonstrates positive & progressive growth which is both inspiring and necessary to have in media. Shadow and Bone has given me and so many others a beautiful world to escape into as well as learn from. I felt seen, understood and accepted to see characters like me on screen. This show is truly magical and I will never stop watching it. Please please reconsider greenlighting the six of crows spin-off and a third season of Shadow and Bone. We will never stop fighting for our beloved show which has given us so much. Brick by Brick, Steph 🍷

Dear Netflix,
Shadow and Bone came into my life when I was at my lowest and when I struggled with a lot of things. I heard about this new TV show and after watching the trailer, I started reading the books and finished "Shadow and Bone" in one day. I immediately fell in love with the characters (mostly Genya, David, Fedya and Ivan) and they gave me a new sense of hope. After the first season came out, and me falling in love all over again, I was brave enough to come out as bisexual. Not everyone accepted me for being my truest self but thanks to Fedya and Ivan, I didn't really care. These two saved my life in so many ways that I got a tattoo to honour them. It really broke my heart when I found out they won't be in season two but I had hope of them returning in season three, just as they were promised to. But I will never get to see them. Please, give them another season and an ending they deserve.

Dear Netflix, i love "Shadow and Bone" because it's a wonderfully crafted show with a crew and cast who really care about their work and getting it right. It also has tons of race and queer representation, which, in my opinion, is very important for young people today and since Netflix has a lot of influence, you should use it for good. Since "Shadow and Bone" has been cancelled, me and many others have severely cut down on our Netflix watch time, because we'd rather have a new season of this show than watch any other. "Shadow and Bone" is incredibly important to its fans and cast, and if you decide to renew it, all of those thousands of fans will watch it.

Dear Netflix, it was a joy to watch a fantasy show with two incredible Asian leads, that also prominently features other complex, compelling characters of color, disabled characters, and queer characters. The story most important to me is Inej, who as a survivor of sexual violence uses her freedom to free others. We need more seasons to do her story justice, which is important to so many, and the stories of the other wonderful characters.

doodlesnoff via Instagram

Dear Netflix,

Shadow and Bone on Netflix stands out not only as a captivating series but as a significant milestone in representation within the fantasy genre. Beyond its captivating narrative and introduction to an expansive series, the show boldly steps away from the conventional Eurocentric fantasy landscape. It weaves a tapestry of diverse cultures and ethnicities, challenging norms and resonating with a global audience.

In a genre often criticized for its lack of diversity, Shadow and Bone breaks the mold. The inclusion of characters with diverse (dis)abilities, body types, and sexual orientations enriches the storytelling, offering a reflection of the beautifully diverse real world we live in.

As a fan, the show's commitment to creating a world where representation matters is so important. Shadow and Bone reminds us that fantasy isn't just about escaping reality; it's about reimagining a reality where everyone has a place and a compelling story worth telling. It's a Netflix gem that goes beyond entertainment, leaving an indelible mark on the landscape of inclusive storytelling.

There is so much story left to tell, and countless reasons why Netflix should reverse their cancellation. Please save Shadow and Bone, and greenlight the Six of Crows spin-off!

El cast es simplemente fantástico, cada actor es literalmente el personaje que interpreta.

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone is an absolute masterpiece and it feels very unfinished. The casting was top tier I don't think I've ever seen such an accurate casting and the cast love each other and they want to meet again on set. Dear Netflix, I discovered the Grishaverse through this show. I fell in love with the world, the characters, and eventually read the books. This show introduced me to a world of unique characters. It presents a story of love, betrayal, hurt, revenge, and healing. The characters have taught us so much, from the importance of getting back up, to the fact that we are more than our blood, to the value of our chosen family. And there is so much more for them to teach us. This world, these characters, showed me that there is always a way out, no matter how dark things look. They deserve - as do the cast and crew who worked so hard to bring them to life - to have their stories told. Completely.

Dear Netflix, the Grishaverse offered me a representation I didn't even know I needed, but was essential to my life and well-being. I think it's the most beautiful thing a piece of art can do, and this universe being adapted to a show format helps spreading its values that are so important to so many people. This is why I love the Grishaverse and I love this show and I think it deserves more. And I'm not even mentioning the brilliant casting, or all the other things that make this show an incredible adaptation !

The fascinating characters! My sister and I bonded over this story, and I hope you bring back one of your best, most inclusive, unique shows in years.
Olivia, from North America

Shadow and Bone has some of the best characters ever and seeing them be brought to life is magical. Six of Crows is one of the best books I've ever read and all of the characters from it are complex and deep. They embody found family more than any other group of characters and the casting for these characters was phenomenally spot on. The joy I felt watching these stories be told through television was immense and I would give anything to see the Six of Crows spinoff that was in the works. These characters deserve to have the Ice Court heist brought to life and the fandom deserves to see it done.
Anonymous, from North America - "Please please please please please give us Six of Crows!"

Shadow and Bone is one of those rare shows where everything and everyone is represented to perfection. I love how we got to experience every character's history and live it with them and cancelling the show resulted in those beautiful stories being cut short. The cast and crew did an AMAZING job while developing the show and it would be a waste of so much if it was to not be saved.
Lorie Deborah, from Africa - "Please Bring the show back!"

Shadow and Bone got me through multiple different spells in the hospital. This show kept me sane, and seeing my favorite books adapted for the screen made me so happy.

Shadow and Bone is an incredible piece of media with a great cast, cgi and plot. It has a diverse and interesting plot with characters many find comfort in, myself included.
Anonymous, from Australia - "It's a shame that cancelling this series as many have signed up purely to watch it and by cancelling it you loose a large audience of people."

Shadow and Bone and Six of Crows got me through some very difficult time and without them I do not think I would be here today. Crows and their found family trope got me hoping for something like that in the future. When I learned that there was a show on Netflix that adaptates the books I was thrilled. I watched it numerous times, paying for an account, on already tight budget, just so I could keep on rewatching. When the decision of cancelling not only the SaB show but also the SoC spinoff came to the public, I was absolutely heartbroken and depressed. I still am but I have hope. Hope that you will repost your decision and give hundreds of thousands fans their show back. You have to see that the series have a stable fanbase that came together to create a petition, fundraiser and organised watch-parties that brought to the fandom even more people. We never stop fighting.

Kali, from Europe - "No mourners. No funerals"

I absolutely love the fantasy and sci-if genre however when I see a book-to-show adaptation, most (if not all) the time, I'm always disappointed by the writing, casting ora general lack of consideration for the source material from directors (@theWitcher). Shadow and Bone however, jumped right off the page and is one of the best adaptations I've seen despite its general changes in writing to incorporate the Six of Crows crew (which in my opinion made it even better). Overall, each person involved in the show, from the writers, actors, costumers, etc. showed how much they respected and loved the source material and did their best to bring justice to the series while also creating something new for a general audience.
Meghan, from North America - "Please consider being back this series or at least green-light a Six of Crows spin off. If it's already been decided that you don't want to do anything with this series please also consider selling the rights/scripts to another streaming service."

The show is what I fell in love with and I'm too invested in this creation to see it end!
Emily, from North America - "Please save shadow and bone!"

Shadow and Bones means so much to me because it introduced me to Wylan Van Eck. As a dyslexic person seeing a character with dyslexia portrayed on screen means a lot to me! I know S&B didn't get a chance to get into his backstory but I also deeply resonate with his backstory from the Six of Crow books. I was devastated when I heard about the cancellation. I truly hope Netflix decides to green light the Six of Crows spinoff so the Crows get the screen time and character development they deserve.
Laura, from North America

Shadow and Bone was such a comforting show for me. The fantasy elements as well as real life issues like war and prejudice made the show so immersive and enjoyable. I was so happy to see how well season 2 was doing in its first week and I expected that the show would be renewed for a 3rd season. I was heartbroken when I found out the story had been cut short. Please bring back Shadow and Bone and/or Six of Crows!!

Anonymous, from Europe

Shadow and bone is important to me because of its representation, as a mentally ill queer person, I can really connect and see myself in some of these characters, as well as appreciate the representation for others where other shows fail to do so. To leave these complex and interesting characters without the chance for a complete story is ridiculous and incredibly upsetting for many.
Amélie, from Europe

I got into the Grishaverse when I was 16 in 2020. I fell love with the world and the characters. I feel at home in the Grishaverse. Cecilia, from Europe - "We have to bring Shadow and Bone back, not just for us fans, but also for the cast who loved working on this show so much, and for the writers so they can see their work come to live."

Shadow and Bone is a show that is incredibly important to me, and to countless others. Not only is it a fun show with unique world building but the messages and representation is amazing. My disabled friend got incredibly excited when the realised there was a character with issues walking like them in the show, who wasn't portrayed as weak and pitied but as a strong and even deadly character. I've seen countless posts on how Nina's confidence and love for herself/her body inspired them to love themselves more too. We've got the importance of how Genya, Alina, and Zoya moved on from the man in their life who manipulated them, even if it wasn't always obvious. I myself deeply related to Jesper and his struggles with (Implied) ADHD. Wylan helped me realise that I didn't owe my biological father anything, especially since he hurt me so much. This show is amazing, full of dynamic characters, amazing world building, beautiful relationships and so much more. We need this hope and beauty in our lives.

Lily, from North America

I've loved getting to watch the adaptation of Shadow and Bone. The actors have done a phenomenal job of portraying their characters. The crew has done such an incredible job with costumes and the effects. Their work received a well deserved Emmy nomination. The books and show have so many passionate fans who love the material and who are so happy to see diverse representation in a fantasy setting. It's so disheartening to think that Netflix would let the entire show end on the season 2 cliffhanger and not give their audience a proper resolution to the show that so many people spent so many hours watching.

Millie, from North America

Shadow and Bone is important to me because I'm super attached to these characters and universe, essentially.

Shadow and Bone means so much not only to me, but to so many others. Shadow and Bone has great representation. Representation is something so incredibly important in media that we don't often get to see. The characters from Shadow and Bone mean so much to me.

Anonymous, from North America

Dear Netflix,
Shadow and Bone was the reality given to my imagination after reading the books. All the friends I made along the way through Shadow and Bone series and then Six of Crows duology were suddenly made real (and the cast couldn't have been better!). I loved seeing them from a bit different angles on screen, compared to on paper, it made them more multi-dimensional as characters.

Barbara, from Europe

Shadow and Bone has my favourite characters, the Crows. They have the most interesting backstories like how Inej is indentured to the Menagerie and how Kaz has dedicated his life to destroying Pekka Rollins. Their story is not over yet and we need another season or a spinoff for them to be explored.

Emily, from North America

Shadow and Bone used to be my favorite trilogy when I was younger and once it got turned into an adaptation it became my favorite show of all times as well. Not only is everything so accurate and true to the books but it's also amazing how different plotline got entwined in the end, leaving us with such a cliffhanger that absolutely NEEDS season 3. I'd like to see it happen, mostly because I'm still not ready to leave the characters and the story behind because it made my life better. I hope you bring it back. Sincerely, a huge SAB fan

Anja, from Europe - "C'MON I MUST SEE MY MAN NIKOLAI LANTSOV AGAIN!"

Shadow and Bone is the perfect mix of character-driven storytelling and fantastic world-building, and the cast and crew bring the world to life in ways better than I could have imagined! It's one of the few fantasy series with LGBTQ+ rep that's not a plot point but simply fits into the world, and there's so much potential for that to expand in future seasons.

Anna, from Europe

Shadow and Bone means strength, a way to follow my dreams, it invites me to dream to be brave. I can identify with many of the characters. Shadow and Bone is my safe zone where I can dream, where I find characters that motivate me to keep going.

Isabel, from Central America

~~I really identify with the way all the misfits stick together. I can relate to having different people from different nationalities, looks, disabilities, and backgrounds can bond together and preserver. The characters and actors are very charming and it is easy to get lost in the show for a while and not have to worry about real life for a few hours. I was able to watch this while going through a hard time with my son. It really got me throught it and I need to have it continue.~~

Deanna Jacobo, from North America - “Please bring this show back!”

Dear Netflix -

This is one of my favorite series. The characters the writing and the world building are all amazing. They deserve an ending!

Sarah, from North America

Dear Netflix,

Shadow and Bone means everything to me because of its diversity, inclusivity, and how easy it is to fall in love with every character. I can’t even remember how many times I have read the books and watched the tv show. Shadow and Bone is my comfort tv show and whenever I’m having a bad day, I always rewatch it. It takes me into a whole another world which I have easily fallen in love with. As someone who is south asian and bisexual, it is very hard to find media which represents who I am but with a show like shadow and bone, I am able to. Characters like Jesper and Inej have allowed me to find myself in them. I adore the cast endlessly and have never seen a cast which cares about their characters like the shadow and bone cast does. I was truly heartbroken hearing the news of the cancellation as this show provided great comfort to me and allowed me to find characters I saw myself in. I really hope you decide to reverse your decision. Shadow and Bone is truly unique and you will never find anything like it.

Anonymous, from North America

These characters and their journey’s mean so much to me and I just really need to see their stories given a proper ending.

Isabella, from North America - “Shadow and Bone deserves a final season!”

Best show I’ve seen on Netflix. Also the only reason I renewed my subscription was to watch it.

Anonymous, from Europe

Shadow and Bone is an amazing work of art that gets fantasy right! The world-building is incredible, and each of the (many) characters is so easy to fall in love with! With that said, poor Matthias has been imprisoned an entire season, and we need a season 3 or Six of Crows spin-off to know what finally happens with his character!

Savannah, from North America

Dear Netflix,

Shadow and Bone is a show that transports people to a whole ‘nother world. It’s a diverse show with characters of all different backgrounds. It’s a source of escapism for many and enables others to see the characters they hold so dear on the big screen. It has an immensely strong fanbase and renewing the show, heck even giving the crow club a spin off would benefit not only the fans but also your company.

No mourners, no funerals.

Abidat, from Europe - “Never give up. Never back down. NMNF!”

Shadow and bone matters a lot to everyone. One, because of its diversity. Jesper is a bisexual boy with implied ADHD and an addiction to gambling. Wylan is a gay boy with dyslexia. Nina is a fat girl recovering from addiction. Matthias is a boy raised in a toxic environment and is learning to better himself. Inej is a girl of color who had PTSD and was sexually abused. Kaz is a disabled boy with PTSD and has touch aversion. This show speaks to everyone, and makes everybody a much happier person. Bring shadow and bone back. NO MOURNERS NO FUNERALS !

Hi, i’m princey! i’m almost sixteen. when shadow and bone came out, i was going through a really dark time. i didn’t want to live anymore. but shadow and bone was released. the grishaverse books had always created such a safe space for me and the show did even moreso. seeing my crows on the big screen was more comforting than you will ever know. shadow and bone saved my life. i’m grateful to have had the time with the cast and crew. my only regret is not getting to see a third season or the six of crows spinoff.

princey, from North America

Dear Netflix,

I’ve been a Grishaverse fan since Leigh published her Six of Crows series. I’ve read every Grishaverse book, I’ve spent hours drawing the characters as I imagine them, making playlists of songs that go well with different chapters, reading everything about the characters, drawing out my favorite scenes, getting all the merch I can. When I saw that you had made a TV show, I was... Crazy happy. The idea of seeing my favorite characters on the screen is an indescribable feeling.

The first time I saw the show, I admired everything about it; the cast, the VFX, lighting, filming locations. Every time I see it, I notice something different. Something better. Unique. After watching the first season, I became even more madly in love with the show, the book series, and the characters. How can you even match every single character in the same way that I imagined them? When the second season came out, I was even more excited.

The Six of Crows scenes mixed in there? Perfectly unexpected. The VFX of the Fold being destroyed? Truly stunning. Genya's scars? Beautifully realistic. Wylan and Jesper's love? Strikingly beautiful. David sacrificing himself for Genya? Heartbreakingly sad. Inej and Zoya's Volcra scene? Incredibly heart wrenching. Every single scene had me feeling a mix of emotions. Anger, sadness, loneliness, elation, regret, pain, happiness. It made me want to scream in frustration and whoop for joy. Then. The terrible news that shattered my Grisha-loving heart. My favorite series being canceled? No. I couldn't believe it. It took me days to accept. Then the message from Leigh after she heard about it? It made me want to... forget about the entire series until you changed your mind. It made me want to march up to your office and break something. I was one of the first to sign the petition. Only 100 people had signed when I got to it. The amount of passion this fanbase has is incredible. In the first week, more than 5,000 people signed a day. It's been two months since you canceled, and there's already 200,000 signs. We have put together $13,882 to get a billboard in LA and London and a fan gathering in London. We're stubborn. We won't give up.

We want a last season and a Six of Crows spin-off. Please. For all of our Third Army hearts, give us the third season and Six of Crows spin-off we deserve. No mourners, no funerals ♥

Josefine Hall, from North America

Shadow and Bone matters to me because it has literally the most GRIPPING and twisty plots, and all the characters have such deeply and complexly constructed personalities and backstories in the books, and to see them developing and growing ON SCREEN is absolutely fantastic. I've adored every single episode, and have managed to introduce my mum and family and friends to the wonderful Grishaverse, which they also found amazing.

Hannah, from Africa - "I'm a really big fan of this series, and not many series on Netflix have gripped quite as much, so I would absolutely love to see a Season 3. Or spin-off. Either way, I'm binging it if it happens."

Shadow and Bone is the realisation of my favorite book series ever that has the most loving, loyal and supportive fans you could ever find. I love that the grishaverse is so diverse, including many social topics and groups of people that I get to know more about. No mourners...

Luka, from Europe

Adah, from North America

Shadow and Bone is extremely original in its setting, first of all. Instead of the typical Medieval fantasy setting we get a more Napoleonic-Russian inspired universe, with different races and cultures. Simply gorgeous worldbuilding! Seeing magic combined with technology in this way is extremely interesting. The same goes for the characters, each and every one of them is immensely special and unique, with specific talents and troubles. I would LOVE a Six of Crows spinoff or a season 3 of Shadow and Bone because they very much have unfinished business. Netflix, what are you waiting for? The crew wants to continue, as does the cast, and the WRITER of the BOOKS even wants to create more!! Not to mention a huge fanbase that is begging for more...

Save Shadow and Bone!!

Eli, from Europe - "Thanks to every one who is helping and putting in so much effort to save SaB!!"

Dear Netflix,

Shadow and Bone means a lot to me. Not only is it an incredible show, with an amazing cast and great representation but it has also been a safe space and an escape. Through Shadow and Bone I have been able to find a strength within myself to get through difficult times. I think the reason for that is because of the messages and characters the show brings to the screen and audiences. Cancelling this show takes away a world that for many is a place they are seen and heard in a reality where they often aren't. For example my friend cried to see someone like herself represented in Inej, it meant the whole world to her. Shows like this mean the world to people and Shadow and Bone means the world to me. I hope you will be able to see this show as not just the incredible story that it is but also as the importance it has in people's lives and the safe space and joy it creates.

No mourners

Bobbi, from Europe

Seeing Jesper on screen means a lot to me. GOOD neurodivergent rep is hard to come by these days, good QUEER neurodivergent rep is even rarer. I get to see somebody on screen who's just like me, and he's seen a cool and deserving of love. That's something I need right now.

Juno, from North America

The books are my comfort books and seeing them come to life with such an amazing and heart warming cast was the best thing that happened to me. I binged the whole two seasons in a day twice and plan to re-watch it many many times. The casting was perfect and it was like watching the books scene for scene in the show. All the relationships were done such justice and there were many moments that had me laughing so hard. The love for this series goes so deep and the loyalty the fans have is incredible.

Eden, from North America - "The casting is Perfection"

It's just such a good show! It's got so much potential and I honestly just think it's unfair to cancel a show that had potential for more seasons, a spin off series (which I'd argue could grow even more popular than S&B) and that is still remained unfinished. I love all the characters and their dynamic and the plot never fails to hook me. What else can I say? :)

Luna, from Europe

This show has brought me so much joy in the past couple years. It's brought me to an amazing book series, a lovely community, and it's made me appreciate Netflix even more! I've even gotten friends hooked on it, and it's brought those friends and me closer together.

Shem, from North America

Shadow and Bone & Six of Crows was the first book series and TV series since I was a kid that made me feel comforted. It's a world that I escape to and that I love very dearly. The cast of the show means so much to me and they brought to life the wonderful characters and books I found so much comfort in. The cast, Leigh and all the fans deserve a renewal and spin off and I hope you can make it happen.

Kaitlyn, from Australia

Shadow and Bone had meant so much to me for so long. I started to read the series when I was 10 years old and didn't think I would like it much. When I finally got into the book, I found a world I never wanted to leave. I was absolutely thrilled to learn that there was a show and started watching it immediately. I watched the entire first season without knowing there were books to Six of Crows, until one of my friends introduced me to it and I fell in love all over again. My friends and I have dedicated entire weeks to watching and rewatching this show analyzing every detail, fan-girling over the characters, and just going “oh my god this cast is amazing.” When we found out it was cancelled we were all heart broken. This show provides so much representation to so many underrepresented communities, and makes people feel included and heard. It has helped me meet new people, and see things from entirely new perspectives. It has helped me find a ton of new books/shows that I absolutely love now. It may seem we are all just desperate fans who have nothing better to do connected by one thing when in reality, we are an extremely diverse, passionate, and large fan base.

Hazel, from North America - “Please please renew this show, I love it so much.”

It has brought me and my friends so much joy watching these beautiful characters come to life in what can only be described as the most true form of artistic expression. I need this show. we need this show.

Eddie, from North America

This show meant so much to me. It was such a beautifully created adventure, and especially as an Asian American, I loved seeing the diverse representation on screen and people of color being heroes in this fantasy world. I really want more of it!!

Anonymous, from North America

All the characters mean so much to me and I need to see where their stories go! Shadow and Bone is my favorite Netflix show, and the Grishaverse books are my favorite books, so I really want Shadow and Bone season 3 and the Six of Crows spinoff. The cast and crew are all amazing, and they deserve to have a more satisfying ending to their show.

Juliette, from North America

Shadow and Bone is my favorite fantasy series ever! Seeing it adapted into a show was honestly so so amazing and I’m hoping it doesn’t end with only two seasons. Seeing strong female characters and diverse cultures and relationships represented was so important! The casting for the show is absolutely spot on and I was so excited for the Six of Crows spin-off before it got cancelled. I love the series so much!

Aimee, from North America - “Go Third Army!”

Shadow and bone is honestly the most incredible show. It includes everything I could dream of for a tv series; diversity, amazing cast, spectacular acting, and so much more. The moment I found out it was cancelled my heart shattered. The show I love, the show I have obsessed over for so long, the show that made me confident and comfortable. It was done. But now I realise, it isn’t. The grishaverse will fight, we will continue fighting until there is nothing left of us. You hold the power, so do something please. Do something for the hundreds of thousands of people who adore this show, who need this show. We need this show, so please, I’m begging you, renew it. Don’t let Alina’s story go untold, don’t let the crows’s story go untold.

No mourners, no funerals, that includes for a tv show.

Zara, from Australia

I discovered the books when I was bedbound with my chronic illness. They brought an incredible amount of joy and companionship, so to have the characters brought to life on the show was amazing. The crows are my favourite and I was so excited to see the six of them finally join together. Don’t leave Matthias stuck in prison!!

Hannah, from Europe

Shadow and Bone is my favourite show on Netflix. Shadow and bone had great casting and acting, amazing visuals and representation. Kanej (Kaz and Inej) are my favourite ship of all time (well, I have a few but definitely top three) and I fangirled extremely hard over the kanej scenes especially. Their connection is never easy, yet it is still beautiful, one of the best ever written for me.

Anonymous, from Australia

Shadow and Bone matters to me because it got me through a tough time. My best friend broke up with me, so naturally, I turned to Netflix. Shadow and Bone was there, and it was beautiful. The world drew me in. The lighting, the costumes, the sets, the special effects- they were magical. So I found myself looking forward to the drop of each episode. I read the books. And then, knowing what was coming, I was disappointed and angry when it wasn’t renewed. I hope you’ll reconsider your decision.

Amanda, from North America

Shadow and Bone means so much to so many people with characters that so many people can find parts of themselves in. The fandom is incredibly loyal and the Grishaverse as a whole has so much future potential.

Priyanka, from North America

Please make another deacon of this show. The fans love it so much and it has an Emmy nomination according to you. So allow us this joy because this really is one of the best shows to watch on Netflix

Anonymous, from North America - “If you thought season two was too rushed then definitely make a spin off so you don’t need to jam both Six of Crows and Shadow and Bone/King of Scars into the same season.”

Hello Netflix!

My name is Sophia and I have read and love all the books in the Grishaverse besides Rule of Wolves, and I absolutely loved your adaptation of the story. It was new, it was special, and it was meaningful to a lot of people. Besides being filled with things that brought me joy and made me happy, it taught me lessons and characters always seemed to speak to whatever I needed most. When I was overthinking, Jesper said “It is better to act without thinking than it is to think without acting.” When I felt like I needed to hide who I was to protect myself, Jesper’s mother told him how much value his authentic self held, and that fear of being hurt did not justify not allowing yourself to experience life. The stories that these characters tell are so so important to me and I really hope you’ll reconsider your decision. Even if it is rebooted with a different service, the chances of keeping our beloved cast who mean so much to us are slim to none.

Thank you for your consideration,

Sophia, from North America - “(no mourners, no funerals)”

I have only recently been introduced to the Grisha universe and it has been a beautiful journey. I proudly hold both the books and the series dearly to my heart. The actors perfectly captured each character’s charm and personalities. Therefore I believe that not only do the loving fans deserve to have this very successful show renewed, so do the actors.

Jemma, from Australia

Shadow and Bone was one of the best adaptations I’ve ever seen. It was extremely well done and had so much more potential. The story, characters, and design were all unique and interesting

Anonymous, from Australia

It had so much positive representation and was a magical show.

Anonymous, from North America

The series was a wonderful masterpiece of production and is quite literally one of the most perfectly casted series I have ever watched. The casts are perfect for each of Bardugo's depiction of the characters in the book and almost as exactly as I imagined them to be. I could never expect for the series to be this good and get me stuck into the plot so fast because it was a merge of 2 different series. This is definitely the best series I have watched so far. My new top favorite series has switched to Shadow and Bone. Overall, the cast, the production team and everyone else who participated in creating this exquisite masterpiece of a series. I really hope the series will be back on production again and we fans would really prefer it to be continued since we wouldn't want to be left with a cliffhanger like this!

VS., from Europe

Shadow and Bone series have really made my dreams come true. Reading the books, especially the Six of Crows has been a magical experience and I enjoyed every bit of it. So knowing there was a possibility of it having a Netflix spinoff was a dream come true, since watching the characters I've beloved come to life. It is really entertaining and a happy experience

Melissa, from North America

Shadow and Bone is a beautiful show that brought my friends and I together, and we're not the only ones who feel that way as the story was proven to help a lot of people struggling with both identity and familial issues. It always was an important part of some many's lives and i'm not even over exaggerating it. Please do consider to bring it back, if not for us, for the money at the very least. The show is popular so you have a lot to win too.

Arty, from Europe

The show was so beautifully done and it was absolutely magical to be able to see some of my favorite characters come to life on my screen.

Morgan, from South America

Dear Netflix,
Shadow and Bone is the first TV show in years I have been overly excited about. It got me back to watching the same show multiple times, crying and laughing with the characters, watching reaction videos to it on YouTube and inspiring my friends, who don't like fantasy, to watch and love it as well. We were all gutted to hear about the cancellation after watching all of season 2 together. I wish we could see the third season and Six of Crows spinoff, especially since the show was something that gave us weeks worth of conversation topics, joy and love. This show was something that gave us, a group of six busy adults in their late 20s, something to wind down with and spend time together away from our regular adult worries.

Eveliina, from Europe

Shadow and Bone matters to me because it's my comfort show. It matters to me because the cast and crew have so much heart and love for this show, and it shows. And these beloved characters make so many people feel seen. It's what people need to see on their screens.

Sydney, from North America

Dear Netflix,

The Grishaverse is one of my favorite fictional worlds that I have read, and I am an avid fantasy reader. I truly think the actors did a PHENOMENAL job of portraying the characters that I love so much. Specifically Six of Crows got me through a hard time in my life, and Amita, Freddy, Kit, Danielle, Calahan, and Jack bring the characters to life impossibly well. A Six of Crows spinoff is not a want, it's a NEED. I would really love to see these actors bring the Ice Heist to life so I can live in the Grishaverse a little longer. Thank you for your consideration, I hope you take into account the thoughts of all of us fighting to see our favorite Crows banter once more. Oceans Six? CROWceans Six?

Anyway thanks, love, the Grishaverse

Ashley, from North America

I've read a good portion of the Grishaverse books, and I've got to say that I enjoyed Six of Crows the most. Unfortunately, we haven't yet seen the events of that duology play out on screen, and that is what I was most looking forward to for any future Grishaverse on Netflix. So to hear that Netflix was canceling Shadow and Bone and any spinoffs (such as Six of Crows) was really disappointing for me.

Gino, from North America

Hey Netflix!! Shadow and Bone is my favourite show in the whole world. I love the books it's based on and I thought the film adaptation was done SO well!! I was (and am still hoping to) looking forward to season three but especially the Six of Crows spinoff series. I wonder to myself all the time what these would have consisted of from the book series and also what Netflix would've added in of their own. Please bring back Shadow and Bone (and possibly Six of Crows spinoff) and show everyone how amazing it truly is and can be with the Netflix twist!!

M, from North America

Shadow and bone was the rare show that is not just the show for me. it is the community and the cast I was introduced to and now follow from project to project. the show does found family in such a beautiful way that I relate to. the story isn't finished and I need these actors to complete the story because my imagination can only do so much

Fani, from North America - "Bring it back please. at the very least we need more of the crows"

I would very much like to see tv adaptation my favourite book six of crow and crooked kingdom and i think no other cast will be perfect doing this again. I have fallen in love with this cast and this show like many others.. Please don't bring back the crows. The cast was perfect and please don't ruin the potential 🥹🥹

Devika, from Asia - "BringBackSixOfCrows"

It's a show where not only mental trauma is discussed, but also physical trauma. For me, as an epileptic, this is so important. Of course, the mental and physical impairments are something else. In addition, many topics that are important today are taken up and dealt with. Sexual assault and rape and how those affected defend themselves and learn to live with their experiences. That gives so many people courage.

I have no words for the sadness I feel. For the anger and the lack of understanding. The treatment - making us wait for months, releasing a game and raising hope, and then canceling the show almost a week later - is not only disgraceful to all the loyal fans, but also to the actors and actresses. In every interview you can clearly see how much they love the roles they play and their coworkers. Aside from that, this is also an incredibly likeable, great and perfect cast, the ideal cast. The actors and actresses are diverse, as are the characters, but that is never discussed. it just is what it is.

Neither the origin nor the sexuality of the characters is ever in the foreground and that's exactly how it should be reality today. This decision is a slap in the face to everyone fighting for this better world, and although Netflix always promotes shows with gay characters, they can't seem to handle it when it only plays a minor role. And that is an indictment

The Shadow and Bone series has an incredible storyline, interesting characters and a real connection to main characters struggles. The Crows were the unlikely heroes and Alina struggled with the decision between love or destroy the darkness. At the end of the 2nd season, it was strange that Alina used dark magic. What happens next? Please continue this story.

Steven, from North America

It's such an amazing show and my comfort show. I was so excited for season 3 because I miss all of the characters so much! Please please bring it back!

Emily, from North America

Dear Netflix,
Your 'Shadow and Bone' series introduced me to the incredible Grishaverse, which I immediately fell in love with – thank you!
There are so many things which I love about this very special show:
- The brilliantly engaging, entertaining and inspiring story
- The beautifully captivating world, full of fascinating countries, languages and cultures
- Stunning writing, cinematography, set design, costumes, special effects, music and so much more, from an amazingly dedicated and skilled creative team
- Incredibly talented, passionate and generous actors, who sincerely love and care about the characters they play
- a truly perfect cast
- Wonderfully diverse, complex and compelling characters that we can grieve with, heal with, celebrate with, laugh with and grow with, who are a source of genuine hope, encouragement, comfort and strength to myself and countless other fans
- The wide-ranging, positive representation of so many different ethnicities, neurodivergences, disabilities, romantic/sexual identities, religions, cultures, backgrounds and traumas allows so many of us to be seen, to be understood and to feel valued, finding acceptance and a home
- Our found family (the characters, the cast, the creative team, and the fans) Thank you so much for the first two breath-taking, amazing seasons!
Please save 'Shadow and Bone' and the 'Six of Crows' spinoff, and give our beloved characters a full life on-screen and the proper endings they deserve; there are so many more wonderful stories to be told...

Lynne, from Europe

I first found out about the Grishaverse through the Crows back in January of last year, and shortly after I found and watched Shadow and Bone and loved it. I remember how I was absolutely thrilled when the poster and trailer of season 2 were released—I was just finishing my freshman year and getting a glimpse of how the story I had fallen in love with would continue after how rough finals were was truly amazing. When season 2 came out I binged it in two days and could not wait to see how the story would continue; it didn't occur to me that there was the chance of not getting a season 3 or the spin-off until I started seeing in social media people encouraging us fans to watch the show as much as we could so we could lay a convincing argument that we deserved not getting a cancellation, because season 2, in my opinion, was amazing and it held so much promise. Then, after 8 months of being in a limbo of uncertainty and after getting a game in Geeked Week, both the show and spin-off were cancelled; it continues to break my heart even nearly two months after the cancellation that in order to prevent our favourite shows from the horrible fate of being scrapped, we had to fight with tooth and nail just to prove that Shadow and Bone deserved to be renewed and to get the Crows' spin-off when not only has the show represented groups of people not often put in the spotlight in exciting ways and given hope and comfort to lots of people with its story and characters, but the numbers prove that Shadow and Bone had everything to continue its story, and Leigh, Eric, the cast, and the writers (the crew too) didn't deserve to be ignored like that for so many months, and neither do we deserve to be ignored now for something that we should've gotten. As Kaz Brekker said, "We never stop fighting," and that's what lots of us are planning to do, because Shadow and Bone and the Grishaverse are more than just a show and a history: they're home.

Sofia, from South America - "WHY put the Netflix sticker on the Six of Crows duology when it is not getting properly adapted?"

Shadow and Bone and the Crows have been my constant companion ever since the show came out. Throughout art school the creativity and care that went into this show inspired me to imagine fantastical worlds and to create with passion. To list all that I love about it would burst the confines of this comment box. What drew me in most of all was the tangible love the cast and crew put into every second and frame of this story, the costumes and sets, the directing and writing, the performances down to the last extra on the left, the sizzle reel for a spin-off that wasn't even greenlit yet. Please give these talented artists the chance to finish stories I've grown very attached to, filled with characters that live and breathe. They deserve to see it through.

Lena, from Europe

I'm not sure if this would reach the eyes of Netflix staff, but:
I would just like to say that as a very avid reader, one of my favourite book series is the Six of Crows Duology. The characters, the plot, everything just feels like home to me. I connect so much to the characters, and I talk about it nonstop with my friends, and even encouraged them to read it (which they did, and they loved it of course). I fell in love with the book at first read, and it was among one of the first books which brought me back into a sort of "reading renaissance". I have always read a lot as a kid, but Six of Crows especially revived my love for reading. When I found out that the Shadow and Bone series was cancelled, I was with my friend (whom I recommended the books to), and we were both distraught. This was one of the many things that bonded us together---the love for those books and this universe. We watched almost all the cast interviews, and all the episodes (some multiple times), and love the show so much that it is hard to put it into words. In fact, Shadow and Bone is probably my favourite show on Netflix, so it really broke my heart when I saw the cancellation announced, and heard Leigh Bardugo's emotional and teary announcement on Instagram. I do hope you will consider un-cancelling this show, as it is a community---a family, of fans. Many mourners, one funeral. </3

Aly, from North America - "no mourners no funerals 🥺"

Why Shadow and Bone matters to me, where do I begin? I first watched season one upon it's initial release as a casual viewer. The fantasy elements, characters, diversity, and various representations really drew me in. Not to mention the beautiful elements that came with the show as; costume, VFX, cinematography and world building. Then when season two premiered I watched it and was beginning to enjoy it even more, craving for more of the characters and their stories! Shortly after that I purchased the Shadow and Bone trilogy and fell fully in love. I started to read all the books of the Grishaverse, from the main trilogy all the way to the latest graphic novel Demon In The Wood over the summer. I was obsessed and rewatched the Netflix series several times. Eventually I made an Insta account to post my thoughts, rambles, memes and even cosplay! The fandom was so inviting and there were so many lovely people that started talking to me. I began to make so many connections through this fandom, I found my people, a series that brought me endless joy and an outlet for my creativity. It all began to help me open up, come further out of my shell and feel like my true unapologetic self. I certainly wouldn't be the person i am now if I hadn't gotten into this series. Forever grateful for deciding to take that leap and purchase the books so I could have gotten to this point. Then to get the opportunity to be the news anchor for Brekkin' News, to work alongside so many great minds and dedicated fans to bring back the series is such an absolute honor. I will continue to do what i can to help get it back because Shadow and Bone means that much to me. To the whole Third Army.

Simone, from North America - “We never stop fighting! NMNF <3”

Hi Netflix!

I would like to express my opinion on how I enjoyed Shadow and Bone. Shadow and Bone and Six of Crows are some of my favorite book series, and I was thrilled when I heard there was a show. When I watched the show, I thought it was amazing. No flaws, just perfection. The animations, camera, editing was all amazing as well as the sound effects. However, what I truly loved most about the show was how well the cast was casted and the scriptwriting, and its effect of bringing the books to life. It made everything so real and was everything that I imagined. Please bring back Shadow and Bone Season 3 and Six of Crows Spinoff! I really want to see the journey ahead of the well-written, phenomenal characters! Thank you so much!

The Grishaverse series is one of the best book series I've ever read. I found it after the first season of Netflix's Shadow and Bone came out in 2021. During that time, I was learning virtually due to covid and my family members being immunocompromised. It was probably the hardest time in my life. I was depressed and I felt alone. During my lunch break that I got in between my morning and afternoon classes, I would make myself lunch and put on an episode of Shadow and Bone. The first season was so good that it inspired me to read the entire Grishaverse series. I finished all 7 books in a span of a couple months. My favorites were the Six of Crows and King of Scars duologies. Those stories helped pull me through a really rough time. I fell in love with the characters developments and how they overcame such great obstacles. Seeing the rest of this amazing story come to life on my television would be amazing. It saddened me that I might never get to see it. If you're reading this Netflix, please renew Shadow and Bone and/or the Six of Crows spinoff!!

Parker, from North America - “GV fans have proven to be a force to be reckoned with! Thank you for continuing the fight!❤️”

Shadow and Bone matters to me because it has lead me to a great fandom with wonderful people never stop fighting. I've bonded with friends and learned so many things, I can't even begin to list them all. People watching the show have a good chance of being interested in the books which are some of the best literary works I have ever laid eyes upon. Keep the show going. For all of us.

Rex, from North America - “Wylan summoned every bit of bravado he'd learned from Nina, the will he'd learned from Matthias, the focus he'd studied in Kaz, the courage he'd learned form Inej, and the wild, reckless hope he'd learned from Jesper, the belief that no matter the odds, somehow they would win” (Crooked Kingdom 427). “We never stop fighting” (Crooked Kingdom 185).”

I love shadow and bone because it is inclusive and shows that love can come in all shapes and sizes. It is delicate and doesn't always have to be physical. It shows that people are complex and that the world isn't always full of good things but that even though you may have trauma, you can work through that, and still have the life you want. I love this series so so much!

Emma, from Australia

Leigh Bardugo's Grishaverse series are some of the best contemporary YA novels out there. The decision Netflix initially made to adapt 'Shadow and Bone' and 'Six of Crows' was extremely smart. Objectively, these novel series have a major following and an extremely dedicated fan base. Viewership was guaranteed and the writers had amazing source material. The result was a visually and thematically stunning intersection of Grishaverse stories that brought new adventures to beloved characters. The decision to cancel the show after two seasons has disappointed not only fans, but the actors, writers, and crew as well. The love and commitment these people had for the characters/this story translates through the screen. It is devastating to deny them the opportunity to continue exploring their stories. Season three of 'Shadow and Bone', as well as the pre-written 'Six of Crows' spinoff, is something that fans, cast, and crew are all still holding their breath for. Please consider rescinding the cancellation decision and/or selling the rights to a studio who can pick up where Netflix has left off. We appreciate all that Netflix has done to get this show to where it is. We only want to see 'Shadow and Bone' flourish and to have a chance to see these stories to the end. Thank you!

MacKenzie, from North America - “Let's Save Shadow and Bone!”

Shadow and Bone was something I had been looking forward to since i was announced. It is the best book adaptation I have ever seen and the actors were spot on. I recommended it to all my friends and watched it with my family more then twice. I made fanart too. And it was filmed in my country. After each season I started to visit the filming locations and it was just so magical every time. It was something I wanted to continue for years. And I wanted to be part of this magic as an extra. I can not let this series go and am still hoping for it to be continued.

Dear Netflix,
Shadow and Bone came into my life at a time where I needed distractions from my grandmother dying and a car crash. I've been holding onto this universe and character since April 2023 and knowing I won't be able to see what happens to Alina, Nikolai and the Crows breaks my heart. Please, save this show.

Léane, from Europe

Dear Netflix,
There are so many people who care about the Grishaverse and believe Leigh Bardugo, the cast and the crew deserve to be treated with more respect. Shadow and Bone deserves another season and Six of crows deserves its spin-off. Do the right thing and renew Shadow and Bone.

Felicity, from Australia

Dear Netflix,
Shadow and Bone means the world to me for so many reasons. Never before had I felt seen by a book or a show. When I became ill, Genya taught me resilience and showed me that I was stronger than I thought, assured me that I was still worthy of love, inspired me to be the best version of myself, comforted me through sad days and somehow understood how I was feeling even when I found myself wordless to describe it.

And then the show aired and seeing it all on screen... It sparked immense joy. There they were, these amazing characters, my literary BFFs, brought to life by this wonderful and brilliant and talented cast that deeply knows and cares for their characters, all of them working to convey this important message that love and friendship will always be the Light that shatters Darkness, and it really made my heart so happy and so proud of them all. This universe, this show, makes me so very happy and comforted. It's cosy and it feels like a nice blanket or a warm hug. It really is a found family to so many of us. The Grishaverse and it's characters truly saved my mind and my soul, and for that I'll be forever grateful.

Please consider how important this show and all that it represents is to so many of us, how safe and welcome we feel in that universe, and like it's totally fine to be who you really are, no matter whether you're ill or disabled or silly or shy or somehow different. I've felt more companionship with the Grishaverse characters and while watching the show than I've felt at times with people in my real life. So please please please let us carry on loving this show and these characters, let their light tear down the Fold that is the messy world we're living in right now, let them be happy and make us happy by bringing some closure to the story they've been telling us for the past two seasons.

Please Netflix, give us Shadow and Bone Season 3 and, if you can, let us have the Six of Crows spin-off too. Thank you.

Maria (a_hufflepuffs_book_nook), from Europe, via Instagram - "Thank you so much to Leigh Bardugo for writing these books, thank you so much to the actors for their performances, thank you to the crew for all their work, thank to Netflix for the amazing two seasons we got of the best show ever, and thank you to all the fandom and the Third Army for being the best found family & fighting to save what matters most to us: Shadow and Bone"

Shadow & Bone completely changed my life for the better. It's a show with diverse perspectives and as a queer disabled person it means everything for me to see people like me represented onscreen in my favourite genre—fantasy. The grishaverse includes queer characters so naturally and the show is a place that I go to for comfort and joy on a daily basis. Furthermore I cannot name any other series that showcases disabled rep as well as this show. Kaz, Wylan, Inej, Adrik, and Genya to name a few give me such hope and on my hardest days they, and especially Wylan, give me the strength and hope to keep fighting for the life I and so many other marginalised people deserve. It cannot truly go down in words how much I love Shadow & Bone or how much it has made my life better and brighter. But for now I will say: please bring back this show that brings underrepresented voices to the forefront whilst also providing fun, fantastic fantasy stories. No mourners ♥

This was the first adaptation in a long time I was excited to see keep going because of how good it was and the cast was absolute perfection! Please bring the show back!

So, then. It seems we have found ourselves here, in the wake of cancellation, as so many other shows do. I always wanted to be a writer, and reading Leigh Bardugos books inspired me to pursue it more seriously than just a dream. But now, seeing how those at the top treat creative minds, seeing how streaming services scrap work at a moment's notice, I'm not so sure. I don't want to have my dream be canceled, not like this was.

So when the show first aired, I had felt giddy in the way a child does right before ripping into the wrapping paper of a gift. Shadow and Bone was my everything. I'd turn it on to watch when I couldn't get out of bed because of my failing health. The characters and their struggles helped me get through my own hardships. Heck, I only met some of my closest friends through talks about this show. This show matters to me, and it always will. That won't change regardless of if it's renewed or not. What WILL change is my belief in the industry. My excitement for the future. My faith in Netflix adaptations. I'm not begging for a renewal just because I am selfish and want to see my favorite characters, I'm begging for a renewal because this story isn't over, and it deserves a proper end. We deserve our proper end. Don't deprive us of it when we were so close to perfection.

Darien (psychichomie), from North America

It's absolute perfection. Sure the plots a bit messy. But the amazing casting makes up for it. The characters have never felt more real and my heart shattered when I heard the show got cancelled

Anonymous, from Asia

Shadow and Bone features a wonderfully inclusive cast of characters, each with their own complex stories and personalities, that kept me permanently invested in the show. I fell in love with the dynamics between members of the Crows and adored their on-screen chemistry. Also, the cast and crew are lovely, and actors were perfectly chosen to represent their characters. I'm a big fan of the books, but I think this adaptation is amazingly accurate with a creative twist. The Grishaverse is such a beautifully unique world that deserves more exploration!

Catherine, from Europe - "Free Matthias :("

Shadow and Bone is genuinely the most diverse, inclusive fantasy series out there. Our wonderful cast of queer characters- Nina, Hanne, Wylan, Jesper, Ivan, Fedya, Nadia, Tamar. The disability and trauma representation in Wylan and Kaz. The fact that it's not just a cast of identical white people with Alina, Tamar, Tolya, Zoya, Nadia. There are SO MANY characters for everyone, myself included, to see themselves in and it couldn't feel further than a 'diversity checklist'. Please don't take this away from every single person that this show matters to.

Aly, from North America

Hi Netflix,

I found Shadow and Bone two years ago. I wasn't in a great place, just having left a toxic friendship I'd been a part of for most of my life. And then I found Shadow and Bone. I binged the first season (only one available at the time) in less than a week, and then I immediately picked up the books and ran through the main trilogy and six of crows in even less time. The world of the Grishaverse became my safe place. That first year, I was basically by myself. I didn't have any friends. But I could just envelop myself in that world, where I could be anyone, anywhere, and it was my saving grace. I have pages and pages in google docs and even my school notebooks of worldbuilding and drawings for this show. I was well into the fandom by then, so when season two was announced and the trailer dropped, I was over the moon. We were on vacation when the first episode dropped, so I stayed up until ten at night in Hawaii just so I could watch the first episode right when it came out. And season two made me happier than I'd been in a while. I DIY-ed my first ever cosplay because of it- I handmade a cane so I could look like Kaz. This show was my safety net. When I didn't have friends or anyone to talk to, I could immerse myself in the show, in its characters and its world and it was everything to me. I cried when it was cancelled. I didn't know what to do with myself, so I opened google docs again and let those characters in that world comfort me. Shadow and Bone was everything to me. It's saved me again and again, and Shadow and Bone was a world I could lose myself in. I've been rambling for a little while, and nothing I've just said really describes the way I feel about Shadow and Bone. It's everything to me. I wouldn't be the person I am today without it. Shadow and Bone was everything to me.

So, I saw season 1 during lockdown the UK and didn't think of it. Then you did a season 2 and I watched it when I was recovering from a failed surgery in March. Instead lying fell in love with Wesper and suddenly I was engaging with the show and curious about the source of it. I got the books for my September birthday, and followed the cast of the amazing show closely. Was very sad to see you cancel it as I was curious about how you'd continue it and build on it. I wasn't expecting you do a supernatural or vampire diaries with loads and loads of series, but was excited to see how Eric's plan would have gone for it and the spin off. It saddens me to think you've cut off the show where you had, and makes me sad on all the cliffhangers you left at the end of season 2. It just makes it seem unfinished, and makes me sad you did this to a show I was really enjoying and got me back into watching stuff on your streaming service after not really clicking with anything you've produced. Makes me sad because everytime I try to get into something, I fine out its now being renewed or that's how it's ended. Is there nothing you could do for the fans of the show and the amazing cast you chose for this project?

Chloe, from Europe

Six of crows is my favorite book, most of the cast understands their character perfectly so not greenlit the spinoff is a waste of time and good potential. Shadow and bone needs to be concluded as well, a lot of people need a fantasy war story where it's not only brutal but optimistic as well, Zoya Nazyalensky and Alina Starkov deserve their whole story to be told.

Lili, from North America - "The six of crows scripts are already done and paid, just sell them or use them"

Shadow and Bone came to me in a difficult time in my life. I had just given birth to my daughter, and she was very much struggling to sleep at night. I was in need of something to pass the dark, long hours in the middle of the night. A few of my friends recommended Shadow and Bone, as the first season had just recently come out! I watched every episode within a few naps, and immersed myself into the Grishaverse.

By the time the second season came out, my daughter was a little over one, and I'd read every single book in the Grishaverse. The Six of Crows and King of Scars duology were my absolute favorites. I had finally found, after many many years of being a stagnant reader, a fantasy world and show that drew me in again. Imagine my excitement when the final episode of season two (which had already introduced three of my favorites in Jordie, Wylan, and Nikolai) set up not only the Ice Court Heist and parem, but also Nikolai's demon and Sankta Lizabeta with the bee! I was so excited, as those two duologies are so cinematic, and I had been looking forward to seeing them on screen, acted by I think one of the best ensemble casts ever formed by a show.

I was really looking forward to seeing Zoya begin to work with Nikolai, to see what Genya did after David's death, to hear iconic lines, to see where Alina's story went, and, of course, to see the Crows all together for the very first time!

Then, November 15th happened. I was heartbroken to hear that the show had been canceled, and that all of the hopes and hype that had been building for eight months had been completely smashed to pieces.

I cried.

And then, like Kaz Brekker would, I pulled myself out of the harbor and decided to fight.

You see, not only did this show bring me back into fantasy and into the Fold, as it were, it also brought me friends. And I was able to introduce the show to other friends and family too, who all said the same thing: they LOVED it. They were all flabbergasted why such an incredible show would be dropped so suddenly. I don't need to spit facts and statistics out for you. Other people have done that, and I don't want to be repetitive. But this show was one of the best fantasy shows on screen and the cast was incredible.

Not only this, but the last episode set up two of the most beloved duologies, and some of the most popular moments within the Grishaverse. Six of Crows would have been wildly successful, not only as a standalone, but also because it has the fanbase to back it up. It is the perfect, completed story that could easily be done within two seasons to tell the whole story, and be successful at that.

It's a heist! It's a romance! It's a story of redemption, of representation, of the struggle to survive in a world that beats you down. And we will never get to see it when, in that last episode, we were promised it.

To summarize, this cancellation is unacceptable. Shadow and Bone was one of the most amazing shows I've ever seen. Season two was even better than the first, and to say I could rewatch it over and over again is an understatement. We have the best cast, who care about their characters and play them perfectly, the best writers, the best author. Please don't look past us. Please do not take this wonderful thing away from us.

Cassidy, from North America - "Please hear us, Netflix."

Dear Netflix!

Shadow and Bone, especially Six of Crows part, was one of the dearest screen adaptation of any book I've ever read. Especially, because it brought on screen one of the most important fictional characters for me, Jesper Fahey. Neurodivergent bisexual person, farmboy, addict, sharpshooter and university dropout with a big heart, and, for me, woman with ADHD, one of the most accurate portrayal of ADHD-person in books.

There are so many excellent stories in the grishaverse, which will never be told, if show will not be renewed. Story of Wylan Van Eck, story of Nikolai and Zoya, story of Colm Fahey, Matthias... New, changed story of Mal and Alina, Ice Cort heist... it makes me heartbroken. Inej Ghafa will never meet her parents again, and Kaz Brekker will never find them for her, Wylan will never overcome at least part of shame of his disability, Matthias will never understand what maybe druskelle at least was wrong about Nina, Kuwei will never leave Ice Cort, Zoya will never become queen and Nikolai will never find love of his life... Jesper Fahey will never talk with his Da, will never recognise his problems, and he and Wylan will never have a chance for their own happily ever after. All this characters was with me for years, since I've read my first book from grishaverse. And not only with me. Many of my friends are also huge fans of the books and of the show. Show even helped me to reconnect with one of my old friends. Now its cancellation unites fans all over the globe, incredible people who don't want to give up on their chance to see full story on screen. Life is taught, and latest years was even tougher, and Shadow and Bone adaptation and grishaverse fandom brought me a sparkle of joy I was in need.

Please, consider renewal of Shadow and Bones and Six of Crows spinoff. We, fans of grishaverse, will be extremely grateful for it.

I love Shadow and Bone! I love the actors, and the costumes are stunning, and the effects are so good they got an Emmy nomination. So many people I know watch the show. A friend of mine watched the show with her mom we were all so sad to hear Netflix canceled Shadow and Bone, because we all love fantasy and love getting to see diverse representation on screen. And her mom hasn't read the books before, and was so disappointed by the idea that she'll never see a resolution to Alina's storyline, she's starting to read the books. But even after reading the books, the changes to Alina's arc in the show won't have a resolution. It's a terrible business model to leave stories unfinished, and it's such an unfair way for Netflix to treat their cast and crew, and their subscribers.

NerdingMerchlingMarie · Six of Crows designs

I read the books one summer when I had nothing else to do. I was invested. The show helps bring this universe to life for me and so many others. Movie/show adaptations of books are so greatly appreciated by the reader community as it brings our imaginations to life.

Appreciate the actors, writers, showrunners of shadow and bone and especially leigh for creating such a great story for great characters. each character has their own personal backstory and each character is a credit with meticulous work that makes their story deserve to end the right way. the characters are versatile and I have never met a show before whose characters compare to the characters of grishaverse. the actors know how to play the characters perfectly, which is why the show is so nice to watch. shadow and bone is a beautiful and unique show, which is why i would appreciate if we could see a continuation of it. also the six of crows spinoff sounds great and it really must come to our screens after we've already had a small taste what is coming. netflix can't leave the grishaverse story here.

In the top 10 most googled shows of the year, high ranking in Netflix's own statistics, a incredibly passionate fanbase, daily trending Twitter or "X" #'s since cancellation and all though out geekweek and in 8 months we waited only for it to be cancelled, a pre-written script, amazing diversity, and now it's been canceled and billboards are going up there's only gonna be more and more publicity, more people wanting to watch just to see what were so passionate about, it's free advertisement to bring it back, petition quickly approaching 200,000 people, stayed in the top 10, 1st, watched show on Netflix in so so many countries for weeks after its release

There isn't one good reason to not to continue the grishaverse on Netflix, especially six of crows with its lower budget, they could always do shadow and bone after it to see if it really pays off

Which of course it will ❤️

Lilly, from Europe - "Save shadow and bone / six of crows spinoff"

What business, dear Netflix!

I'm here to ask you to reconsider cancelling shadow and bone and the six of crows spin-off. shadow and bone is one of the most wonderfully diverse shows I have ever seen. Its cast and crew is amazing. It is rare to find a show where every single member of the cast and crew is as lovely and as positive as the shadow and bone cast and crew.

I have been looking forward to season 3 since season 2 dropped in March (and if you were wondering how the show became the 10th most googled show of 2023, all I need to tell you is: a lot of people were looking forward to news about season 3. A lot.) I have been equally looking forward to the six of crows spin-off, especially because the scripts are already written! (And by the way, did you know that heist stories are all the rage right now and that six of crows would be perfect for meeting the demand!)

These stories are amazing and powerful and diverse and they mean so much to do many people (a lot of people, considering the petition reached nearly 200,000 people in just two months)

I would also like to remind you that this show was the 15th most watched show the first half of 2023. That has to be an impressive accomplishment that shows that there certainly is high demand for a next season. I hope you will hear the voices of thousands of fans telling you the story is not done yet and give the show the ending it deserves.

No mourners, no funerals!

Roos, from Europe - "I'm so impressed by everything we have managed to accomplish!♥"

Shadow and Bone was recommended to me by one of my good friends and normally I don't like starting new shows as I don't want to waste my time with a show I don't like. But thank goodness I risked it, although I haven't read the books that were adapted, I was able to thoroughly enjoy the show without feeling lost with the plot line. The characters are also very relatable as it portrays real world problems such as discrimination and greed for power. This show uses these characters to show how they endure through similar problems in a somewhat relatable fashion even if I'm not able to summon light or kill for money and power, I still see the resemblance the grishaverse bleeds through our every day affairs.

Dear Netflix,

Shadow and bone means so much to everyone. Since it has such diverse characters it is such a safe space for so many people. Perosnally, as a queer kid I was able to find representation of happy queer relationships existing in a fantasy world with no fuss about them. It's also one of my favorite books, so it's truley magical to see it come to life!!!! We need to see more of crows and story!!!! Please renue it!!!!!!

Ezra, from Australia - "Please please please please please renue shadow and bone!!"

Shadow and bone is a beautiful found family trope with a wonderful romance. This show is a great escape. Shadow and bone also helps understand and learn about different emotions

Dakota, from North America - "I appreciate your hard work in the first two seasons, they were beautifully done (I would also like a soc spinoff)"

Shadow and Bone was one of the main reasons I first subscribed to Netflix. It's rare that you have the perfect congruence of writers, filmmakers, and actors that brings a book series to life in a way that's not only respectful of the original material but also improves upon it. Lightning in a bottle, truly. I appreciate the diversity of the cast and characters, and as a queer person I deeply value the treatment of queer characters and relationships on this show. (Wesper forever! <3) Shadow and Bone has also become symbolic to me of the way Netflix treats its fans. The sheer number of unfinished shows on Netflix these days, especially sci-fi and fantasy, leaves me with little desire to invest time in something new. If even a high-profile Netflix original based on a best-selling series of books can't be given a decent send-off? Well, that's a major break of trust and perhaps a sign that I should move on from this streaming service. By undoing your decision and giving us more Shadow and Bone or at least the already-written Six of Crows spin-off, it would go a long way in restoring that trust. Please save Shadow and Bone. Bring the light!

Dear Netflix, the Grishaverse is the world I can't resist visiting in my imagination for a second, the world I always return to, yearning to come back every time to live through adventures of its characters as well. It opened so many doors for me, evoking the light and extreme love for fantasy inside of me. And how amazingly this world was shown in Shadow and Bone series make me speechless. The differentiality of cultures and people demonstrated there and battles, which characters had faced. Their stories deserve to be continued, because we're all eager to immerse into the depth of this world and would love it to back to screen with Shadow and Bone season 3 and Six of Crows spin-off ♥

I had never read the books, but was instantly hooked into the grishaverse when I saw season 1 on Netflix. Not only are both seasons thrilling, entertaining examples of the genre--but they showcase stories and characters typically neglected in this type of fantasy show. Now having read the books I see how much more story there is to tell in Shadow and Bone. In particular it's amazing to see a fantasy show with two Asian leads, Jessie Mei Li and Archie Reneaux. The show also prominently features other diverse main characters, including disabled, Black, South Asian, /and/ queer characters. In particular it means a lot to see Jesper and Inej onscreen, Jesper because I can relate to his struggles with ADHD and addiction, and Inej for having one of the most powerful stories in fantasy I've read: a survivor of trafficking who will ultimately use her freedom to free others. I really would like to see this arc realized in the show with the incredible actors who've brought this to life

When I first got into Shadow and Bone, after S1, I tried looking for fans online to share my enthusiasm with but had little luck there. By the time S2 aired I was even more excited about the show and so so happy that I did indeed find lots of fans on twitter. I was having quite a bad time with my health then, so the show was a welcome distraction, and it was awesome to learn there were books too. I binged the SOC duology immediately after S2 and then just had to find people to talk about it all with. Because of that, I've met some wonderful people I can now call friends, and we've made our own found family: understanding and supportive, there for each other when we need it. Just the right people that came at just the right time. I will also always be grateful that the show introduced me to Kaz Brekker--there being a young cane user, a character living with chronic pain, but who isn't defined solely by those things, was amazing to see on-screen. That was the disability representation I didn't know I needed so badly until it was there in front of me. And as someone queer, to see queer characters living in a world without any queerphobia was a breath of fresh air too. I really hope that we will get to see Kaz--as well as all the other brilliant characters who are great representation--back on screen again someday, because it would mean a great deal to so many people.

My Six of Crows tattoo is the story of crows and gives me hope. It reminds me that even when close to death, there is a way out.

There are different things you can see in this tattoo, different possibilities.

You can see it as six crows:

Then the first crow, Matthias, unfortunately didn't make it; he can't escape the shadows.

The second crow is Nina. She has to find herself after his death and try to find a way out. She's almost there.

Wylan is the third crow, he has put his dark past behind him and is finally in the light. He never looks back and goes his own way.

Then comes Jesper. He's not standing in line trying with his past. If his past moves faster than him, Wylan will be there.

Then the two crows sit on the branch.

Apparently Inej and Kaz are arguing with each other. Kaz has probably come up with a new plan that is extremely dangerous and Inej is trying to convince him not to do it. But it's also possible to just see Kaz in the tattoo. From the moment he lost his brother, his hope and everything else, to that moment when he found peace in Inej's laughter. He is back in life and has realized that some things are worth fighting for.

No matter what you see in it, it is a symbol. A symbol of hope, of a better future, even if the past is dark and hard.

I ve read all the books and I loved it ! Then I HAD TO watch the series to see the story on screen and then I learned that Ben Barnes was part of the cast 🥰.
I watched the series multiple times, it's faithful to the books, I love the characters and the performance of each actors.
Zoya and Kaz are portrayed perfectly in the series.
All the pictures are so beautiful !
I just need to see the rest of the story onscreen, especially what's concerning Zoya, Nikolai, Kanej, Wesper and Hellnik ! I need more episodes !
The grishaverse community is a special one, I ´m part of it now and I don't want it to ends.

Dear Netflix, Please bring back the show with not just a cast so diverse, but characters as well. Characters that literally anyone can relate to. As someone who's dealt with chronic pain it's refreshing to see that representation. There's so much story left to tell, rich story!

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone is beautiful and diverse and there is nothing else like it out there right now. From the characters to the writing to the music, it was all so epic. This show gave us our found family and something worth fighting for.

Dear Netflix, Shadow and bone is a beautiful story with absolutely amazing characters. They have inspired me, they made me laugh, scream, cry, giggle and kick my feet. The cast is perfect and they deserve to tell the whole story of these beloved characters on screen!

Dear Netflix (the pekka rollins in my story) , I absolutely need S3 or the spin off so that matthais helvar can be free from jail, and I need to see six birds riding on a tank to safety pls 🙏
mieczyslaw786 via X, formerly known as Twitter

Dear Netflix, Shadow and Bone brings our family together. It raises questions, discussion, promotes representation, leads to laughter and tears as we watch. We were so upset not to get the Six of Crows spinoff. Please bring them back!

M, G, O + A via X, formerly known as Twitter

We miss them so much, we want to see the new season and more! Please give us back our series. We need the development of the characters in the story, everything! Come on #Netflix you can do this 🙏

Shadow and Bone (and the Grishaverse) has brought me joy, tears, and most importantly, some of the best friends I will ever have in my life. Started watching the show during a difficult time in my life and I genuinely believe the storylines and extraordinary cast gave me the hope and strength to make it through. They're my found family (on top of my amazing friends💙💙). We'll never stop fighting to get them back. NMNF!!!

Dear Netflix, Shadow & Bone and the Grishaverse came to me when I was at a dark place and it helped me escape. Especially the crows hold a special place in my heart and I feel like I am part of their family - and I think the whole fandom, the cast and everyone involved feels the same. Please don't take away our found family! Love, The Grishaverse
Lisa / dance.feelgood.repeat, from Europe, via Instagram Story

This is one of the best adaptations I've come across and the entire cast is directly out of the books. Ketterdam and the crow club is exactly how I pictured it. I also love that you have Leigh working with you.
Akansha / antisocial.swizzle, from Asia, via Instagram Story

The representation is so important and the characters mean so much to me and so many other people.
micah / potatomustaches, from North America, via Instagram Story

Shadow and Bone is a perfectly life changing series. It trully makes people believe in fantasy even more with the way the world and charachters are portrayed. It is also not just for Leigh Bardugo fans, but for people who never read books, because the plot was written amazingly. I felt all of the possible emotions while watching it and i want to feel them again, in the 3rd season and Six of Crows Spin-off ❤️

The found families within the show validate our own journey to find our own! It promotes healthy relationships! It's full of badass women that empower us!

S&B is a great show with representation from all walks of life. The characters are well developed, the cast is perfection, and the plot is amazing. Let the story continue.

Dear Netflix, I found the books through the first series and thus began my love affair with Leigh Bardugo’s novels! I wouldn’t have discovered this joy, if not for S1.

I started watching because of Ben Barnes truth be told. But I got captivated by the whole atmosphere, the wonderful costumes, scenery, the story and the acting.

Dear Netflix,
I am very disappointed in you for cancelling such an amazing show. Shadow and bone is a remarkable fantasy series and it so sweet and captivating to watch. I could easily relate to all the characters. This show has given me a lot of comfort , more so last year in summer things were very hard for me and watching SAb kept me going. I think the series need to continue and we all want to see more of our favorite Crows in Spinoff. I am very glad I got invested in the fandom ad I met some fantastic people.
Sophie, from North America, via Discord

Dear Netflix, I love Shadow and Bone because it explores some heavy but important themes through the storylines and characters. The impact of loneliness, the havoc betrayal wrecks on a soul, the strength in choosing love and mercy. It's a beautiful story that is yet unfinished. The cast is EXCELLENT and really brought the characters from the books to life. The writing is PHENOMENAL and as a fan of the books, seeing how the stories are woven and spliced together has been so fun and interesting to see. Really, a work of art. That has reflected back parts of my own life and my own soul. It's a beautiful world full of love and life and death and anger. And it means a lot to me.
ally.banana via Instagram

Like so many others yes I to started whatching because of Ben Barnes. But I was in a real bad place back then and the show helped me sorte out a lot of difficultis I had. The characters soon captivsted my heart and the whole Grishavers Show and books became a second home to me, which it will always remain.
Melanie Frick, from Europe, via Facebook

I started watching cause honestly I was bored and Need new stuff. Now I rewatch when I can not sorry
Sophie Zvereva via Facebook

I read the books and then found the series on Netflix. They managed to show the whole world and the characters as they live in my imagination. In fact, maybe even better! I’m very disappointed that there is no third season, but I haven’t lost hope yet! ♥
Diána Szőke, from Europe, via Facebook

So many fantasy shows focus too much on the visuals and the world-building, but forget to develop the characters. Shadow and Bone has the high-quality production AND well-written, flawed characters. Combining two book series was a bit ambitious, but the show never allowed any of the characters to feel short-changed. Even on first watch, it’s easy to form attachments and all of the diversity on display only helps.

We all know Netflix craves popular IP and by finally splitting Shadow and Bone in two, the overall quality will only get better and there’ll be more consistent Grishaverse releases to keep casual fans engaged. The fandom is already pretty big, but with the full support of Netflix behind it, the numbers will only continue to grow. There’ll always be financial risk, but the potential upside cannot be ignored.

Think about it.

Dear Netflix,
There are not many shows that make my emotions a wild rollercoaster but Shadow and Bone is one of those few that touched my heart the moment I started watching Season 1. When Season 2 was out, I binge-watched the whole season with a friend without a break and let me tell you, we had never felt so many emotions about a show like we felt while watching S2. The whole show has everything people love to see with fantasy shows: a beautiful and exciting story, beloved characters, amazing representation and a cast and production team eager to satisfy the fans (which they have done and wanna keep doing!)

Please reconsider the cancelation of the Six of Crows Spin-off and Shadow and Bone S3. Especially the Six of Crows Spin-off already has a finished script that would make a fantastic series. Allow these characters to have an ending to their unique stories.

With hope and kind regards,
Devin via Thankbox

Dear @netflix I stumbled upon the Grishaverse through the show and I’m really happy about that! I met so many Cosplayers already and met a few actors of the show who are all just so perfect and love their roles so much! I started reading the books because of the show and there is SO MUCH MORE of the stories to tell! Please give us back the show with all those lovely actors ♥

There’re so many words to say why I love this show. Therefore I would say that “Shadow and Bone” show means a lot to me. I just adore it. The cast, the crew, the costumes are incredible. I am proud to be a part of this fandom.

Shadow and Bone & the Grishaverse have been huge parts of my life for the past year, and I hope they remain that way for a very long time. With that hope comes the happiness that Shadow and Bone’s given me, to see my favourite characters on-screen even if the show isn’t a replica of the books because it’s amazing, and the deep sadness of the cancellation of both the show and spin-off. But, as the Grishaverse has taught many of us, we never stop fighting (and if you can’t beat the odds, you change the game), so after seeing our characters overcome impossible odds and achieve their goals and give many of us a home on those pages, it’s only appropriate that we fight to get to see our home and a big source of happiness fully adapted till to the end, and not just left on the limbo of cancellation. :)

The Crows deserve more screen time! Shadow and Bone is so beloved and there's so much Six of Crows story left to tell!

Dear Netflix,

Please bring back Shadow & Bone. The characters deserve to have their stories finished. By telling their stories, others can relate and know they are not alone. These books have meant so much to so many people and the show can help them reach so many more.

No Mourners, No Funerals.

You should really give shadow and bone the season three it deserves so that people will trust you and continue to watch. Netflix shows always canceling after season two isn't going to make anyone want to ever watch another season of any of your originals for fear of cancellation, and falling in love with some thing that will never be finished! You should definitely make six of crows. This is the kind of show that will bring immediate attention and excitement. Everyone loves a good heist.

Shadow and Bone is such a great series, with an amazing story that is yet to be concluded. This show means something to so many people, and the characters all deserve to have their stories told, not forgotten.

Dear Netflix, When I heard about the Shadow and Bone adaptation I was so excited because I've loved the Grishaverse ever since I read Six of Crows in middle school! I remember how excited we all were when the season 1 cast was announced, and how happy we were that this was a truly faithful adaptation of the books we love so much. We are all so grateful for the cast and production team's enthusiasm and love for the book series and how that showed up in the show adaptation! Season 2 continued bringing our favorite characters to screen in new and amazing ways, and it means so much to me that we got to see this all and that it allowed the fandom to grow!

Shadow and Bone's an amazing show and Leigh, Eric, the cast, the writers, the crew, us fans, and the characters deserve to have their stories fully told, so please renew the show and give us the spin-off.

I'm from Ukraine. I discovered the Shadow and Bone a year before the war started. Read the books, binge-watched the show, multiple times. Even before the war, I've had a lot of challenges in my life, and never had those comfort show/book or fandom, where I could hide. Shadow and Bone gave me all this. When the war started and I was sitting in a bomb shelter, our Crows were sitting with me. I had the books with me, and downloaded episodes on Netflix app. We didn't know if we will have the Internet, and how long we will be sitting in those shelter under our house in Kyiv. Shadow and Bone was something, that held me together. It was the only thing from the normal life, the life, which was gone in one day. Kaz and Zoya gave me strength, Jesper and Nina made me smile, Matthias, Wylan and Mal helped me to stay calm and focused, Inej, Alina and Genya reminded me to have my faith strong and believe in the beauty of the world, no matter what. After the neighboring house was hit with the rocket, me and my family left to the safer part of the country, and then me, my mom and our cat went to Europe. I was struggling a lot mentally and physically, especially when my mom decided to come back to Ukraine and I ended up alone in Austria. I worked 12 hours, 6 days a week, and the show, the fandom, the books were my only comfort zone. Last year I met the cast for the first time at MagicCon. I finally talked to the people, who, even without knowing, helped me to survive, to climb out of those dark place where my life put me, and start feeling alive again. But what is most important - I met my best friends in the fandom, at the Con. This show, this fandom and these characters were my only amplifiers when I left my home and had to start a new life alone in a new country. They taught me not to give up, and now they continue to inspire me along the way.

A LOT. Apart from the fact that it's just a wonderful and exciting fantasy show, it's beyond fantastic in case of various forms of represantion. It's so clear that the actors love the show as much as us fans and there are so many scenes they deserve to play and we deserve to watch. Plus, I bonded with really cool people over the show^^

Dear Netflix,

Allow me to introduce myself. My name is Cris and I am responsible for the graphic design of the billboard, neverstopfighting.net website, this book's design and other visual assets for the campaign. My husband coded the website. I have not been alone for even an instant in the entire process, I have always had help, support and collaboration from way more people than you could imagine.

That being said, your actions and inaction have demonstrated an absolute lack of consideration and respect for your customers as much as for the cast and crew of this show, systematically ignoring our feedback and the achievements, acclaim and awards your own production has

Shadow and Bone offered a visually stunning and thrilling adaptation of Leigh Bardugo's novels. It garnered a dedicated fanbase, myself included, who were eagerly awaiting future seasons.

While I understand the complexities of production decisions, I urge you to reconsider cancelling Shadow and Bone. The show's potential for further exploration and its passionate fan base make it a series worth saving.

I, along with countless other fans, would be thrilled to see the story continue. Please consider bringing Shadow and Bone back for future seasons and allowing the Grishaverse to shine on Netflix.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Parker via Thankbox

Way more than I can describe. Rewatching the show is like coming home. But in better world. The characters and actors are incredible and i'm still not over about their post saying goodbye from the show. The live they had - for the show and for each other - is so real. So, if not for us, then for them. Brick by Brick. If received. This tells me you don't actually care. We have proven beyond the shadow of a doubt that we are a loyal and passionate audience, and that we can and will give value and money, which seems to be the only language you understand. Yet nothing of that matters to you.

Why, then, have I been working so hard on a campaign you might ask? Because I do care about people, and more than two hundred thousand people have proven they are ready to fight. Their hope, creativity, kindness, love, support and humanity have been my fuel.

I will not even tell you what this show has meant to me. This book contains more than enough experiences than can tell you how valuable it has been.

I want to remind you that we, the people at the other side of the screen, are your customers and the ones that make a difference in your benefits. Treating us with such disdain, us and the many fans of the many shows you have and will cancel in the future, will only grant you our mistrust, disappointment and, when all is said and done, our subscription cancellations.

As a fan of the Grishaverse and one of many fellow barrel rats, I stand by Leigh Bardugo's words. We never stop fighting.

CONCLUSION

CONCLUSION

The messages you have read in this book are a small representation of a diverse, worldwide fandom which contributed towards this project in just ten days.

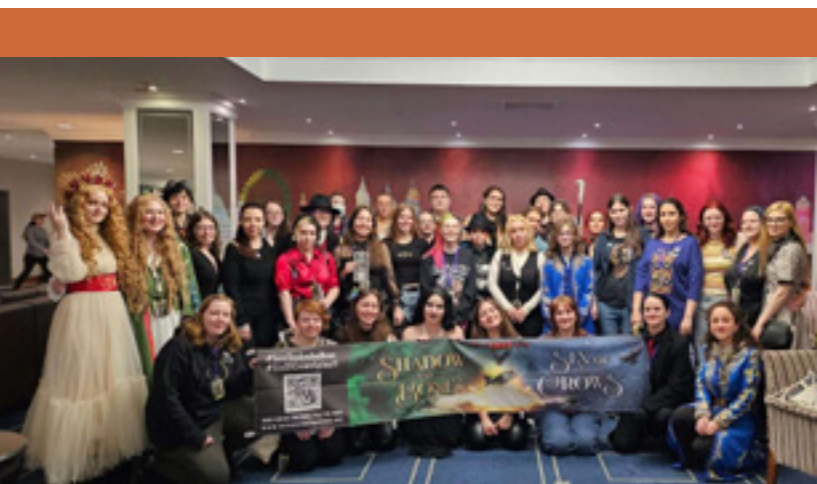

We hope this book has shown you:

- The success and respect Shadow and Bone has brought to Netflix, including subscribers who came only for this show.
- The need for shows like Shadow and Bone to have a place on Netflix to represent people of all ethnicities, sexualities, genders and abilities and the impact this has on individuals and groups around the world.
- The worldwide audience that is there ready for Season 3.
- The huge potential of the already-written Six of Crows spinoff series to attract an even wider audience by expanding the Grishaverse franchise.
- Much of the source material from best-selling novels by Leigh Bardugo is yet to be covered in Shadow and Bone Season 3 and beyond.
- Opportunities for merchandising from all further Grishaverse projects would benefit Netflix.
- The impact that Netflix programming policies are having on TV in general, creating an environment of uncertainty and disappointment amongst your subscribers and within the industry when even highly successful shows are not concluded. Ours is not the only fandom to be impacted; many fandoms are voicing serious concerns over the way that streaming services are approaching shows as short term gains without the potential for longer term franchise growth.
- The sheer love and dedication that exists for Shadow and Bone and Six of Crows. You are choosing to stop producing something which is incredibly successful and has huge potential. It has a pathway forward that is written and ready via the Six of Crows spinoff, a perfect cast, crew and writers in place and an eager audience who would have so much more faith in Netflix once you SAVE SHADOW AND BONE and GREEN LIGHT SIX OF CROWS.
